Authorities Denounce Aluminum Price Hike

Agreement Sealed To Begin Airlifting Cuban Refugees

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)— The United States and Communist Cuba sealed Saturday an agreement allowing 3,000 to 4,000 Cubans a month to find refuge in this country. The starting deadline is Dec. 1 and there is no cutoff date.

The emphasis will be on reuniting thousands of families.

Officials make no predictions on how many Cubans may leave their homeland under the new pact but the total is expected to run beyond 100,000.

The government puts the number of Cubans who already have taken asylum in the United States at more than 250,000. Before the 1962 Cuban missile crisis halted travel, about 8,000 Cubans were coming in each month.

SWISS EMBASSY

President Johnson announced the new refugee agreement, negotiated through the Swiss Embassy in Havana as the representative of this country, and said in a statement:

"I am pleased with the understanding which has been reached. It is an important forward step in carrying out the declaration I made on Oct. 3 to the Cuban people. I said that those who seek refuge here will find it. That continues to be the policy of the American people."

Johnson was referring to a speech he made beside the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor in which he quickly took up Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro on a sweeping promise to fling open Cuba's gates to any and all wishing to leave.

Castro welshed when it came to actual negotiations.

While the matter is open for further discussions, he wound up by slamming the doors to political prisoners, men of military age and technicians he wants to keep. Differences over this held up the agreement for days.

Furthermore, the U.S. government regards the refugee agreement as no real omen of a general improvement in Cuban-American relations.

White House press secretary Bill D. Moyers was asked about that and said:

"The answer is that this is a very particular situation affecting a very particular group of people for a very particular reason — humanitarian. It does not affect our broad policy toward Cuba, which has been taken in concert with the other members of the Organization of American States."

When humanitarian considerations require it, the U.S. and Cuban governments also will put some "close" relatives in the top-priority category. But they did not define "close" relatives.

Claim Made U.S. Offered Sukarno Aid

SINGAPORE (AP) — President Sukarno of Indonesia claimed Saturday the United States once offered him a large personal bribe to spread Western ideas throughout his left-leaning nation. He also said that after last month's pro-Communist coup the United States offered help to the nation.

Sukarno implied that both the alleged bribe and offer of help were rejected. As for the offer of help, Sukarno said he told U.S. Ambassador Marshall Green: "You Americans always pretend to help us when we look like winning."

BEFORE CABINET

The Indonesian president brought both points up in an address to his Cabinet at Bogor, 40 miles outside Jakarta, the Indonesian capital. His remarks were relayed by Radio Jakarta.

Sukarno did not say when the alleged bribe was offered or by whom. He said it was in the amount of 150 million rupiahs. It is difficult to determine how much this represents in terms of dollars because Sukarno did not give the time of the offer. The rupiah has been falling sharply over the past few years and it now is worth .0224 of a cent in the world currency exchanges.

In August, Prime Minister Lee Kuan Lee of Singapore told a news conference he was offered a U.S. bribe of $3 million dollars to keep quiet about a U.S. Central Intelligence Agency attempt to buy secrets about Red China from Singapore undercover men. U.S. officials now regard the CIA operation as a blunder.

The offer of help to Indonesia from the United states came several days after the Oct. 1 coup failed in its announced mission of rescuing Sukarno from right-wing army generals, Sukarno said. He claimed American officials in Jakarta, who had been "anti-Sukarno and anti-Indonesia" suddenly "changed their tune."

"They were very happy to know that I was against this rebel movement," he told the Cabinet "Marshall Green came to see me and said: 'We love Indonesia — we want to help Indonesia.'

Air Force Chief Issues Order

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — This message from Secretary of the Air Force Harold Brown was received by Lt. Gen. Thomas S. Moorman, superintendent of the Air Force Academy.

It is important to keep in mind that the purpose of the Air Force Academy is to turn out career officers, not varsity athletes.

"While football has a place at the Academy, it should not be a dominant interest. Accordingly, as Secretary of the Air Force, I issue the following order: Beat Army."

Vandals Leave Trail Of Glass

A trail of broken glass extended from the 2900 block of Louisville to Eastgate Shopping Center.

Hit were Gibson's, $185; Twin City Glass, $425; Keene's Shoe Store, $130; Sharron's, $211; and Walgreen's, $180. Police speculated that the shooting out of the doors and windows was done from an automobile.

Communists Kidnap U.S. Servicemen

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist guerrillas kidnaped four U.S. Air Force sergeants on a road about 30 miles from Saigon as they were returning to the capital by car from a nearby seaside resort, a U.S. military spokesman disclosed Saturday night.

The spokesman said air and ground units were searching a swampy area southeast of Saigon where the Viet Cong captured the sergeants at a roadblock while they were traveling by night in a rented car from Vung Tau. Their capture brought to 17 the number of Americans known to have fallen into Viet Cong hands.

BLAST BRIDGE

Over Communist North Viet Nam, a flight of U.S. Navy jets dodged Russian-built missiles to blast a Communist surface-to-air (SAM) missile site and a bridge about 35 miles east of Hanoi.

Communist anti-aircraft fire shot down one U.S. Navy F8 Crusader Jet during the raid over North Viet Nam. The pilot parachuted from the plane and landed in heavy populated area, where there was no chance for U.S. aircraft to rescue him, a spokesman said.

More than 130 U. S. planes have been downed by the North Vietnamese since systematic raids on the north began last February. Six of them have been hit by Soviet built missiles. The Crusader downed Saturday was hit by 37MM and 57MM antiaircraft fire.

In ground action, U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division soldiers sweeping a Pleiku province area around the Plei Me Special Forces camp found nearly 80 more Viet Cong bodies. A spokesman said the total Communist toll during the long battle there may be more than 1,000.

A military spokesman in Saigon said the four sergeants were kidnaped by the Viet Cong last Sunday but news of their abduction was withheld to avoid jeopardizing chance for their rescue.

The sergeants had originally hopped a helicopter for the trip from Saigon to Vung Tau, a popular seaside resort that is currently a rest-and-relaxation spot for U.S. and Vietnamese servicemen.

Indian Troops Claim Victory Over Pakistani

NEW DELHI (UPI) — India said Saturday its troops had pushed Pakistani forces back behind the international frontier in the Ganganagar border area of India's desert state of Rajasthan.

An Indian government spokesman said that Pakistani troops had occupied certain posts near Ganganagar town, six miles inside India, after the Sept. 23 cease - fire was declared.

The spokesman said the Pakistani's had been pushed back from Ganganagar and Indian forces also cleared Pakistani troops from Indian posts they had been holding in the Bikaner district of Rajasthan state.

One of the posts claimed recaptured by the Indians is Sanchu, opposite which a heavy concentration of Pakistani troops was reported.

The Indian spokesman said the Sanchu post was retaken after "stiff fighting in which three Pakistanis were killed, 18 injured and seven captured." The spokesman did not list Indian casualties.

Reports reaching New Delhi said the situation along the border between India's Rajasthan state and Sind Desert border of West Pakistan is tense. They said the latest reported fighting might turn out to be "a prelude to bigger developments."

Rajasthan is the southern end of the 1,500-mile cease-fire line separating Indian and Pakistani forces since their undeclared war over Kashmir was halted late in September. But both sides have charged fighting has continued in widespread breaches of the cease-fire.

The Indian government accused Pakistan Saturday of 41 fresh violations of the cease-fire.

NEW ORLEANS Mayor Victor H. Schiro (right took an apparent victory over his chief opponent, James E. Fitzmorris Jr., Saturday night in his bid for a second term in a Democratic primary election. Fitzmorris is currently City Council president. Winner of the primary is as good as elected since there is no opposition in the general election. Three other candidates were seeking the mayor's post. Schiro Win In Orleans Is Apparent

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Mayor Victor Schiro apparently won a second four-year term Saturday night, piling up a slim majority over four opponents in a municipal Democratic primary.

Schiro, who holds the second most important elective office in Louisiana, held a 3,600 vote lead over Councilman James E. Fitzmorris Jr., his principal opponent with five precincts unreported.

With 392 of 397 precincts counted, the unofficial vote was: Schiro 80,733, Fitzmorris 77,105. Three other candidates had a combined 2,872 votes.

Fitzmorris' manager said he might ask a recount.

In the only other contest with more than local interest, Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison easily turned back a challenge by Judge Malcolm O'Hara. The vote was Garrison 80,428, O'Hara 46,157.

Schiro, sidelined in the latter days of the campaign by an appendectomy, jumped into a slight lead with the first returns and clung to a slim margin throughout the vote count.

He campaigned on a platform of growth and prosperity during his first term. Fitzmorris called Schiro a do-nothing mayor and promised a vigorous administration.

Despite a ho-hum campaign that failed to excite the voters, they turned out in large numbers under sunny skies.

A number of Negroes, registered during a voter registration drive last month, complained that they were not permitted to vote. They said the registrar's office had failed to heed their request that they be listed as Democrats.

Only registered Democrats were permitted to vote in the party primary.

The polls closed at 8 p.m. All voting was with machines, which were hurriedly reconditioned after being flooded during Hurricane Betsy in September.

U.S. Satellite Shot In Orbit

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The United States shot a "winking star" mapping satellite through steady rain toward space Saturday in an effort to increase man's knowledge of Earth.

The 385-pound geodetic explorer rode toward a planned orbit on the nose of a new high-powered Delta rocket that was seeking its 30th success in 34 tries.

The sleek rocket, launched at 1:39 EST, was programmed to propel its top-like payload into an orbit ranging from 690 to 922 miles high.

Wilson Accused Of 'Closing Door'

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP)— Prime Minister Ian Smith accused Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain Saturday of wrecking prospects for a settlement of the Rhodesian independence crisis.

Wilson, in a brief comment to London newsmen, said he did not accept Smith's charge, but would have no formal statement until he had studied it more fully.

In a letter to London, Smith charged Wilson had reneged on his agreement for a royal commission to seek a solution to Rhodesia's demand for independence from Britain.

Smith claimed Wilson had done this by announcing that the British government will not be bound by the findings of the commission, which would be made up of one Briton, one Rhodesian and the chief of the Rhodesian Supreme Court.

Wilson and Smith agreed to the commission during the British leader's visit to Rhodesia last week.

REFERENDUM WANTED

The commission's task was to determine whether this central African nation of 225,000 whites and 3.8 million blacks wanted independence under the terms of the 1961 constitution. This constitution restricts the political activities of the blacks and gives control to the whites.

Wilson wanted a referendum to get the answer but Smith's all-white government rejected this.

Britain is willing to grant Rhodesia independence but insists on guarantees for eventual majority rule, which would give the blacks control of the government.

Smith's government has threatened a unilateral declaration of independence.

Partly Cloudy Skies Slated

The forecast calls for partly cloudy skies and mild temperatures today and Monday throughout the Twin Cities area. No rain has been predicted by the U. S. Weather Bureau.

High temperatures today will range from 75 to 80 and a low of 58 to 64 is expected tonight.

Winds will be variable, mostly from the east at 5 to 15 miles per hour.

Russia Gives U.S. Choice—War, Peace

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union opened its 48th birthday party Saturday night by telling the United States to choose between war in Viet Nam and good relations with Moscow.

"If the ruling circles of the United States really want normal relations with the Soviet Union, they must give up a policy of aggression and military interference in the affairs of other states," First Deputy Premier Dmitri Polyansky told a Kremlin rally ushering in the 48th anniversary of Lenin's revolution.

Moscow shed its normally drab aspect and became a city of light for the celebration. Red posters proclaimed the glories of communism and colored lights hung across streets like glittering combination of Christmas and the fourth of July.

The celebration reaches a climax today with a military parade in Red Square — expected to reveal four new types of tactical missiles — followed by a mammoth parade by hundreds of thousands of flag-waving Muscovites.

But Polyansky, who also celebrates his own 48th birthday today, was all business as he castigated the United States, Communist China, Britain, West Germany and Indonesia.

"The Soviet Union has said repeatedly there are possibilities for improving relations with the United States," Polyansky told the rally of Soviet leaders, "honored workers," and delegations from 67 foreign nations.

"But the aggressive war by the United States against the Democratic Republic of Viet Nam hinders this," he said. "Another great obstacle to business - like contacts is Washington's policy directed toward supplying the West German army with nuclear weapons."

The handsome, fast - rising young leader told Peking that the bridge to span the Sino-Soviet chasm must be made in China.

"We are trying to improve our relations with China," he said, "on our part, we did our best, but now the questions of development of relations . . . depends on the Chinese leaders."

Plan To Sell Government Surplus Told

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Johnson administration Saturday denounced the industrywide aluminum price increases as unjustified and announced plans to sell 200,000 tons of the government's aluminum surplus next year.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara said in making the announcement that the industry had rejected all government proposals for disposing of the 200,000 tons. But he said it was necessary to take the action in the national interest.

REJECTS 'DUMP'

McNamara rejected the use of the word "dump" to describe the disposal plans. He insisted that the timing of his announcement and the price increases announced by all major U.S. and Canadian aluminum producers over the past week was related only because of the industry's action.

However, President Johnson's chief economic adviser, W. Gardner Ackley, conceded at a White House press conference there was some relationship in the plans for disposing part of the 1.4 million aluminum surplus from the strategic stockpile and the increase in prices announced by the industry.

Ackley said when an industry like aluminum is operating at full capacity, and a greater supply is needed, the availability of additional supplies would have a natural easing effect on the traditional supply and demand situation.

As for the aluminum ingot price hikes, scheduled to take effect Monday, Ackley said the President's Council of Economic Advisers concluded that the increase "has no justification under the wage price guideposts and therefore are inflationary."

Ackley said the council had estimated that a recent labor settlement in the aluminum industry could raise management costs about 3.5 per cent. He said other costs were stable and profits of the primary producers had increased tremendously in the first three quarters of the year.

McNamara cited increased aluminum demand to fight the war in Viet Nam as one reason for the release of 200,000 tons of stockpiled aluminum starting next Jan. 1. He said defense production could require consumption in 1966 of about twice as much aluminum as this year — or about 300,000 to 400,000 tons.

Reynolds Metals Co. said in statement that it and three other major companies involved in negotiations had agreed to take 200,000 tons during 1966 and more later. But it said the government did not go along with an industry request for a "proportionate share" of defense business, among other future conditions.

Reynolds expressed belief the issue could have been resolved in a few more days. But, it said, the government broke off discussions at 1 a.m. EST Saturday and refused industry requests for further meetings.

ALUMNAE OF RANDOLPH-Macon Woman's College at Lynchburg, Va., chat with the college president, Dr. William F. Quillian Jr., before the local 75th Anniversary Dinner Saturday night. College President Cites Goals Of Randolph-Macon

A college president, in a talk packed with high ideals for his institution, spoke here Saturday night with a dual purpose in mind — that of "selling" his school to future college-bound girls and of showing the need for additional operating funds.

Dr. William Fletcher Quilian Jr., president of Randolph-Macon Women's College at Lynchburg, Va., spoke before some 65 persons in the 75th Anniversary Dinner of the school at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club, calling for funds to allow the continued existence of the school's high scholastic rating.

The main emphasis of the two - year fund - raising drive now in progress, Dr. Quillian said, is that of securing money to get and hold the best quality of teachers.

"The teacher in the college classroom must be of the very best quality," he told the alumnae, interested persons and prospective students gathered for the occasion. "Unless that teacher is a dedicated and highly - skilled instructor, you've missed the boat when it comes to education. We realize this at Randolph - Macon and we have improved our faculty there in past years."

The school, under Dr. Quillan's presidency, has doubled its total assets and has increased its percentage of faculty members with Ph. D. degrees from 38 per cent to 60 per cent. Present enrollment at the college, which ranks eighth among private women's colleges in the nation's alumnae listings of Who's Who in America, is 850.

Dr. Quillian became the president in 1953. During the time since, faculty salaries have increased more than 100 per cent.

He told his audience he believed it is necessary to pay high - quality teachers well.

On hand for the ninth anniversary dinner this year in the nation, were several alumnae who are working with the campaign. One alumna, Mrs. Mary Stuard Wood of Tulsa, Okla., regional vice president of the campaign and a board member of the college, spoke to the group.

"Long - range planning," she said, "is necessary to take care of future needs. That is why we are now providing the funds for those upcoming years."

Mrs. Wood said that approximately $2,200,000 has been raised during the campaign which will provide more scholarship funds, more classroom buildings and dormitories and better faculty salaries. "We have less than one half a million dollars to go in our campaign," she said.

The campaign is to include 13 more such dinners before June.

Thirty - eight cities have sponsored dinners since the campaign began almost two years ago.

"We have found, through survey studies, Mrs. Wood said, "that women's colleges must depend for its major support on their own alumnae, parents of students and interested persons who are willing to give."

Previous dinners this week were held in Dallas, Tex., Wednesday; Houston, Tex., Thursday; and Shreveport, Friday. Jackson, Miss., is scheduled to be the next stop for a campaign. Dr. Quillian will speak there also.

Local co - chairmen for the campaign are Mrs. James Wade and Mrs. John Salisburg. Both ladies are Randolph - Macon graduates and are avid "recruiters" for their alma mater.

TOP TEN

But the college, as Dr. Quillian said, is already rated among the nation's ten best women's colleges and was the first accredited women's college in the south.

"The school was recognized early in its existence for its high standards, scholastically," he boasted.

The president said a serious effort is made at R-M WC to point out the leadership attained by its alumnae and to meet the constant new challenges which face the school.

Speaking of current challenges, he said the development of non - western culture courses is excellent.

"We live today in a world where we are in constant interchange with people of non-western culture," he said. "If we are to meet that challenge, we must know the social institutions of other peoples. It is impossible to deal with them unless we know what makes them act as they do in all cases. We have introduced at Randolph-Macon courses in Russian culture, African life and many others, including foreign languages."

The school also is accredited in its education program. Dr. Quillian told of R-MWC's cooperative program with nearby Duke University (located at Durham, N. C.) in which Duke education students are supervised in their practice teaching by R-MWC faculty members while teaching in the Lynchburg public schools.

WORTHY DAMES

Dr. Quillian said he is somewhat accustomed to the idea of some young ladies' parents that it is more important to educate a man than a woman. "They feel it can't be as important as educating a man," he said.

"And the best rebuttal I've ever heard to this nonsense was by Dr. John Everett, president of Hollin's College at Hollin's College, Va. Dr. Everett said he and a faculty member of an all - male school were sharing a taxi ride and kept arguing about the importance of a woman's education. The other man did not think it necessary to educate a woman who was 'just looking for a husband, anyway.' Then the taxi driver spoke up and ended the argument, once and for all. 'But gentlemen,' he said, 'dames is worthy, too!' "

"In keeping with this sentiment, we at Randolph - Macon feel it is important to educate our women, too," the president said earnestly. "It is just as important for young women to have their educational aims fulfilled in life as men."

Denying anyone the enrichment derived from a well-rounded education, he said, is the same as denying them their birthright.

"And look at the accomplishments of our professional women," he said. "Most vital of these professional women is the teacher. Women in the field of teaching cannot be replaced."

"No, no distinction can be made between the importance of educating a man and a woman," he said in closing.

After the speech, a film of the college, showing the most famous aspects of the school, was shown, followed by questions and answers.

Also visiting for the local affair was another regional vice president, Mrs. I. C. Enochs of Jackson, Miss.

Here is what R. C. Sparks said to Eric Wade:

"Eric, the longer you're here, the more you'll come to realize that Central Bank has many advantages that other banks do not have. For instance, Central Bank has a larger number of stockholders than any other bank in North Louisiana — more than 1,000; and our Capital is over 10% of our deposits, which as you know, assures greater protection for our depositors."

R. C. Sparks,

Here is what Eric Wade said to R. C. Sparks:

"R. C., I hadn't been here a month before I realized that Central Bank is unique in many of the services we offer our customers. One impressive fact is that Central has EIGHT offices, strategically located throughout the Twin Cities—more than any other bank in the area. This means that no matter where our customers live or work, they're only minutes from one of our neighborhood offices."

Goldwater Says Radical Leftists Near Treason

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Former Republican presidential candidate Barry Goldwater said Saturday a generation raised on the liberal formula was carrying draft-card burnings and other civil disorder "to the edge of treason."

Describing himself as a "card - carrying conservative," Goldwater told the Western States Republican Conference to "stop hunting witches" in the GOP and concentrate on the radical fringe of the Democratic left.

Although he did not single out so-called "rightist extremists" for criticism, as had other speakers at the three-day GOP conference, Goldwater said:

"When it comes to extremist political action, we should look to the left as well as to the right."

Goldwater said conservatives bitterly opposed the welfare state, but none had ever chosen to disobey the laws passed by various Democratic administrations.

"I daresay that American conservatives object to 80 per cent of the news laws passed by President Johnson's rubber-stamp Congress," he said. "But I have yet to hear of any intent to pick and choose among those laws, to decide which ones they will obey, and which ones they will disobey.

"Yet, week in and week out, we find the liberal press decrying the dangers which they see on the right, and pretending to find evidence that radicalism is about to take over the Republican Party."

Goldwater's speech to a luncheon audience wound up three day of conferences among more than 500 western Republican leaders.

Kashmir Question Far From Solution

WASHINGTON (Special) — The Kashmir question, key to the stability of the Indian subcontinent, seems further from solution than ever following the brief, undeclared war in late summer between India and Pakistan. The cease-fire to which the combatants agreed on Sept. 22 has been violated repeatedly. And neither New Delhi nor Rawalpindi seems prepared to make the concessions needed for a lasting settlement.

Situated at the western end of the great Himalayan mountain range, Kashmir has poisoned Indian - Pakistani relations since the two countries became independent in 1947. About two-thirds of Kashmir has been virtually annexed by India, the remainder by Pakistan. But neither country will relinquish claim to the whole territory. Almost two decades of bilateral negotiation and United Nations intervention have been unavailing.

Now, the U.N. Security Council has again resolved to "consider . . . what steps could be taken to assist toward a settlement of the political problem underlying the (Kashmir) conflict." Its task has been complicated by Pakistan's threat, Sept. 28, to withdraw from the United Nations unless the Council orders a plebiscite in Kashmir. Moreover, the Soviet Union contends that U.N. Secretary General U Thant has overstepped his authority in trying to enforce the Kashmir cease-fire.

Rival Indian and Pakistani claims to Kashmir are based more on emotion and ideology than on logic and law. Indian leaders have always maintained that the people of the subcontinent formed one nation, that Hindus and Moslems — differing in religion but not race — could live peacefully in a secular state that guaranteed religious freedom to all. However, the Moslem League, led by Mohammed Ali Jinnah, took the view that Hindus and Moslems comprised two nations. The league demanded partition on religious lines as early as 1940.

The de facto partition of Kashmir came about almost by accident. When India and Pakistan attained their independence in August 1947, Great Britain made a direct transfer of power in the case of the provinces which had comprised British India. In the case of the nominally independent princely states, Britain simply abrogated its "treaties of paramountcy," leaving the various states free to accede either to India or Pakistan.

In the princely state of Jammu and Kashmir, a Hindu maharaja held sway over the predominantly Moslem population. The maharaja refused to accede to either country until Moslem tribesmen from Pakistan invaded the state in the autumn of 1947. He then appealed to New Delhi, which sent troops only after the maharaja agreed to accede to India. Fighting between Indian and Pakistani troops soon followed. Finally, a cease-fire agreement was negotiated to go into effect on Jan. 1, 1949. Kashmir is still divided along the cease-fire line.

Kashmir is far more important from a strategic than from an economic standpoint. Despite economic favors extended by the government at New Delhi, Kashmir lags well behind the 14 other Indian states in virtually every field. If it were to become independent, it would probably be one of the poorest countries in the world.

History and geography have made Kashmir a neighbor of the principal powers of Asia. It is contiguous to India on the south, Pakistan on the west, and the Communist Chinese provinces of Tibet and Sinkiang on the east and north. Along the northwest boundary a narrow strip of Afghan territory separates Kashmir from the Soviet Union. The land is mountainous and inaccessible.

India's control over the Kashmir water courses that flow into Pakistan is regarded by that country as a grave threat to its security. The Indian government, on the other hand, considers Kashmir a gateway to Central Asia, important militarily and politically. Even though Kashmir's northern and eastern borders are hard to defend, Indians believe that their country is better equipped than Pakistan to discourage foreign adventurers.

Pollution Tax Is Recommended

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel of President Johnson's science advisory committee believes that those who pollute man's environment should pay a penalty — in cash.

A revolutionary pollution tax is among major recommendations in a report submitted to the President Saturday.

The group would apply the levy against individuals or organizations who cause significant pollution of the nation's air, water or soil — and they favor a greatly expanded definition of what constitutes pollution.

The tax would be aimed at familiar pollutants such as smoke, sewage and pesticides but it might even be applied against the obnoxious fellow who plays a transistor radio loudly on a bus.

The scientists adopted a sweeping definition of pollution: man's alteration of his surroundings, physical or aesthetic, in unfavorable ways.

"Pollution touches us all," the report said. "We are at the same time pollutors and sufferers from pollution.

"Today, we are certain that pollution adversely affects the quality of our lives. In the future, it may affect their duration."

Therefore, the panel said, "we recommand that careful study be given to tax-like systems in which all polluters would be subject to 'effluent charges' in proportion to their contribution to pollution."

Thus, it said, economic pressure would be applied to abate pollution.

It suggested that eventually the internal combustion engine may have to bow off the transportation stage. Motor vehicles, it said, are discharging such amounts of gases and lead into the air that substitute power systems may have to be found, like rechargeable batteries or chemical fuel cells.

Unless steps are taken, it said, the weather may be altered by gases produced "by the combustion of coal, oil and gas in our homes, vehicles and factories."

The report lumped many objectionable things under the conception of pollution:

"The unpleasant odor of a rendering plant, the noise of a jet plane or of the other fellow's transistor radio, disorderly jumbles of auto hulks, unsightly trash in a dump, all are irritating and offensive. All will require increasing attention."

The 15-man panel, which includes biochemists and public health experts, is headed by John W. Turkey, professor of mathematics at Princeton University.

President Johnson, in a statement, said he was pleased with the report's thoroughness, and that the administration would move rapidly "along the way to a cleaner world."

Investigation Is Blamed For Burros' Death

RISING SUN, Md. (UPI) — Robert M. Shelton, Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, Saturday night said the House Un-American Activities Committee was responsible for the death last week of Daniel Burros, Grand Dragon of the New York Klan.

In a speech prepared for delivery at a rally in this small Northern Maryland community Shelton said Burros died a "martyr's death."

"It is true that his hand guided the pistol and his finger pulled the trigger that ended his life, that is his physical life: but before the shots rang out, he was already dead mentally, emotionally and spiritually," Shelton said.

Burros was found shot to death in Reading, Pa., last week. Friends said he became despondent after a newspaper article revealed his Jewish background.

Shelton made his first public acknowledgement of Burros's Jewish heritage during the "memorial" address.

"He, (Burros) like so many other tens of thousands of his race in America had come to the firm conviction that international Zionism in its strictest sense, must take second place in the individual's sense of values when measured against the demands of American citizenship and the high principles of the Constitution of the United States," Shelton said.

Shelton said Burros had been "done" to his death "by the weeks-long harrassment inflicted upon him by investigators of the House Committee on Un-American Activities."

The Imperial Wizard said Burros and his girl friend had been "shadowed, followed, pressured, intimidated and threatened by the merciless investigators and their henchmen.

"The human mind, the human body and the human spirit can stand only so much," Shelton said.

According to Shelton, Burros, in a moment of "mental aberration . . . finished the destruction his detractors had set out to accomplish."

Y's Speaker Here Issues Challenge

The one-day Eastern District Conference of the Y's Men's Club held here was ended Saturday night with keynote speaker John Heetland, the club's Southwest Region international director from Amarillo, Tex., challenging the clubs to a five point improvement program.

Heetland, speaking on "What Is This Think Called Y's Men?" asked each club to organize and charter a new club in the region; to make pledges to the club's scholarship fund, world service fund and international building fund; to send a delegate to the international convention in Honolulu, Hawaii, next year, and to help secure $50,000 for the region.

His primary challenge was for all clubs except the charter-limited Vicksburg, Miss., club to increase their membership by 50 per cent in the next year.

Heetland said the "wonderful convention" was the first he had attended that had every district club represented. Delegates from the district's five clubs—Monroe, Shreveport, Memphis, Tenn., Vicksburg, Miss., and Natchez, Miss. were there.

He outlined the club's organization in 1922 by Judge Paul William Alexander and told how the membership today has reached the 18,000 mark. The club has 750 branches in 44 countries.

The five major service areas were also touched on by Heetland. He reminded the members of their obligations to youth work, Young Men's Christian Association membership aid, young adults' clubs, the Bishop Fund and the Paul William Alexander Scholarship Fund.

The Bishop Fund helps send delegates to international conventions in other countries. The scholarship fund provides education for YMCA secretaries. Funds collected at the conference were sent to this fund.

New member patches were presented to the Vicksburg and Fort Worth, Tex., clubs for bringing in five new members each during the last six months.

Crandell coordinated the event, which was hosted by the local Twin Cities club.

Collaborator Is Sentenced For Crimes In War

PARIS (AP) — A French collaborator in the Nazi Gestapo who hid in his mother's apartment for 17 years after World War II, received the death sentence Saturday for war crimes.

Jacques Vasseur, 44, was found guilty of intelligence with the enemy, having belonged to the German police, and having conducted investigations and made arrests followed by torture, deportation to concentration camps and executions.

In the three-week trial, 197 witnesses said Vasseur infiltrated the local Resistance unit in Angers, beat and brutalized French prisoners, and personally executed six Resistance members.

Defense lawyers pleaded that Vasseur's mother had always treated him as a little girl, and to assert himself outwardly he committed violent acts.

Jack Pankey Announces Retirement

Pankey, 51, will leave the post Nov. 30, ending a career in the council of more than 12 years. His replacement has not been announced by Council President David Agnew Sr.

Agnew lauded Pankey for his work here, saying, "He has been here 12 years and is very much beloved in the council which covers the parishes of the Fifth Congressional District. His devoted friends will miss him greatly for his dedicated life as scout executive, and wish him well in his endeavors wherever he decides to go."

Charged with administrative control of scouting in Ouachita and 13 surrounding parishes since 1953, Pankey plans to continue his service in the movement in another council. His background includes 23 years in professional scouting, and more than 28 as a volunteer and a professional.

"I have served this council over 12 years, and I thank you for all these years from the bottom of my heart," Pankey said in a letter to the council executive board. "You have been wonderful to me over the years.

"I feel now that it is time to pursue my scouting work in another council. I will always feel that I am a part of this council, and will continue to do all I can to see it grow where ever I am," Pankey said.

He urged leaders "to move out and complete the Service Center that we started, expand camping facilities and build an army of volunteers so that the boys will realize a greatly enriched program."

The council in the 12 years saw a growth in boy membership from 2,780 to 5,095, with the number of troops, Cub packs and Explorer posts increasing from 133 to 180. A total of 323 boys attained the top Eagle rank since 1952.

Also instituted during the Pankey years were the council's annual Big Show (a council-wide exposition of scouting skills) and the annual council parade in Monroe.

A $25,000 dining hall was built at the scouts' Camp Kiroli near West Monroe, the camping program was revised and Kiroli is listed as one of America's top-rated camps. A rifle range and numerous items of equipment were added, in addition to the furnishing and equipping of the scout office on North Sixth Street in Monroe.

at the University of Arkansas, the University of Michigan and Indiana University.

His early years were devoted to coaching, but Pankey entered scouting in Arkansas as a volunteer worker. After joining the movement as a professional, he held key posts in Arkansas, where his interest in water sports made him instrumental in the organization of a six-state aquatics school.

Married to the former D. Evelyn Simpson, Pankey had a son and two daughters.

Nursing Home Group To Meet In Alexandria

ALEXANDRIA (Special) — Changes which the Medicare Bill will bring about in nursing homes and nursing care will be the main topics at the annual convention of the Louisiana Nursing Home Association, which will be held in Alexandria, Nov. 10, 11 and 12.

The three-day convention is expected to attract several hundred people from nursing homes and related facilities. Exhibitors and speakers will attend from all over the nation.

Principal speakers will be former senator, and now commissioner of Louisiana Department of Public Welfare, Garland F. Bonin; Dr. Thomas T. Weil, Tulane School of Medicine; members of the Louisiana legislature, and Harold Smith, president of Licensed Nursing Homes of Louisiana.

"One of the most important goals of Louisiana's nursing homes is to let the public know how much improvement has been made in nursing homes in the past 10 years," Smith said.

"With the coming of Medicare, additional changes are going to be asked of nursing homes in the state, and we must be prepared."

"Plans for the 1966 educational program to meet the new demands on nursing homes and nursing home administrators will be made at the convention," Smith said.

LSU Officials Credit People For NSF Grant

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Officials of Louisiana State University are crediting the people of Louisiana and their elected officials for LSU's record breaking $3,787,000 grant from the National Science Foundation.

Awarded to develop and strengthen the scientific program on LSU's Baton Rouge campus, the "Centers of Excellence" grant is the tenth to be announced by the NSF. Only 15 such grants are to be awarded. Other Southern institutions which have received similar grants are the Universities of Florida and Virginia, and Rice.

LSU's proposal, which was approved in entirety by the foundation, calls for accelerated improvement in the areas of chemistry, physics, mathematics and geology.

University President John A. Hunter said that recent support of the University by the state had tipped the scales in favor of LSU for the grant.

"Financial backing by Governor McKeithen and the legislature made it possible for LSU to bring salaries of academic and research personnel up to a level which impressed the National Science Foundation," he said.

Filipino Currency Is Freed

MANILA (AP) —Three days before national elections president Diosdado Macapagal freed the Filipino currency Saturday, reaffirmed a pro-Western foreign policy and pledged to send a military unit to help South Viet Nam.

Macapagal expressed beaming confidence at a news conference that he would be elected to a second term in Tuesday's voting and added:

"Our ultimate ambition is to be able to show that a democracy where people can live in prosperity and freedom can be established in Asia."

While Macapagal was claiming victory by at least 650,000 votes, his chief opponent, Sen. Ferdinand Marcos, was claiming he would win an even larger majority. Impartial election observers rated the election, one of the most hard-fought in Philippine history, a toss-up.

Macapagal's action in freeing the currency and peggint the peso rate at 3.90 to the dollar was an evident election move to win support from the nation's businessmen.

Although the free market rate is also 3.90 to the dollar and has been steady for more than two years, businessmen have asked for a pegged rate as an insurance for long-term projects.

They also had asked the removal of a technical requirement whereby 20 per cent of their dollar earnings had to be retained in Philippine banks. This requirement, now removed, was the last major restriction on the peso.

Marcos has been making much in his campaign of business complaints of tight credit and an alleged stagnation of the economy. Macapagal replied that the economy is growing at better than 6 per cent yearly and expressed belief that Saturday's measures would give the economy a further shot in the arm.

He said the Philippines had available $395.2 million in foreign exchange resources to back the value of the peso and insure that no black market in dollars developed.

Y's Speaker Here Issues Challenge

The one-day Eastern District Conference of the Y's Men's Club held here was ended Saturday night with keynote speaker John Heetland, the club's Southwest Region international director from Amarillo, Tex., challenging the clubs to a five point improvement program.

Heetland, speaking on "What Is This Think Called Y's Men?" asked each club to organize and charter a new club in the region; to make pledges to the club's scholarship fund, world service fund and international building fund; to send a delegate to the international convention in Honolulu, Hawaii, next year, and to help secure $50,000 for the region.

His primary challenge was for all clubs except the charter-limited Vicksburg, Miss., club to increase their membership by 50 per cent in the next year.

Heetland said the "wonderful convention" was the first he had attended that had every district club represented. Delegates from the district's five clubs—Monroe, Shreveport, Memphis, Tenn., Vicksburg, Miss., and Natchez, Miss. were there.

He outlined the club's organization in 1922 by Judge Paul William Alexander and told how the membership today has reached the 18,000 mark. The club has 750 branches in 44 countries.

The five major service areas were also touched on by Heetland. He reminded the members of their obligations to youth work, Young Men's Christian Association membership aid, young adults' clubs, the Bishop Fund and the Paul William Alexander Scholarship Fund.

The Bishop Fund helps send delegates to international conventions in other countries. The scholarship fund provides education for YMCA secretaries. Funds collected at the conference were sent to this fund.

New member patches were presented to the Vicksburg and Fort Worth, Tex., clubs for bringing in five new members each during the last six months.

Crandell coordinated the event, which was hosted by the local Twin Cities club.

LSU Officials Credit People For NSF Grant

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Officials of Louisiana State University are crediting the people of Louisiana and their elected officials for LSU's record breaking $3,787,000 grant from the National Science Foundation.

Awarded to develop and strengthen the scientific program on LSU's Baton Rouge campus, the "Centers of Excellence" grant is the tenth to be announced by the NSF. Only 15 such grants are to be awarded. Other Southern institutions which have received similar grants are the Universities of Florida and Virginia, and Rice.

LSU's proposal, which was approved in entirety by the foundation, calls for accelerated improvement in the areas of chemistry, physics, mathematics and geology.

University President John A. Hunter said that recent support of the University by the state had tipped the scales in favor of LSU for the grant.

"Financial backing by Governor McKeithen and the legislature made it possible for LSU to bring salaries of academic and research personnel up to a level which impressed the National Science Foundation," he said.

Filipino Currency Is Freed

MANILA (AP) —Three days before national elections president Diosdado Macapagal freed the Filipino currency Saturday, reaffirmed a pro-Western foreign policy and pledged to send a military unit to help South Viet Nam.

Macapagal expressed beaming confidence at a news conference that he would be elected to a second term in Tuesday's voting and added:

"Our ultimate ambition is to be able to show that a democracy where people can live in prosperity and freedom can be established in Asia."

While Macapagal was claiming victory by at least 650,000 votes, his chief opponent, Sen. Ferdinand Marcos, was claiming he would win an even larger majority. Impartial election observers rated the election, one of the most hard-fought in Philippine history, a toss-up.

Macapagal's action in freeing the currency and peggint the peso rate at 3.90 to the dollar was an evident election move to win support from the nation's businessmen.

Although the free market rate is also 3.90 to the dollar and has been steady for more than two years, businessmen have asked for a pegged rate as an insurance for long-term projects.

They also had asked the removal of a technical requirement whereby 20 per cent of their dollar earnings had to be retained in Philippine banks. This requirement, now removed, was the last major restriction on the peso.

Marcos has been making much in his campaign of business complaints of tight credit and an alleged stagnation of the economy. Macapagal replied that the economy is growing at better than 6 per cent yearly and expressed belief that Saturday's measures would give the economy a further shot in the arm.

He said the Philippines had available $395.2 million in foreign exchange resources to back the value of the peso and insure that no black market in dollars developed.

GEYSERS SPOUT POWER

CHICAGO (AP) — Geysers such as Yellowstone Park's "Old Faithful" in the Rocky Mountains are drawing government study as possible sources of natural and relatively new energy source — geothermal power.

Geothermal power, generating in the inner earth for eons, is energy in the form of hot water or steam produced through the earth's self-contained heat.

A Senate-approved measure is now before the House that proposes they open geothermal power to development by private enterprise on public lands with the goal of providing new sources of electrical energy and valuable minerals.

Production of geothermal steam electric power for public use is now in operation in several counties, principally Italy, New Zealand and Iceland.

Refugees Still Wary

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Miami's large exile colony looked forward Saturday to thousands of family reunions as a U.S.-Cuban agreement opened the door for mass refugee airlifts, but they insisted that getting Prime minister Fidel Castro out is more important.

Juanita Castro, sister of Fidel and Armed Forces Minister Raul Castro, not anticipating a family reunion, echoed the general exile sentiment: "The flights that will bring thousands of refugees will afford many families the opportunity of happy reunion in this land of freedom.

"But now, more than ever before, it is urgent to intensify the fight to liquidate the Red regime of Cuba. The seven million Cubans who are victims of that dictatorship also have a right to freedom. They will be able to get it only through liberation of Cuba from the Communist yoke."

Revolutionary Unity, one of the largest exile organizations made this statement: "This episode constitutes an important liberation of Cuba. Fidel Castro has made a tactical error in permitting the exodus of refugees. It indicates the disastrous state of the Cuban economy.

"The fact that the United States has opened its doors to the refugees does not signify in any sense, as we interpret it, that it intends to negotiate anything further with Communist Cuba."

Disappointment was expressed throughout the large exile colony over apparent exclusion of draft-age youths and political prisoners from the migration.

"Political prisoners should have top priority," said Dr. Ernesto Freyre, foreign relations coordinator of the Cuban exile representation.

Andres Nazario Sargent, secretary of the Revolutionary Alliance, a militant anti-Castro group, whose commander, Eloy Gutierrez Menoyo, is a prisoner in Cuba, said: "All Cuban families greet this accord with sympathy.

THIS THREE-BEDROOM, two-bath house is not as large as many ranches, but the architect has provided it with numerous luxury features, including two terraces, one of which gives a warm appearance to the front entrance.

Modest Ranch Provides Gracious Living Elements

By ANDY LANG

The big problem of the architect asked to design a house of modest proportions is to provide all the amenities expected by modern families.

Where there are no restrictions on square footage or over-all dimensions, the architect can proceed to incorporate all the features necessary for gracious living, concentrating on good design. But he faces a challenge when attempting to furnish "extras" to the owner of a house under 1500 square feet of living area.

Architect Lester Cohen has met that challenge successfully in the latest House of the Week, a three - bedroom ranch with two baths, two terraces, a fireplace, an outdoor barbecue, a family room, a laundry - mud room and plenty of storage and closet space—items that would do credit to a much larger house.

OBJECTIVE

Cohen has accomplished his objective by utilizing all space effectively to enable some areas to perform double duty. The 28' living - dining expanse at the front of the house has the advantage of two separate rooms, but they are placed in line so that, when a big gathering is planned, they work together as a spacious unit. The handy access to the kitchen saves steps for the hostess during the period of entertainment.

The family room and the kitchen employ the same principle of separate but unified sections, with the open breakfast bar acting as a divider. There is a corner fireplace in the family room, with glass doors leading to the rear terrace. The big stone chimney for the fireplace extends out to the terrace, where there is a barbecue unit with a seat or buffet arrangement next to it. Architect Cohen suggests that one part of this terrace can be screened in, with an awning placed over the remainder.

COMPACT KITCHEN

The compact kitchen, with its convenient L-counters on two sides and appliances right at hand, has a window over the sink and looking out on the terrace. Next to the kitchen is a laundry - mud room, with a pantry, rear door, two closets, an entrance to the garage and access to the basement.

To the left of the center hall are the three bedrooms and two bathrooms. The bathroom in the master bedroom has a dressing area. The baths, the hall and the closets are located to serve the additional function of a sound buffer between the bedroom wing and the living section of the house.

TERRACES

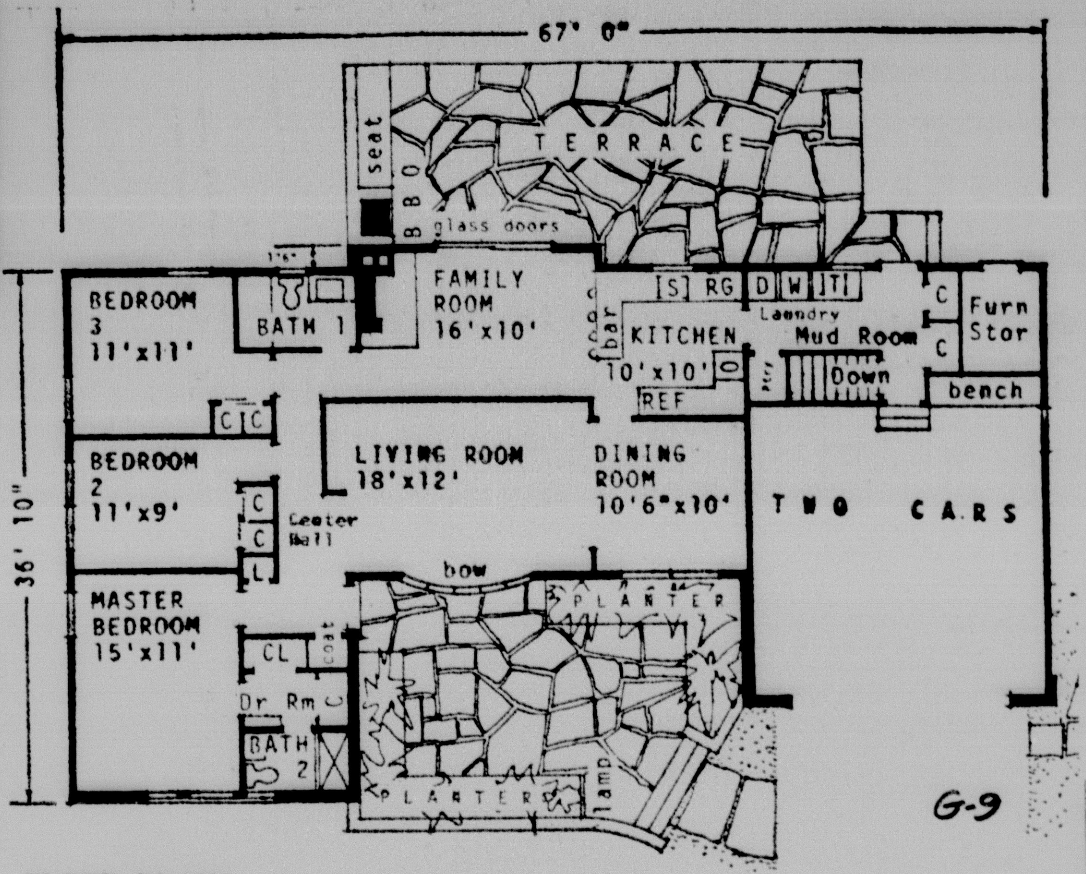
Indoor-outdoor family life is well taken care of by the previously-mentioned rear terrace and a second terrace at the front. The one at the front is large enough for the easy placement of a full set of outdoor furniture. It also serves to give the entire house a look of welcome, with its flagstoned floor, corner planters and graceful lamp post. Adding to the warm atmosphere is the living room's bow window, which extends slightly into the terrace.

The two-car garage has room at its rear for a workbench, while a spacious, enclosed storage section behind the garage provides a place to store furniture, garden equipment and toys.

The living area of Design G-9's six rooms is 1292 square feet, not including the mud room.

Over-all dimensions are 67' by 36' 10". The includes the garage, but 1' 6" must be added to the depth for the extension of the family room at the rear. While this is far from a big house, it includes many of the features found in much larger homes. A good job of packaging.

A full study of this architect - designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan G-9.



FLOOR PLANS: Complete utilization of all available space is readily apparent in this floor plan; note complete service and storage area in back of two-car garage.

Open Meeting For Republicans Set In Natchez

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Gerald R. Ford, House Republican leader, said Saturday that he is advised that a Nov. 15 Republican luncheon meeting in Natchez, Miss., at which he will speak, will be open to anyone paying the admission charge.

"I assume anyone attending the luncheon is interested in building the two-party system in Mississippi through the Republican Party," Ford said.

His remarks were contained in a telegram to Charles Evers, Mississippi field director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Evers, in a telegram to Ford, said the Republican Party of Natchez is a "total segregated party."

Children's Play Rated 'Spritely'

The walls of Strauss Playhouse resounded with laughter and excitement Saturday afternoon for the opening performance of "Winnie - the - Pooh." Although The Little Theatre has presented children's plays in years past, this was the first production since the organization of a separate children's program and The Theatre School met the occasion with a spritely rendition of a perennial favorite.

The stage version of A. A. Milne's classic met the challenge of interpreting a well loved story with lively enthusiasm, and most of the credit for a delightful afternoon must go to Murray Burfford, director of The Theatre School. Miss Burfford obviously knows what she is doing, for the show is unequalled as a treat for the young, as well as the not so young. The young actors and actresses obviously loved what they were doing, and so of course did their audience, for such delight transcends footlights and the audience was as much a part of the joy onstage as was the cast.

In reviewing a children's play it is extremely difficult to judge each character's performance, so we will content ourselves with a listing of the cast plus one critical word. The play was obviously well named since Sherry Harris's interpretation of the amiable headliner was most gratifying.

A large part of the responsibility for the success of this charming version of one of childhood's milestones can be laid directly at the feet of Frank Fragala, who took time from his busy life to design the colorful costumes. His faithful execution of Ernest H. Shepard's drawings enhanced the charm of the production and made the play much more than an adaption of a well loved story. As models he used treasured replicas of the original animals which were generously loaned to The Little Theater by the Oakley children whose grandmother, Mrs. C. D. Oakley Sr., had lovingly collected them. Cast mothers sewed Mr. Fragala's creations to create an authentic 'World of Pooh''.

Tickets for "Winnie the Pooh" are available for this afternoon and next Saturday and Sunday. The performance starts each afternoon at 2:30 and tickets may be obtained by calling 323-1235 between 10:30 and 2:30 on weekends or at the door for each show if they are not sold out.

Man Accused Of Embezzling $1.5 Million

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Howard L. Raley, 30, and accountant described as mild-mannered and without expensive tastes, has been accused of embezzling more than $1.5 million from two companies in three years.

More than half of the $1,555,800 total, the Baltimore grand jury said in representments returned Friday, was taken this year.

Raley, an employe of the Ramsay, Scarlett & Co. steamship agency for six years, was charged last September with taking $60,000 in February and April. He has been in jail since then in default of $120,000 bail.

The new charges, brought after a further check of company books, accuse him of stealing and embezzling the larger sum from the steamship agency and the Baltimore Stevedoring Co., a subsidiary.

The grand jury said Raley stole $880,500 this year through the the use of 29 checks.

A separate presentment also charges he altered one check to raise it from $4,500 to $34,500.

There was no indication in the presentments of what was done with the missing money.

Investigators said one had been recovered.

They said Raley, married and the father of one child, lived with his family in a modestly furnished apartment and was not known as a lavish spender.

Health Meeting Criticized For Few Catholics

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John C. Knott criticized Saturday the recent White House Conference on Health as not having enough Catholic representation.

The director of the Family Life Bureau of the National Catholic Welfare Conference said in a statement, "The programming was an insult to thousands of Catholic agencies and millions of American citizens."

He said that of more than 90 speakers, only one was identifiable as Catholic.

"In the panel discussions on family planning there was no one representing the official teaching authority of the Catholic church," he said. "This session was dominated and controlled by the advocates of contraception, sterilization and abortion and by the promoters of government interference into marital privacy.

"The programming was an insult to thousands of Catholic agencies and millions of American citizens. It was particularly demeaning that the White House, the symbol of everything good in our nation's history, should be used as a propaganda platform for an anti-life philosophy which is contradictory to our deepest traditions."

Officials who planned the conference have left Washington and were not available for comment. The White House itself declined comment.

Ladies Of The Force

Monroe Morning World

Sunday Features

Editorials — Spotlight — Sports

Monroe, La., Sunday, Nov. 7, 1965 1-B

Women are carrying on vital phases of work in the operations of the Monroe Police Department, and the outlook is for their duties to increase.

By VERNON GUIDRY
Staff Writer

Skirts and blouses the uniform of the day? Is that any way to run a police department? Chief James C. Kelly Jr. answers with an emphatic yes where the 11 ladies of the Monroe department are concerned.

While the primary reason for employing women is to release men for patrol duties, the chief rates the 11 - member "powder puff" police, who work as clerks, secretaries, radio - switchboard operators and meter maids, high on their own ability and contributions to the der rtment.

"These people are a real credit to the department and we are pleased and proud to have them," Kelly said and added that the ladies have done much to improve records keeping methods and office procedures.

LONG TERM WORKERS

The feeling must be mutual. The average employment time for nine of the distaff members is seven and a half years. The tenth and eleventh members have been recently hired for newly created posts in preparation for the move to the new city hall in July of 1966.

Who are the women who wear the two-tone blue of Monroe's finest, and what do they do?

The voice that says "Monroe Police Department" to incoming calls more often than not belongs to one of the radio - switchboard operators who work in shifts around-the-clock.

Fifteen - year veteran Mrs. Cathlene Bryan mans the radio from 6 a.m. until 2 p.m. On the "2-10" shift is Mrs. Eloise Haywood, also with 15 years on the job. Working the grave yard or 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. shift is Mrs. Hazel Ray, a relative newcomer with two years on the force. Mrs. Bryan's husband is also on the force. He is J. C. Bryan, a detective.

The ladies' duties include handling incoming calls via the telephone and outgoing calls via the radio to the department's mobile units. Those holding down this job are sworn in just as male officers are, and are sometimes called on to act as matrons and operatives.

SPECIAL ASSIGNMENT

In one such instance, a radio operator was used as a decoy. A local woman reported to police that she was receiving obscene phone calls. Police instructed the woman to make a date with the caller. The policewoman showed up at the appointed time and place — amply protected by plainclothes detectives — and when the contact was made, the police had the offender.

The radio operators are often called on as escorts in juvenile cases and others where a "chaperon" is needed, in most cases to protect the male officer from unfounded charges placed by offenders seeking to discredit the force. At other times, the women are used when their presence aids questioning of female suspects or witnesses. The fictional portrayal of the policewoman with a gun in her purse who works solely on crime detection is, however, a long way off for Monroe. Kelly said that the duties of the ladies on the force will remain mostly centered in the office.

The ladies more familiar to the populace are probably the meter maids. When a motorist finds that little yellow envelope under his car's windshield wiper that informs him that he has overparked, he has had an informal introduction to one of the two ladies who search for the red violation flags on the automated sentinels of public parking.

METER MAIDS

Two ladies look after the meters — their official title is meter clerk — and also guard Monroe's "no parking" areas. They are Mrs. Jessie Jordan and Mrs. Vera Minor. The meter maids work during office hours, which are the peak downtown traffic hours.

The department has three secretaries at present, with two to be called stenographers to fit the civil service structure when the move is made to the new city hall.

The chief's secretary is Mrs. Eloyce Tannehill, a pretty, dark-haired young lady who fairly bristles with efficiency. Her duties include keeping the general file for the chief's office, personnel files, payroll and budget information, in addition to a secretary's traidtional duties.

Mrs. Laura Roberts, whose husband is motorcycle officer John Roberts, is secretary to S. G. Martin, assistant chief. Miss Margaret Woodruff is the secretary for Major H. B. Johnson's detective section. These ladies also work on material for felony cases such as transcriptions of interrogations and investigating officers' reports, thus the stenographer label.

CLERKS

Rounding off the 11-member staff are the three clerks. These staffers are charged with the general office work, filing and the like.

Mrs. Francis O'Neal, with eight years tenure, is the backbone of this group and was until recently its only member. This category was expanded with the addition of Miss DiAnn Laird and Mrs. Vera Minor. Their hiring and the formation of the traffic violations bureau are among moves aimed at the projected new civic center quarters.

What about the future role of women in the local force? Kelly sees it as bright. A recruitment problem caused by the rather bleak aspect of the old city hall and the physical handicaps caused by the layout of the building will be solved by the new building, and tentative plans for an additional three members of the powder puff force now being considered.

Program Of Many Changes

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — One hundred billion dollars later, even George C. Marshall wouldn't recognize the Marshall Plan.

Over the years, the U. S. foreign aid program has had many names and has seen many changes. It's still big business and it is under continuing scrutiny.

President Johnson has ordered the executive branch to review the program with the intent of asking Congress next year for a long term commitment. If Congress agrees to give up its authority to set terms and ceilings each year, the program will be getting yet another new face.

It began in 1948 under Secretary of State Marshall as U. S. aid to set Western Europe on its feet after World War II. Today it is a program of disbursements to about 104 countries and territories around the globe. The exact number keeps changing with shifts in the political winds.

CHANGE IN EUROPE

A recovered Europe now gets little U.S. aid and hands out considerable help of its own. American assistance flows now to the world's great underdeveloped southern areas — Asia, Africa, Latin America.

The fundamental purpose of U. S. aid always has been to strengthen allies' defenses and to make the nonallied nations less vulnerable to U. S. enemies. Within this general purpose, Washington now concentrates its development dollars on a handful of the economically most promising countries. Much of the rest of U. S. aid is spread far, for various political reasons.

DEMONSTRATION

Congressional approval of $3.22 billion in foreign aid for the coming fiscal year is another demonstration of how the face of foreign aid legislation has been changing. This was only $232 million, or less than 7 per cent, below what President Johnson had asked. Last year Congress voted $3.25 billion, a $267 million reduction, or 7.5 per cent below the presidential request.

One reason for aid's smoother sailing on Capitol Hill has been that Johnson has been keeping his requests low and portraying them as a bare bones minimum needed for effective aid projects.

Another was the death last year of House Appropriations Committee Chairman Clarence Cannon, D-Mo. That put pro-administration Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., in this influential position. Cannon had allowed a subcommittee under Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., an arch critic of the program, to wield a heavy axe.

Still another may be the persuasiveness of David E. Bell, chief of the Agency for International Development (AID), as foreign aid is now called. He has been on the job for nearly three years, longer than any of his predecessors. There is also a growing sophistication by both aid officials and congressmen as their experience with overseas aid lengthens.

The administration, and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman, J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., believe AID legislation can win still easier passage in future years if Congress agrees to a long term authorization. That way the program would go through the congressional mill just once a year — in a money bill — instead of the historical two-step procedure under which Congress has first passed each year an authorization measure naming aid terms and ceilings.

The review ordered by Johnson is not expected to emerge with proposals for far reaching changes. Foreign aid reviews in past years have not done as much to revamp the program as have other events—changes in the world scene and government moves to deal with them. This can be seen from a rough division of the changing character of U. S. aid into three phases:

THREE PHASES

1. Marshall Plan — the four year program, 1948-1952, primarily about $14.5 billion in U. S. economic assistance to put industrial Europe back on its feet.

2. Mutual security — during the 1950s large arms shipments to allies and economic aid to strategic countries rimming the Communist world; plus a start on economic development projects in backward countries.

3. Decades of development — for the 1960s and an indefinite number of years thereafter, long - range programs designed to bring the undeveloped nations to the point of economic takeoff on their own.

As the focus of U. S. aid has changed over the years and the experience of U. S. officials in applying it has increased, different methods of dispensing U. S. help have developed.

For instance, most American economic assistance now goes out in dollar repayable loans, rather than gifts or grants.

In the Marshall Plan period, only $1.5 billion of economic assistance was in loans, $13 billion was in gifts. By 1964 the ratio was reversed, loans climbing to $1.3 billion and gifts reduced to $800 million.

MORE EFFECTIVE

AID has also found loans repayable in dollars a more effective instrument than those repayable in soft local currencies. And under pressure from Congress, the U. S. loan rates have advanced. U. S. economic development loans now, by law, charge at least 2.5 per cent, and AID raises the rate as aid receiving countries become more able to pay.

During the Marshall Plan period less than one fifth of the U. S. assistance was military. Ten years ago, during the mutual security buildup, two thirds of U. S. aid was in arms. Today two thirds is economic, one third military.

After a Marshall Plan policy under which the dollar could be spent anywhere, the United States late in the Eisenhower administration began to impose buy American restrictions on U. S. aid expenditures. Today some 90 per cent of AID dollars is spent on U. S. goods and services. This, Bell says, keeps AID's impact on the gold out flow low.

NEW TYPES

New forms of U. S. overseas assistance have come on the scene. The surplus commodities program, now called Food for Peace, is climbing near $2 billion a year after small beginnings in the 1950s. A late entry is the Peace Corps — volunteers for grass roots help abroad.

International organizations and consortiums, to which the United States is a heavy contributor, are playing a much bigger role in the economic aid picture. From less than $200 million in 1953, international organization outlays in economic aid hit nearly $1.5 billion last year.

According to AID's latest count, 65 nations are receiving U. S. arms, 79 countries and three territories are getting economic assistance, and 85 countries and five territories are receiving U. S. farm surpluses.

Bell's aim is to whittle away the list by helping countries become strong enough to start paying their own way. AID figures the best way is to concentrate its dollars on those countries whose own self help, planning and reforms give the brightest prospects for success.

In the present aid program three quarters of the economic development loans are ear-marked for only seven countries — India, Brazil, Pakistan, Chile, Nigeria, Tunisia and Turkey. Most military assistance goes to four countries — Korea, Laos, Viet Nam, Jordan. In the rest of the countries around the world American aid amounts to comparatively little in each case.

Bell's avowed aim is to expand another list — of countries that need no further American economic handouts.

This list now totaling 26 countries — so far is made up mainly of the European nations plus a few others who were not too badly off to start with.

The latest addition was Nationalist China, whose economy AID proudly noted has spurted far with $25 billion U. S. economic help over 20 years. However the Chinese still get American arms and food.

There is another list which AID is not so happy about — countries in which U.S. aid has been turned on or off for political reasons.

India and Pakistan are the latest examples. U. S. aid which could amount to well over $1 billion for the sub-continent is temporarily on the shelf because of their war over Kashmir.

Indonesia, Cambodia, Burma have spurned American Assistance as part of their anti U.S. stance. Ceylon took herself off the aid list, then went back on.

Washington cut off aid to Cuba after Fidel Castro took over. The United States snapped its assistance to Haiti in disagreement with the Duvalier regime.

Whether Egypt will continue to get American help is now being weighed by U. S. policy makers in light of President Gamal Abdel Nasser's sometimes defiant posture toward the United States.

On the other hand heavy infusions of U. S. aid are being poured into South Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic for political reasons. In Viet Nam, Washington is all out to prevent a red takeover. In Santo Domingo it wants a stable productive economy built from the ashes of the 1965 civil war.

THE CHANGING pattern of American foreign aid includes the development of the Peace Corps. Here Peace Corps volunteers Larry Sandvol, 21, of Grace City, N. D., cares for a sheep which belongs to a family in the province of Carchi in Ecuador. Members of the family watch him. Starting with the Marshall Plan, foreign aid was first one-fifth military, then two-thirds, and today is one-third military and two-thirds economic.

"FOOD FOR PEACE," using American surplus commodities, is one of the newer forms of foreign aid developed since the program was started after World War Two. In India, where population growth outruns food increases, Calcutta children line up during distribution of rice from the U.S. Recently economic aid to India, and also to Pakistan, was cut off as pressure to stop fighting over Kashmir. School Superintendents

Except where self-succession is prohibited by law, public officials who are elected by the people appear generally to stay in office longer than those who are elected by and are under the supervision of boards. Of course qualifications for various public offices vary and, once a man has qualified for a certain position, he seldom pauses to consider how long he will remain in office.

Sheriffs who give satisfaction perhaps are, on an average, the longest holders of public office. They may retain such a position for some 20 or 30 years. On the other hand, according to the National Education Association, in "A Special Weekly Report on Educational Affairs," a school superintendent's stay in any particular community ranges from eight to 10 years.

This relatively brief tenure, a University of Chicago study suggested, is because "superintendents have infinitely more chances to make enemies than friends"; the friends tend to be lukewarm, the enemies bitter and decided; and superintendents face re-election every few years by an ever-changing board.

Often a change in superintendency stems from friction between the board and the superintendent and frequently the friction is caused by disagreement over who is responsible for what. To hold his job, the superintendent, as a rule, must be not only a good administrator but must be a diplomat in his relations with the board. If he arouses no personal animosity, he is much more likely to succeed in carrying on a program of which he approves.

If a superintendent thus succeeds in winning the general approbation of the board and if he is able to convince the members of the soundness of his policy, the schools will run on a much smoother basis than when the board attempts to make every decision regarding policy. An ever-changing board might mean an ever-changing policy, whereas, a superintendent with a good policy and the ability to win the support of the board members may keep the same policy in effect over long periods. This makes for less friction, not only between the board members and the superintendent but within the schools themselves and among the teachers.

A contribution aimed at resolving differences between school boards and superintendents is being offered by a committee of 15 educational and civic leaders named by the New York board of regents to inquire into problems of educational leadership. The committee, headed by James A. Perkins, Cornell University president, made suggestions concerning selection and performance of school boards. Staff director Frederick H. Stutz, Cornell's dean of education, said many of its recommendations can apply to schools in other states.

"It is important," the report said, "that there be as clear an understanding as possible for the responsibilities of the board in regard to both the chief school officer and the state."

It is constantly repeated that the board has the responsibility of making all policies while the superintendent has the responsibility for administering those policies. The report stated that: . . . "There is increasing evidence that boards do not in fact lead in the determination of educational policy but act to implement and support programs determined either by the state or by professional administrators."

Commenting on a proposal that chief school officers be chosen somewhat as college presidents and corporation executives are selected, with an eye toward their administrative talents, even if they lack professional preparation as school administrators, the committee suggested that alternate routes toward certification be considered.

If school boards make generally broad policies for the schools for which they are responsible and if they act to prevent objectionable matter and methods from being injected into the operation of the schools, it is thought the schools will function on a more solid and stable basis than if the school board members themselves are constantly trying to inject new and minor policies which keep superintendents, teachers and pupils disturbed.

Guarded Optimism

As federal money pours into Southern Appalachia — a strip of hill and mountain terrain running from West Virginia to the middle of Alabama — migrants pour into large cities, bringing with them scores of children and kinfolk. They pack themselves into "hillbilly" slums of Chicago, Detroit, Columbus, and Cincinnati, creating ghettos of a sort — but with a basic difference.

The hillbilly slum dwellers don't agitate and picket city hall. They come from a tradition of strong family loyalty, personal courage and a code of honor passed down through generations of Scotch-Irish and Scottish Highlander ancestors. They may create a housing problem, but they refuse to seek assistance. One Detroit policemen put it this way: "They'd darn near rather starve than take anything from welfare people. They'll split what they have and help each other. But they won't ask for anything."

One problem which troubles city officials is that of education. Many mountain folk, long accustomed to one-room schools, have little regard for education. This attitude is passed down to their children. For example, the Columbus, Ohio school system tries to cope with high enrollment turnover and overcrowded classrooms produced by migrants flocking into the district. School officials are kept-up-to-date on the migrant flow so as to better handle the flood of new families. Columbus has 34 teacher-counselors who spend much of their time visiting migrant homes to make them understand the need for educating their children. Truancy is commonplace.

Churches are quite active in aiding the poverty-stricken families. This, at least, is the type of aid the migrants understand.

Two paradoxes stand out in the Appalachia situation. As more funds pour in, more people move out. It will take years to industrialize the region enough to keep people there. So, while Federal aid to assist these people is funneled down, they've passed it up for the city.

The second paradox: after the backwoods folk get to the city, they lack education and unaccustomed to urban life, face many problems.

It's difficult for the unskilled to find work. And usually their families are large, thereby limiting their selection of places to live. They often fall prey to unscrupulous landlords. They are usually unaware of the city services available to the poor, and even when they learn, their mountain pride won't let them seek help.

As it stands, a great mass of people for whom federal and city aid is intended is not being benefited. If all the migrants were adult, it would not be such a sensitive matter. But when children's education is involved, the problem is obvious.

But with all the problems created by the migrants, it's refreshing to hear the virtues of individuality and self-reliance are still extant among the nation's poor. It would be interesting to hear what a mountaineer's reaction would be were he reminded how downgraded and poor he was. The chances are he'd fix the culprit with a rifle-barrel stare and say, "mind your own business."

Home Rule And Crime

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Your editorial in today's paper "Home Rule and Crime" is the best I have ever read. "The district was created out of the territory of Maryland and Virginia, and surrendered to the national government because of the need for a capital city. Thus the entire country has a stake in the kind of government that exists in Washington."

You have hit the nail on the head.

American Democracy

To the Editor

The people of America do not have the free exercise of democracy anymore. Some people do not even know what democracy means anymore. Most people are just riding along in this world. They say, "what can I do? I'll just let someone else tend to it." But the little secret they don't know is that no one else is tending to it either, except communist and the left-wingist.

Democracy means government by the people; government by the people means freedom. If the government was run by the people we would still have our own individual liberties, and the sovereign rights of our states.

Some of the effects of this could be the direction of our "so-called nation's" growth. I believe that the direction of our "so-called nation's" growth, was and is dependent upon the varied influences that shape the life and the thought of each citizen. If our individual liberties are taken away by the people in Washington D. C. we will not have very many influences to shape the life and the thought of each citizen.

I feel that democracy is the foundation of America. When Federal Registrars moved into the South and registered illerate people, some not of age, it is positive proof that democracy is one step closer to being wiped out of America. Another good example is when the Civil Rights Bill of 1964 was crammed down the throats of unsuspecting and shocked citizens. It seems to me that this bill was passed to infringe upon many of our individual liberties. These liberties have been ours since the signing of the Constitution and have never been infringed upon bebefore now.

Our Founding Fathers crossed the seas, fought, struggled, shed their blood and lived their lives to protect these individual liberties for their children and generations to come. Only by democracy did they keep their individual liberties and freedom which were so precious to them. By seeing so many of their relatives and friends suffer and die trying to establish their ideas of democracy, they became even more dedicated.

I feel that if democracy is wiped out of America, freedom will never be known in this world again. We should follow in the footsteps of our Founding Fathers. It is our duties as citizens not to let down. Our freedom and individual liberties were handed down from them. They looked to God for guidance in the right direction of democracy and their lives. The American Revolution was not only a war for independence from the mother country, but was at the same time a struggle for democracy at home.

I am writing as an American, helping to preserve this great country of ours, and I shall continue my very best efforts in this direction.

Ellender On 14-b

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Recently the drive to repeal Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act was temporarily abandoned because of the U. S. Senate's strong resistance. Adoption of the repeal bill would have stripped all states of their right to outlaw compulsory unionism and would have nullified the Right To Work laws of 19 states.

Louisiana's senior senator deserves praise for having aligned himself with the defenders of Section 14(b). Senator Allen J. Ellender voted with a majority of his colleagues to defeat a motion which, if passed, would have paved the way for adoption of the repeal bill.

Every citizen who values individual freedom owes a debt to Senator Ellender. His constituents can rely upon him to stand firm when the 14(b) fight is resumed in Congress next year.

Russians' Graves Tell Good Story

THREE GRAVES at Finn's Point National Cemetery, Ft. Mott State Park, N. J., should haunt and help the conscience and the comprehension of Americans. They are the graves of three Russian soldiers who 20 years ago chose suicide rather than return to their Communist homeland.

It is said these three soldiers were the first to die on American soil as a consequence of their fight against the Communist enemy.

How did this terribly meaningful but almost completely forgotten event come about?

In 1945, Ft. Dix, N. J., held some 150 Russian soldiers as prisoners - of - war. After capture by the Germans, they had volunteered to fight on the side of Germany. They were listed as German POWs when captured by American forces, but under terms of the Yalta agreement we were obligated to return all Soviet citizens to the Soviet Union.

At the time, apparently, it was difficult for anyone involved with this handful of hapless captives to imagine why they had fought on the side of the Nazis or why they might not be overjoyed to be sent back to Russia.

THE FIRST POINT was one of the cruelest turnings of World War II. To many Russians who became German soldiers, the oppression of Nazism was the same as the terrorism of the Communists. Many also felt the Communists were invaders of their country, and they welcomed any chance to fight them — even if it had to be in a German uniform. The Nazis exploited these Russians as ruthlessly as had the Communists.

The second point was made obvious at Fort Dix the day an attempt was made to begin the repatriation. The Russians riotously protested the move.

The same thing happened in other POW camps here and in Europe. But the order ground ahead inexorably. Tens of thousands of Russians were shipped off. Later evidence showed that almost all were either killed on the spot when they disembarked in the hands of the Communists or were sent to slave labor camps.

Two lieutenants and a private at the Fort Dix camp took the most desperate step of resisance open to them — suicide.

THE ANNIVERSARY this year of their tragic deaths and the tragic betrayal that led to it — a betrayal based upon our failure to see communism for the destructive force it was and is — received virtually no fanfare. So far as I know, only the Young Americans for Freedom and a Russian Orthodox church group marked the event at the grave site.

No one, of course, should condone the act of the three going over to the Nazis; all, however, should recognize the point beyond that.

A YAF announcement this year made a hard point: "It is not too late to let the Russian people and all other Communist enslaved nations know that at last we recognize the identity and nature of the Communist enemy and that we are united in the fight for freedom for all men."

The young men and women who support that statement are right. It is not too late.

But when we think of how short our memories are, of how we continue to indulge in wishful thinking about communism and avert our eyes from the truth (from the graves), we must also realize that time cannot forever be on our side. One of these days, unless we realize it is not too early to see communism consistently and clearly, it could fatally and finally be too late.

Today is Sunday, Nov. 7, the 311th day of 1965 with 54 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase.

The morning star is Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mars, Venus and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1874, Harper's Weekly ran the first cartoon depicting an elephant as the symbol of the Republican party.

In 1962, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of former President Franklin Roosevelt, died at the age of 78.

A thought for the day — American President Franklin Roosevelt said: "The truth is found when men are free to pursue it."

JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Lindsay Not Man For G.O.P. Race

IN ONE OF THE great lines of the 1965 campaign, Critic Noel Parmentel, in Esquire, took a long appraising look at the totality of John Vliet Lindsay. "There is less," he said justly, "than meets the eye."

The same dry summation may be ventured in response to the glad hosannahs of some of the more Liberal observers of the New York elections. Mr. Lindsay won. As a merely putative Republican, he polled 45.99 per cent of the vote, against 40.63 per cent for Democrat Abe Beame, and 13.38 per cent for Conservative William F. Buckley, Jr. It was a good deal less than a landslide, but he won. Hail to the Mayor of New York.

On the day after the election, all the predictable things were said. To the Association Press, Mr. Lindsay had become "a man with presidential credentials in the GOP." In another account, he had become "a major contender for the GOP presidential nomination." He had moved to a "higher plateau" in his party. Mr. Nixon thought it "a great victory," though he prudently added, "for New York." The GOP's national chairman, Ray Bliss, who threw an elbow in passing at Mr. Buckley, thought it a great victory too. To Mr. Bliss, the Republicans who opted for Mr. Buckley were no more than "dissident elements." He hoped they would soon dry up.

THESE REMARKABLE expressions, post, followed upon some equally astounding expressions, ante. During the campaign period, Mr. Lindsay appeared to be universally acclaimed as the great white hope of the Republican party. And Mr. Buckley, who dast to disagree, found himself universally denounced as a spoiler and wrecker.

Joseph Alsop, for example, conceived that a Lindsay victory "would greatly help to promote the kind of national Republican party that might win elections," while Buckley and his hot - eyed backers could only impose "a new and thoroughly nasty pattern on American politics." Walter Lippman, for his part, saw the Buckley candidacy as an "ugly sideshow," with but one object in mind: To prove that no Republican, "even the most attractive and highly qualified Republican," can be elected unless he has surrendered to the Goldwater faction. In the eyes of Evans and Novak, Buckley was a "renegade Republican" who had deserted the "Lindsay regulars." Max Lerner viewed incipient Buckleyism as an impossible medieval philosophy. Eris Sevareid was not amused. Even William S. White, ordinarily a sound fellow, found Mr. Buckley's positions "irrational." The Times and Herald Tribune, it is perhaps needless to add, stayed aghast for six weeks.

A GENTLE suggestion is in order that Mr. Lindsay's adulators go off somewhere and take a long rest. Perhaps some mountain air would clear their heads. The thought needs to be urged upon them that if Mr. Lindsay is 45.99 per cent and bingo in New York, he is not one - two - three and beans beyond the Hudson. The plain and palpable truth is that a Republican presidential candidate could not be found more certainly calculated to destroy his national party altogether than John Lindsay of New York.

Who was the Republican "regular" in this contest? Surely it was not Mr. Lindsay, who deserted his party last year and shunned its label in his own campaign. What are these ideas of Mr. Lindsay that might prove so fruitful in harvesting Republican support? They cannot be Republican ideas, for Mr. Lindsay has abandoned his party position on every significant issue to come before the 89th Congress. The gentleman from New York is as much a presidential Republican as Harry Byrd of Virginia is a presidential Democrat. Mr. Lindsay isn't in his party's mainstream; he isn't even in the bayou.

TO BE SURE, the New Yorker doubtless would do well by the Republican ticket in some me-too minuet in predominantly Liberal States. He would lose by lesser margins than Mr. Goldwater lost. Below the Potomac, where a genuinely moderate conservatism could sweep a whole region for the Republicans, Mr. Lindsay couldn't poll enough votes to get up two tables of bridge. Can anyone imagine Mr. Lindsay taking Kansas, or Nebraska, or Indiana? Can anyone imagine Mr. Lindsay taking Mr. Dirksen? Is it supposed that merely by the magic of his boyish smile, the new Mayor of New York could make of the Midwest a prairie Manhattan? And what did Walter Lippman ever do for the party, anyhow?

No one, perhaps least of all Mr. Buckley, would suggest that what the Republican Party needs in 1968 is another Goldwater - Miller ticket. There is no question that the GOP must seek a broader appeal. Yet some of the basic social and economic principles advocated by Mr. Buckley in his Mayoralty campaign — the principles of individual initiative and free enterprise — must remain among the basic Republican principles if two - party government is to have any meaning. What the party needs in 1968 is probably Dick Nixon of New York. And it is a good thing the Constitution prohibits the choice of another New Yorker to go on his slate.

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY

Lindsay Victory No G.O.P. Boost

WHAT HAPPENED in New York City on Election Day can hardly give comfort to the National Republican Party. The predictable efforts by stalwart Republicans to construe Mr. Lindsay's victory as a victory for the GOP will not bear analysis. I depart from my text for just a moment to acknowledge that I was personally involved in the contest as a candidate of the Conservative Party, so as to put on notice those who desire to believe it, that what I say may be discounted as ideologically self-serving.

Mr. Lindsey did not win as a Republican. No one would stress this point more emphatically than Mr. Lindsay, who in the course of his campaign did everything he could to suppress his party affiliation. He did of course desire the Republican vote, and he voraciously consumed great draughts of Republican money; but he did not on any occasion advise the voters that the Republican Party was the party of liberation from Democratic politics. His literature omitted all mention of Republicanism. Rather it stressed his devoted allegiance to "the principles of John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson." He won at the outset the support of New York's Liberal Party whose bosses, Mr. Dubinsky and Mr. Rose, have never flagged in their devotion to a hard, dogmatic Liberalism. He won the support of the Americans for Democratic Action. He won the support of the New York Post, the Peglerian voice of New York Liberalism. And he even won, incredible to recount, the editorial support of The Nation Magazine, which is the leftwardmost journal of general circulation in the United States.

WHAT IS REMARKABLE, then, is not that Mr. Lindsay won a plurality of New York's voters, but that he did win a number — how many is as yet unknown; not inconceivably, less than 55 per cent — of New York's Republican voters. This may be explainable by simply observing that New York's Republicans, like so many other New Yorkers, desired a change, and that many of them did not believe that Mr. Beame could give them a change. It is, however, most unlikely that those few of them who believed they were voting for a New Face for the Republican Party will succeed in persuading Republicans outside New York's enclave of liberalism that Mr. Lindsay's is the way to political victory for the Republican Party, let alone to philosophical vindication.

Elsewhere, the Republicans, running on Republican principles, did very poorly. In New Jersey an authentic Republican who ran a good fight and dared to say that a State University should not pay the salary of a professor who publicly urged a victory for forces firing bullets at United States Marines, lost ignominiously; and indeed, for the first time since Woodrow Wilson wowed them back in 1910, the Democrats took both houses of the legislature. In Philadelphia, the only other noticeable "Republican" victory went to a gentleman who had been registered as a Democrat and had always voted liberal, and was borrowed by Governor Scranton and Senator Scott to run for D.A.

The Republican Party does not face a dilemma on account of Mr. Lindsay, but most definitely faces a dilemma which Mr. Lindsay's victory does not clarify. It is this: without the conservative wing of the Republican Party, the GOP is dead.

PRISON DETERS

The small son of a friend was reading a newspaper the other night and he came to this head:

"Man Imprisoned for Deserting His Wife."

After a brief pause for thought, he added: "Oh, mum — now I know why dad doesn't leave you."

AIN'T IT SO — Prosperity is when people buy things they can't afford. Recession is when they stop doing it.

DEFINITIONS

Ever try to make up some funny definitions — just to give the ole brain a workout? Here're a few — see how you like them:

Adam — The only man in the world who couldn't say, "Pardon me, haven't I seen you before?"

Alimony — A man's cash surrender value.

Blessed event — When a man's mother - in - law goes home.

Error in judgment — A man who thinks he has an open mind when it's merely vacant.

Husband — A man of few words.

Mystery — How the Joneses do it on that salary.

FIGHTING MEN

What do the fighting men in Viet Nam think about the recent radical group demonstrations against the government policy concerning that conflict?

A letter — and a poem — sent by a West Monroe Marine serving his country in that little known and little understood nation to his wife best describes "first hand" what the reactions comprise.

His wife, Mrs. A. S. McDonald, and their child, live at Route 3, Box 3, West Monroe.

The letter said:

Oct. 25, 1965

"Dear Editor,

I, and many other Marines, would get great satisfaction if you would be so kind as to print the enclosed words of truth written by some unknown Marine who is in Viet Nam.

The Marine who wrote these verses has the same attitude as most Marines do. We do not wish to see the day when we will have to salute a Communist flag, which North Viet Nam stands for.

I have a wife and child—the child I have yet to see. I dread the thought of them saluting a flag which stands for Communism.

North Viet Nam is against all that the people of the United States have been fighting for since July 4, 1776. Should we stop fighting now? Or use one of the famous sayings, "We have just begun to fight?"

Cpl. Sherwood McDonald

HERE IS THE POEM WHO IS HE

You sit at home and watch TV,
You're sipping a refreshing, cold iced tea,
The news comes on and then you hear,
The all-star game is drawing near.
Then you see a far-off land,
Where men are dying in the sand.
A frown appears across your face,
You're tired of hearing about that place.
Who cares about Viet Nam across the sea?
It's far away and doesn't concern me.
You'd rather hear the Beatles play,
Than learn about the world today.
But stop and think for a moment or two,
And ask yourself, "Does this concern you?"
It's great to be alive and free,
But what about the guy across the sea?
He's giving up his life for me,
So that I can live under liberty.
He's far away fighting a war,
Instead of fighting at my front door.
This guy who lives in filth and slime,
How can he do it all the time?
He's about my age so why should he care,
About a war that someone else should share?
You call him vile names and make fun of his cause,
Yet he's always first to win your wars.
You lucky guy you laugh and sneer,
Because you've never really known fear.
This young man faces death each day,
But he always has something funny to say.
"No Mail again" (a time of sorrow),
"Oh, what the h—, there's always tomorrow."
His morale is low, the tension high;
Some men even break down and cry.
He waits to go home and see loved one.
For this soldier is someone's son.
He works all day and stands guard at night,
He's tired and sick but he continues to fight.
The college crowd thinks he's a fool,
But that's what makes him hard and cruel.
You don't appreciate what he will do,
Like giving up his life for you.
He sacrifices much yet asks nothing in return,
Just so you can sit in school and learn.
No parties and dances for this young man,
Until he comes back home again.
The days are hot and the nights are too;
What wonders a cool can of beer could do.
He dreams of girls and thick juicy steaks,
And others will get a wreath on their grave.
You'll recognize him as he walks by,
There's a saddened look in his eye.
He walks so proud yet looks so mean,
He's called the world's greatest fighting machine.
He's a United States Marine."

HOW TRUE — A professor at the University of Rome calculated that the Italian population of 52 million consumes 70 million cups of coffee every day, and that 20 million cups are consumed without cream. The professor appears to have covered all the statistics on Italian coffee drinking — except the percentage consumed on company time.

LBJ'S WAR ON DEATH

President Johnson — in addition to the War on Poverty, the War on Waste, and the War on a lot of other things — has now taken on a formidable new opponent —called Death.

The war on death was announced recently — on August 5 to be exact. Presumably now the Great Society is going to be so Great that no one will ever want to die again.

As the President put it — maybe not so crudely:

"Now, we lost 32 billion dollars last year just from people dying — what they would produce if they had lived" — from heart, cancer and strokes. Now, if we just put a stop to that and take one billion of that 32 billion we'd have 31 billion to divide among everything else — if we just spend one billion to stop it now."

We presume that anyone who gets the idea he is going to sneak out of the Great Society by dying, simply has another think coming. That person might as well make up his mind he's going to stay here and pay his taxes. After all, someone does have to stay here and pay the bill to support medicare and a host of others. It used to be that nothing was so sure as death and taxes. Now, at least, some aren't so sure about death.

THERE IS NO ALIBI—

In our present society all kinds of excuses are given for the waves of juvenile delinquency that continually poison this country. It is said that some way, some how, society has failed these errant young people and so society must take the bulk of the blame. How about the parents?

Well, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, a man who is a real authority on crime and its causes, holds a different view.

In his words:

"Teen-agers and their parents have been subjected to a foolhardy theory which condones rebellious conduct against authority, law and order, or any regulatory measures which restrict their whims, wishes, desires and activities. This astonishing belief has spread into the schoolroom, the living room the courtroom and now into the streets of the nation in the form of wild, drunken brawls. No doubt society has failed our youth, but not in the way many seem to think. Rather, the dereliction has been in the failure to teach him the meaning of discipline, restraint, self - respect and respect for law and order and the rights of others. Consequently, the lesson is both painful and costly."

A harsh statement? We believe you'll agree with it if you will be honest with yourself.

HISTORY LESSON

Asked if he could summarize the lessons of history in a short book, Charles A. Beard said he could do it in four sentences which are:

1. Whom the gods would destroy, they first make mad with power.

2. The mills of God grind slowly, but they grind exceeding small.

3. The bee fertilizes the flower it robs.

4. When it is dark enough, you can see the stars.

Twin Cities Week In Review
Growth Pattern Seen In Stories

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

October merged into November last week. Just so did developments blend into a continuing pattern of growth on the Twin Cities scene.

The week's headlines heralded action in the areas of rural fire protection. The proposed state office building, the parish courthouse expansion, and the Monroe school system's $6 million building program.

There was also further and apparently final word on the pending desegregation of the city system, while the parish went ahead with plans to replace its fire-razed Central School at Calhoun.

These and other items made preferred reading in the local papers.

TYLER

Bids will be opened in the coming six weeks on three more projects in the school building program, Supt. Van Odom disclosed — for work at Neville High, Carroll High, and Jefferson Junior High.

In all, the bidding — Nov. 18 and 30, and Dec. 16 — will cover more than 30 classrooms, plus special music and physical education facilities, at the three. Only the week before, city boardmen awarded the contract for construction of Wossman High School, at a cost of $1.7 million on the Monroe southside.

Other building was at issue as workers finished soil tests on the courthouse grounds—four-story additions at each end of the present structure. Two 70-foot cores were taken for study to determine compactness and load-bearing capabilities. Bonds for $1.7 million will be sold next year to finance the taxpayer-approved project.

Considerable thought next was given an office building the state has announced intentions of building in the Twin Cities. The city and Chamber of Commerce joined in sending a telegram of "cordial invitation" to the site inspection team that ultimately will recommend a location for the structure — either in Monroe or West Monroe.

Prospective sites are described in compilations by both cities for presentation to team members. As to when the visitors will arrive to collect the necessary data, unofficial speculation was rife, ranging from a few days to January.

Meanwhile, the idea of building a rural Ouachita fire department and operating same was uppermost in the minds of parish police jurors and others.

A minimum budget was under preparation by Chief Homer Massingill and legal officers, for presentation to the police jury this Monday. Tax proceeds voted in September, not collectible until next year, won't be in the tills for spending before early 1967, creating an important problem for officials to contend therewith.

It was revealed that a jury loan to pay the firemen would be illegal, so authority for bank borrowing will be sought.

SCHOOL PLAN

The school news of the week, as indicated, included the receipt by city system officials of a federal district judge-approved desegregation plan. Directed earlier to start desegregation this midterm, the ramifications of the plan were set down by Judge Ben C. Dawkins. Starting with grades 1, 2, 11 and 12, desegregation will reach grades 3, 4, 9 and 10 next fall, and touch all grades beginning with school year 1967-68. The plan entails totality a year sooner than one proposed by the school board.

The Ouachita Parish School Board this week was moving for work at Central. One of several bids taken under advisement two weeks before, was accepted, and workmen began the cleanup of the charred remains of the old school. The new Central will be raised on the same site.

OUT OF ORDINARY

There were "out of the ordinary" aspects to last week's local news picture. For instance:

Busy, industrious J. E. Whitaker was cited as one of the beneficiaries of the state's recent literacy tests. He made a high grade, despite having made it only through the third grade. "Whit," 79, of West Monroe, proved to be something of an educational enigma. Lacking formal schooling, he has nevertheless made a success in several fields, electrical contracting and equipment designing among them. Still active, the Mississippi native markets equipment of his design in every state.

A car-maker has suggested his product has a tiger under the hood, but several local mechanics found something just as fascinating the other day — a water moccasin, three-feet-long, coiled beside the motor.

Deputies at the parish penal farm had a one-horse roundup, after "Cracker," a farm workhorse, walked off, apparently unnoticed, and made his way home — about two miles away. For the escape, the animal was put, not on bread and water, but on corn and water.

BUSY CORNER

Busy people sometimes overlook, in the rush of activities, news items even of particular interest, a fact which is the corner's reason for being. Here then is a concise assembling of notes on news you'd have had to read a week for elsewhere:

United Givers Fund workers gathered Friday for the fourth report meeting of the current drive. Tallies released at that time showed 58.2 per cent, $165,996.72, collected of the $284,934 goal, leaving $118,937.28 to go. Chairman Mose Loftin cautioned against any relaxation in efforts to raise the full amount for the 13 fund agencies. Monroe so far has attained 60.8 per cent of its quota, West Monroe, 40.3, Sterlington, 59.2, with the Professional and Individual Gifts quota 78.1 per cent raised.

The Monroe-Ouachita Regional Planning Commission met to hear of progress in the downtown modernization program's economic study. The specialists, looking closely at current uses of the area, prior to recommendations on the best application for the future, will make public disclosures of their findings early next year.

Sen. Jamar Adcock of Monroe produced headlines with his ideas for focusing the powers of the Legislative Budget Committee he heads, on major spending matters. He spoke of streamlining and freedom of the 17-member group from poring over the details of smaller items. Seen as worthwhile concerns for the committee were education, public welfare, highways and institutions.

Ouachita Parish pioneer family member B. J. Breard died at the age of 71. Well-known insurance man, he was the great-great-grandson of Louis Alexander de Breard, one of Don Juan Filhiol's associates in the founding of Fort Miro, which became Monroe.

Armed robberies continued to claim attention in Monroe as another neighborhood food market was victimized late Thursday. Police already were working on a similar crime perpetrated on a market in the same chain the previous Saturday. A local finance company also was robbed that week.

West Monroe motorcycle policeman Thomas P. Stroud was hurt badly in a three - vehicle crash, when his cycle was struck by one car, knocked it into another.

Monroe's civic center director William B. Lillyman took up offices at Selman Field in the former quarters of Fleeman Flying Service which moved to the city's old air terminal building. Lillyman was traveling later in the week, looking at facilities elsewhere, as he prepared recommendations on equipping the local complex. Under construction, the center will open in 1967.

The Monroe Little Theatre debuted Saturday its production of "Winnie-the-Pooh," which will have a 2:30 p.m. matinee today, as well as matinees next Saturday and Sunday.

STILL BUSY

There seemed hardly any end to the flow of local happenings. Continuing the accounting:

The Miro Business & Professional Women's Club was chartered, with Susan Broomfield of West Monroe as president.

Parish taxes collected during October came to about $197,500, of a total due of some $5 million. Notices were mailed early in the month. December has been the big pay period, prior to the final due date — Dec. 31.

The Monroe Jaycees resolved against demonstrations protesting the U.S. role in Viet Nam, and in favor of strict enforcement of laws against draft dodging.

The Ouachita Red Cross chapter began a new service — the recording of family conversations for forwarding to family members fighting in Viet Nam.

The Monroe Chamber of Commerce named a nominating committee, under Charles Bird, to recommend 12 members for directorships. Max L. Riley was placed in charge of a group planning the Chamber's annual banquet, set for January.

The Ouachita Parish School Board was planning its open house at the group's new office building, 100 Bry St. The event, which kicks off local observances of National Education Week, is today, 2 to 5 p.m.

Divisional conference of the Y's Men Clubs was held in Monroe Saturday, attracting delegates from six states.

Ralph Caldwell of Monroe was re-elected chairman of the Louisiana Area Council of Boys Clubs of America, as the West Monroe Boys Club hosted delegates from two other clubs at the council's annual conference.

Student art at Northeast Louisiana State College was placed on display in the Bry Hall Gallery, in observance of National Art Week.

Head of the college's music department, Joe Barry Mullins, was selected to conduct the all-state high school orchestra at the coming Louisiana Teachers Association convention in New Orleans.

The tire was kept under the issue of dual school systems as West Monroe Chamber of Commerce Manager Eugene Smith told the city's Kiwanians the operation of both a city and a parish school system in Ouachita is wasteful.

Mrs. Alyce Jones and Mrs. Sallie Snapp, Ouachita public health nurses, began training in Alexandria to assist evacuation later in Baton Rouge.

The World's Week In Focus
Lindsay Wins, De Gaulle Runs

By Oland Silk

THERE WAS SOMETHING FOR EVERYBODY IN MIDWEEK, OFF YEAR ELECTIONS.

Democrats and Republicans could point a finger of pride at particular locales and say, "Look how well we did there" — and go on to speculative hyperbole. One thing the vote did prove — the hoped-for resurgence of the Republican Party will have to await congressional elections in 1966.

Other happenings around the world: Premier DeGaulle of France, to no one's surprise, decided to run again; the Klan inquiry heard Georgia witnesses, two men committed suicide under bizarre circumstances, and a woman correspondent was killed in Viet Nam when she stepped on a mine. President Johnson signed an omnibus farm bill and ordered an 18-month study of U. S. agriculture.

Buckley Slightly Off Target

THANKS to millionaire conservative William Buckley, John Lindsay will assume the New York mayorship January 1. During the heated 3-man race, there was much speculation about whom Buckley would hurt the worst — Lindsay or his Democrat opponent, Abraham Beame. Pro-Goldwater Buckley attempted a spoiler's role against GOP maverick Lindsay. When the votes were in, Mr. Beame knew what happened to him: "the main factor in this defeat is what I always thought — Mr. Buckley." Reason: Irish-Catholic and Italian votes normally Democratic went to the spoiler. Buckley received over 300,000 votes. Lindsay's margin over Beame was 135,000. Pro-Goldwater conservatives were heartened by Buckley's showing. As for Lindsay's victory, Republicans were guarded for obvious reasons: the Yale-bred congressman won not as a Republican, but a jolly mixture of GOP-Liberal Party-fringe Democrat consensus. It went under the name of "fusion", but part of the fusion fizzled. High city posts went to solid Democrats. So Lindsay will have tough sledding.

LINDSAY

ALTHOUGH President Johnson made a 11th-hour endorsement of Beame, White House magic failed to rub off. The President wired Lindsay congratulations, promising him full cooperation of the federal government in solving New York's mammoth problems.

Democrats won governorships in New Jersey and Virginia and several mayoralty races. Republicans won city halls in Louisville and Akron. In referenda, Texans balked at giving their governor and state representatives 4-year terms. Floridians rejected a $300 million highway bond issue, and New Yorkers okayed $1 billion to fight water pollution.

Former Senator Barry Goldwater voiced unhappiness with a number of things last week. A pre-election statement indicated he saw a Lindsay victory as heresy. In the past Goldwater has raised money in many GOP liberal campaigns — but he found Lindsay's disavowal of Republicanism, and refusal to accept bona fide assistance from Ike and others, too much to stomach. Goldwater's question: If he is not a Republican now, what will he be in 1968 when Lindsay is expected to be a front runner for the GOP nomination? Lindsay's immediate answer is that he wants to serve out 4 years as New York mayor. But no one is taking any bets.

GOLDWATER CALLED for the resignation of Defense Secretary McNamara, saying it would be the best thing that could happen to our war effort. "He has had too big a say in making foreign policy," the ex-GOP nominee said, "and I'd just as soon he went back to making Edsels."

GOLDWATER

Goldwater also claimed McNamara's policies had reduced Pentagon morale to an all-time low.

In Viet Nam, Goldwater would bomb Hanoi complexes. He believes the war could be ended within 4 months. "We would say to Hanoi you are no longer a sacred place."

As for his presidential defeat, Goldwater blamed the attacks of Governors Rockefeller and Scranton. He said they accused him so often of being trigger happy and out to destroy Social Security that people believed it.

Reds On Trial, KKK Mum As Ever

While trial of the Communists Party snagged over technicalities — the party is charged with failing to register as a Soviet agent — hearings on the Ku Klux Klan were pressed with no help from Georgia members. The one talking witness was police Chief Leo Blackwell, of Griffin, who told of arresting five Klansmen at a cross burning in 1964. An arsenal was found in their car. They were charged with disorderly conduct. The committee looked into the activities of Nacirema, Inc. (American spelled backwards), an alleged Klan offshoot that advocated "more violent action." Probers could get no information on guerrilla schools, a disorderly house, or demolition training.

However, the FBI and Mississippi officers now have top-secret documents of the White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, including a guerrilla warfare order. The White Knights are strongest in south Mississippi, from Natchez to Laurel. Mayor Henry Bucklaw of Laurel has linked the Knights to 35 incidents of terror, including bombing and arson in Jones county since April 1964.

The suicide of the 28-year-old grand dragon of the New York Klan gave a weird twist to public concern over that order. Daniel Burros shot himself twice last Sunday in the apartment of a Pennsylvania Klansman. He did so after reading a story in the New York Times exposing his Jewish background. The Klan is both anti-Negro and anti-Semitic. Burros formerly belonged to the American Nazi party and the National Renaissance party, a right-wing group. He had been arrested several times. Burros' elderly parents were unaware of his activities.

De Gaulle: More Trouble For U. S.

The author of that startling statement is none other than French Premier Charles De Gaulle who seeks a new 7-year term. He will be 75 this month. The premier said his reelection would assure the future of France. He warned that if he were defeated, the nation could "fall into a confusion even more disastrous than she has known before." De Gaulle wants to recover French independence — and a Europe free of American influence. Key to conflict is NATO. France will pull out by 1969 unless it is re-shaped to French ideas. Rumors have it that the towering French leader will oppose construction of a new $8 million NATO building outside Paris. In the past De Gaulle has blocked British participation in the Common Market, called for replacement of NATO by a network of bilateral alliances, and is currently pushing commercial ties with Russia.

Opponents? At least four — all of different political hues. They attacked his "personal power" stance and professed disdain for his warning that France would fall apart without him. One non-candidate, former premier Antoine Pinay, said "enormous" sums had been offered him to run. He said only scruples stood in his way of becoming wealthy overnight.

THE INDONESIAN Army relentlessly hunted D. N. Aidit, fugitive chief of the Indonesia Reds. Five thousand troops combed central Java. The action was certain to make President Sukarno very unhappy, as he was about purging of Reds in universities and government agencies. Sukarno complained that "some people" were saying one thing and doing another. The "some people" were obviously generals who ignored his go - easy - on - the - Reds pleas. Communists are blamed for the abortive September 30 coup. They killed six top generals in the drive.

Crisis Grows, Newswoman Killed

RHODESIA'S government declared a 90-day state of emergency because of alleged threats of sabotage by African nationalists. It was the latest move in the potentially explosive clash between Rhodesia and Britain over independence for the white-ruled colony. In London, Britain's Parliament went on standby alert in case the colony declares independence. Britain wants Rhodesia to give the blacks, a vast majority in numbers, a voice in the government. Compromise efforts have failed.

Marines in Viet Nam took a page from the Viet Cong's book. Those qualified are taking sniper training. The aim: to keep enemy snipers outside effective range of Marine infantrymen. A Third Marine officer said, "the Viet Cong have been effective against us, and now we are going to deny them the capability of getting so close to us." There will be 20 snipers attached to each division's four regiments. In action, each sniper will be deployed 300 yards in front of the units. They will be equipped with Model 70 30-caliber Winchesters, fitted with telescopic sights.

DICKEY CHAPELLE, 47, a veteran war correspondent, was killed when she stepped on a VC mine booby trap south of Da Nang. Miss Chapelle was the third member of the press killed in the war. She had covered many trouble spots including Korea, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Algeria, Lebanon, and Kashmire. She also spent time in a Hungarian prison. She was on assignment for the National Observer. A familiar figure to servicemen, one paid her the supreme compliment: "She didn't seem like a girl at all."

Burning Death, Spy In Kremlin

THE BLOODY war raged on. Although American successes continued so did respect for the VC. American officials feared a resumption of hit-and-run tactics, preferring instead major confrontations. Guerrilla tactics are the worst to combat, and the VC know it. Late reports said a steady buildup of Red forces continued.

Meantime, the Pentagon studied the problem of using 17-year-olds in Viet Nam. No one knows how many are in the war zone.

The ultimate in anti-war protest occurred when Quaker Norman Morrison, 31, of Baltimore, upset by the accidental bombing of a South Viet Nam village and U. S. policy in general, burned himself alive outside the Pentagon. Onlookers screamed at him to drop an infant he was holding, which he did. The baby was unhurt. Mrs. Morrison later said her husband gave his life to express concern over the great loss of life and human suffering caused by the war. A psychiatrist demurred, claiming Morrison was not a pacifist in the true sense. Quakers oppose the taking of any life, including one's own. He suggested the real answers lay elsewhere in the complexities of Morrison's mind.

MORRISON

REMEMBER THE missile crisis over Cuba? A new cloak-and-dagger tale says the late President Kennedy received assurance from a spy inside the Kremlin that "Soviet nuclear forces not in a state of war readiness." The spy? Soviet Col. Oleg Penkovsky whose memoirs will soon be published posthumously. He was arrested in 1962 immediately after filing the message. He was unable to follow the usual security procedures and betrayed himself to the secret police. His message was said to allay Kennedy's fears that an ultimatum might set off a nuclear war. Penkovsky was convinced Russia under Khrushchev was heading for war when strong enough. He was executed in 1963.

Consolidation, Natchez Strife

THE SMALL country school in Louisiana will soon fall before the inexorable march of urbanization. Between now and the fall of 1967 at least 78 rural schools in 33 parishes will close their doors in compliance with a recommendation accepted by the State Board of Education. Those with enrollments of 50 or less will be phased out in '67. The following year, those with 51-60, those with 61-75 in '69.

The basis for the move is better educational opportunities for the student. Byron Benton, state board official, said the long-needed step toward consolidation began 11 years ago. Consolidation will substitute bigger and better schools for smaller ones. In some parishes, bond issues will have to be floated to build the consolidated school. Some parishes have already carried out the program. The state board is not forcing any parish board to close the schools, but if they do not, they will have to operate without state funds.

LOUISIANA may get tidelands funds in excess of $20 million, Sen. Russell Long reported. He believes Washington can be persuaded to let the state have a slice of the impounded money. Neither government has reached accord on the basic disagreement, exactly where Louisiana's three-mile seaward boundary should be drawn in the Gulf. The state now collects oil revenues from offshore Zone One where the limit is fixed. Gov. McKeithen said he understands the Supreme Court will be asked to remove certain areas from the disputed offshore realm, and release some impounded funds. Sen. Long hinted the funds might be freed before Congress re-convenes.

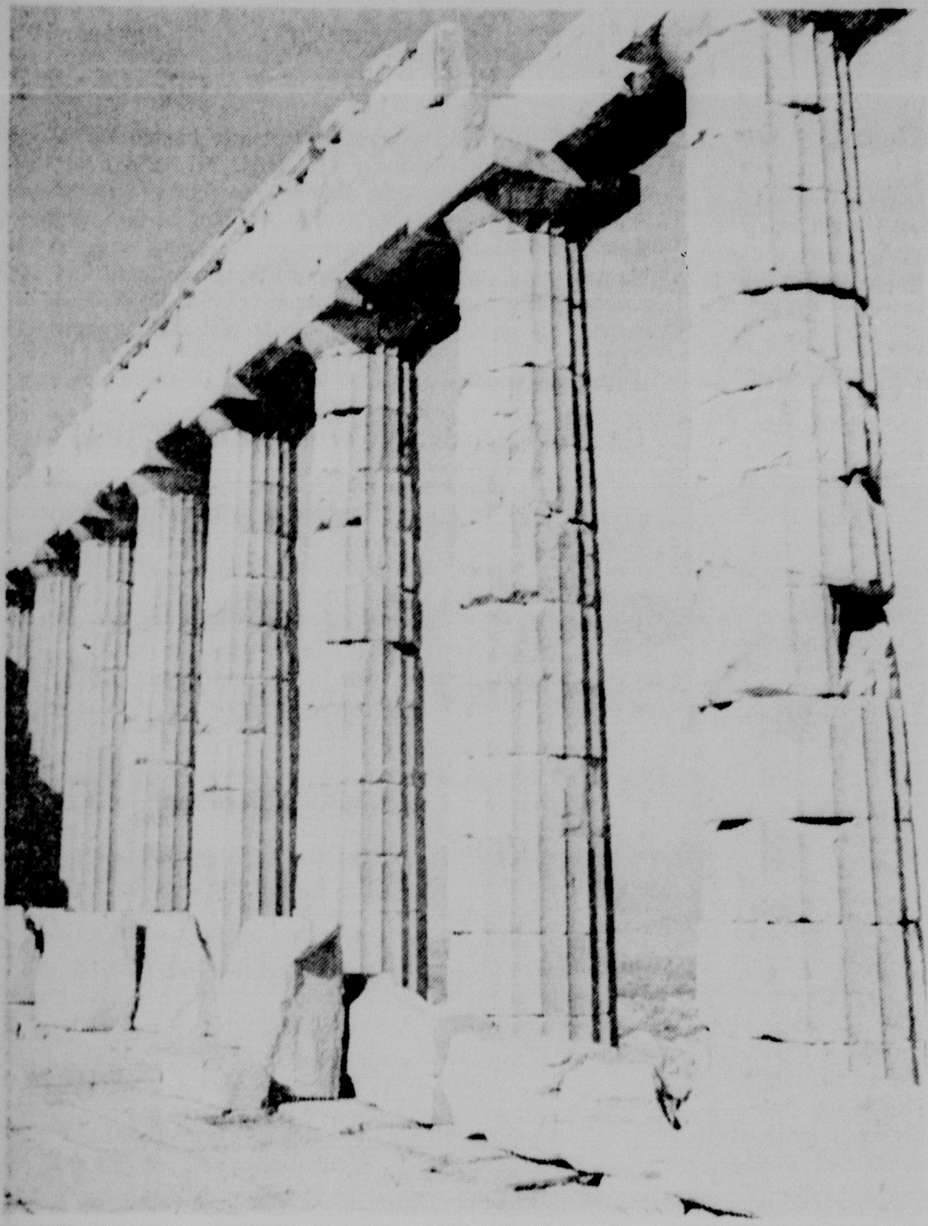
CADDO LAWMAKERS pounced on a South Louisiana plan to trim the powers of the Louisiana Tax Commission to an advisory agency. Sen. Jackson Davis said the commission should be strengthened rather than diminished. The commission is under fire for pushing for equalization of tax assessments throughout the state.

Rep. Morley Hudson wants the 1966 legislature to fix penalties for parish assessors who failed to equalize tax assessments. "I for one am encouraged that the tax commission has suddenly come to life and gotten with the problem," Hudson said. He is one of two Republicans in the state legislature. Another Caddoan, Rep. Algie Brown joined Hudson, saying, "I have long said the tax commission ought to clamp down on some of the assessors."

FORMER GOV. SAM JONES will make recommendations for sweeping reforms in the duties, responsibilities and powers of the state chief executive.

The Natchez economic war worsened. A Negro boycott, the most effective held in the Southern racial struggle, has caused heavy retail losses. One hundred and seventy five merchants met Friday to consider a counter-boycott — mass firing of Negro help — but postponed action. Negro "enforcers" have kept Natchez streets virtually clear of colored shoppers. Some whites feared Natchez might never be the same again.

Pollution, Planes, Heels Hurt Famed Parthenon



THE MOST SERIOUS ailment of the Parthenon is corrosion which has eaten deeply into the Athens temple's 46 columns which face the sea, according to a German archeologist. Seen here are some of the marble columns which he says are threatened by the sea breeze from three miles away. He has proposed spraying the marble with a special substance, and then enclosing the entire temple in a glass or plastic case. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

The Parthenon is an age - old symbol of Grecian splendor. But today the monumental tribute to early Greek culture suffers from a malady of the times — too much modern progress around it. In this story, Associated Press writer Philip Dopoulos describes the greatest of Greece's tourist attractrons as it stands today and what is being done to preserve it.

By PHILIP DOPOULOS

ATHENS (AP) — The Parthenon, symbol of Greece's glorious history, is sick. Cause: Air pollution, airliners and women's high heels.

Archeologists examining the 2,500-year-old monuments, on the Acropolis above Athens discovered the white pentelic marble of the Parthenon temple is affected by the growing industrialization around the Greek capital.

A high degree of air pollution is causing corrosion of the honey-colored marble from which ancient Greeks constructed the Parthenon to the glory of the goddess Athena.

ANOTHER PERIL

Another danger, a private study of Athens architects and engineers found, are the jet planes using Athens Airport, eight miles away. Though it is illegal to fly near the Acropolis, visitors to the famous rock claim they can feel slight vibrations from passing jet airliners.

The study also discovered that women's high heels are chipping away the Parthenon temple's flooring.

Several measures have been proposed. One is to follow the example of the Louvre in Paris, which admits only persons in low heels or sandals, or close the Parthenon temple — but not the Acropolis — to visitors.

A German archeologist, Dr. Ernst Langlotz of Bonn University, says the Parthenon is suffering from another, more serious, ailment, sea breezes. He reported the marble columns of the Parthenon that face the sea three miles away have been badly corroded.

He proposed several measures to the Greek government to preserve the 46 outer columns.

A short-term measure would be to spray the marble with a special chemical. The long-term approach, which is being considered by the government, is to enclose the Parthenon temple in a glass or plastic case.

GLITTERPROOF

The case should be glitterproof, smear-proof and easily washable. Air circulating through the case would be filtered, and traces of humidity and industrial pollution would be removed by filters.

The government has taken no action, presumably because of lack of money. A popular Greek magazine has proposed making a worldwide appeal for funds. Some officials feel that the United Nations should appeal to member nations to contribute.

The monuments on the Acropolis have withstood sieges in ancient times. Barricades were erected on the Acropolis during the Greek war for independence in 1821. British paratroopers set up a battery of guns in the Parthenon's thick columns at the time of a Communist uprising in 1944.

The greatest shock the Parthenon ever received was in 1687 when shells fired from Venetian guns on a nearby hill ignited a Turkish powder magazine beneath its wooden roof.

The Parthenon — the name means Chamber of the Virgins — has been a Christian church and Turkish mosque since the golden age of Pericles.

The Acropolis is Greece's greatest tourist attraction. Millions have traversed its rocky slopes to stand within the mysterious silence of the Parthenon.

Regardless of their dire claims, the archeologists, scientists and architects hesitate to estimate just when the structure will fall. It has fooled many before them.

GREECE'S GREATEST tourist attraction, the Acropolis, with its Parthenon Temple, is "sick," say archeologists. Here the Parthenon is seen from the Propylae, entrance to the top of the Acropolis in Athens. The Parthenon is endangered, say the experts, by air pollution caused by industrialization near it, by high heels which harm the flooring, and by jet planes which cause vibrations. Reds In Dominican Still Seeking Power

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Still reaching for power, the numerically small but always vocal and violent Communists are concentrating their efforts on attempts to dominate student, labor and peasant groups in the Dominican Republic.

They are trying to build a "united anti-imperialist front" which they apparently hope will force the Inter-American Peace Force of the Organization of American States to withdraw from this capital.

The levers the Communists use for this are anti-Yankeeism and nationalism. Nationalism has been flagging among a people weary of the civil conflict which began with a revolutionary movement last April, but the extreme left loses no opportunity to revive it.

When 2,000 battleready OAS troops occupied the heart of Santo Domingo and the rebel area last week, the extreme left provoked noisy demonstrations. Although these were confined to a few streets in a city of a half million, they indicated resourcefulness and determination of three Communist organizations.

According to U.S. and Dominican intelligence figures, the numerical strength of the militants in the three Communist parties is divided this way: The 14th of June Movement, Castroist, between 1,500 and 2,000; the Dominican Popular Movement, reflecting the pro-Chinese viewpoint, about 800, and the pro - Moscow Dominican Communist party, about 700.

The "anti-imperialist front" drive is an objective common to almost all political parties in the Caribbean island nation including the Dominican Revolutionary party of former President Juan Bosch and the Social Christians. But it is the keystone of the Communist effort.

The Bosch party and the Social Christians have balked at linking up with the Communist groupings on such a project, but joint action in the future cannot be ruled out.

It is known, for example, that the extreme left is planning to oppose spring elections on the ground that honest balloting will be impossible as long as OAS troops remain in the country. This would provide fuel to build the "anti-imperialist" fire.

In an attempt to insure their control over any such emerging front, the Communists direct their main efforts at student, labor and peasant groups, while attempting also to influence lower ranks of the military.

Their propaganda argues that the rebel "constitutionalists" were victorious in recent fighting, and that they are entitled to the spoils.

The stevedoore union called Poasi was outlawed by the pre-April regime because of its far-left tendencies. This organization became a rebel fighting unit in the revolution, and thereafter emerged again as a labor union.

It obtained recognition as such from the labor ministry, arguing that a rival union was a creation of the past regime and therefore both "reactionary and illegal."

Poasi today is considered under the control of the Dominican Popular Movements Communists. A dispute with its rival union, called Stapi, has paralyzed the docks.

Using similar tactics, the same Communist organization pushed out the old leaders of a major national union, called Foupsacesistrada, and have seized leadership from Bosch's party.

Aiming at student groups, a pro-rebel faction dominated by Marxists nearly won control of the University of Santo Domingo by propagandizing that the incumbent governing council was a remnant of the old regime and thus unconstitutional. The unresolved dispute kept the school closed beyond its opening date, Oct. 12.

Peasants are being told by Communist agitators that all the land is theirs now that the revolution is over. This has caused hundreds of peasants to move into private and government lands.

One objective of this may have been to force the military to resort to violence to displace the squatters.

Teenage Drinking Now National Problem

By SANDY SMITH
Written For the Associated Press

"Thank God my son was arrested!".

A strange statement for a father to make?

Not at all, especially since it's our own quotation and our own 18-year-old son, we're talking about.

For the experience of being hauled into jail, booked, and later appearing in an adult court of law did more toward maturing him and helping him get back on the right track than 10,000 parental lectures.

The charge for which he was arrested — illegal possession of an alcoholic beverage, beer — is one that is crowding both adult and juvenile courts every day throughout the country.

Our son was fortunate. He beat the rap because of a legal loophole. He was arrested by an off-duty policeman moonlighting at a drive-in theater just outside the city limits. Thus, technically, he had no legal basis for making the arrest. But if he'd had a deputy sheriff's badge, or had thought to make a citizen's arrest, our son wouldn't have been so fortunate.

FROM MANY PLACES

And he'd now have a criminal record that would follow him the rest of his life.

Not all the boys and girls being booked for illegal possession come from broken homes or the so-called underprivileged class.

Far from it. They're coming from just as many "good" families — families such as yours and mine, where the parents are interested and are trying. And failing, as we did.

We're pretty much an average family, live in an average neighborhood in a big city, are active in our church, belong to the P-T-A, try to do things together as a family.

Our son is an average student, perhaps a little better-than-average football player for he now is on a college squad, is good-looking, has a good personality, is held in high regard by his teachers, coaches and others, was president of his church youth group, a Boy Scout and all the other things the average boy does.

We noted the first danger signals the closing months of his senior year in high school. He and his buddies began going too often to a drive-in hamburger joint notorious not only as THE place where the teen-age set gathered but also for too-frequent brawls and drinking in parked cars.

We, along with parents of his closest friends, forbade our son's going to the drive-in. But we also knew that at least once in a while they went anyway.

We didn't care about some of the new circle of friends he began making: two or three high school dropouts, one youth expelled for hitting a teacher. In a calm, rational way, we talked this over.

UNPLEASANT EXPERIENCE

Still, one Saturday night he came home, subdued and shaken. He'd been to the forbidden drive-in, where he and his friends had picked up some beer. A buddy, 17, who had had a couple of beers, was driving too fast, there was a curve and an accident. Thankfully, nobody was hurt.

We talked this over with our son, and there was assurance it wouldn't happen again.

But then there was his high school graduation, and while nothing too untoward happened then, we knew he was failing to live up to the promise made a few weeks before.

Then our son began working hard and long hours. There wasn't any time for much of anything except a movie or two. And we were happy.

DRIVE-IN INCIDENT

That's when it happened. One Saturday after work he and a dropout friend and three other youths, strangers to our son, picked up a case of beer and went to a drive-in movie. There was an incident at the drive-in, in which our son wasn't a part but which attracted the attention of the manager to the car in which he and the youth driving were sitting.

The manager summoned the off-duty policeman who saw the beer, placed the two under arrest, and hauled them off to jail. The three other youths, including the one who'd bought the beer, weren't caught.

In the early hours of the morning our son was released on $50 bail. The police were nice. Even they said he appeared to be a fine boy, was cooperative and not smart-alecky, wasn't intoxicated or anything like that, and just got caught doing what perhaps 70 or 80 per cent of the teen-agers at drive-ins were doing anyway.

As if that helped! We were ashamed, disgusted, hurt and angry. We told our son that he'd broken his promises, had gotten himself into the mess, and could get himself out or take the punishment he deserved.

But as the trial date neared we knew we couldn't just sit by and watch him "take his medicine" and receive a criminal record if there were any means to prevent it. We hired an attorney and did some investigating in which it was discovered that the arrest itself was hardly legal.

On the day of the trial the other youth arrested with our son arrived by himself. His parents, as we had done at first, had told him he'd gotten himself into trouble and could get himself out. Only they stuck to their threats.

CASE DISMISSED

In Justice Court the arresting officer took the stand and testified to events leading up to the arrest. Then our attorney began the questioning which brought out the illegality of the arrest itself, and the case of the state against our son and the other youth was dismissed.

Perhaps as valuable as anything in the episode, in addition to the court appearance itself, was the time our attorney spent talking to our son about the law, the problem of having a record.

We think our son, now in college, has learned his lesson. We also know that perhaps we need to remind him occasionally we're still trying to be good parents.

And, perhaps, we're still failing.

Only time will tell.

CURTAIN CALL

Color us crimson. In a goof that can only be described as monumental, we managed to omit the performance dates from the recent mailer for "Winnie-The-Pooh." As we hope everybody knows by now, this entertaining fantasy for children and the young-at-heart had its debut at Strauss Playhouse yesterday and has another matinee this afternoon at 2:30. Two more performances next Saturday and Sunday at the same time will complete the run.

The box office on Lamy Lane is open to take calls for tickets from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, telephone 323-1235, or they may be bought at the door until the capacity of the house is reached. Admission is 75 cents for students, $1 for adults, with seating on a first-come, first-served basis, except for birthday parties which may arrange seats together.

STRONG TRADITION

The show - must - go - on spirit pervades even our young troupers. Susan Coats is appearing despite a minor fracture and Sherry Harris had to overcome a throat ailment which had her literally speechless until five days before opening.

We are most indebted to Harlan Johnson of Penney's for a fine haul of discarded fixtures from the old store on DeSiard Street. Executive director George Black foresees many uses for them. Equal thanks to Marie and Charles DePoe for additions to our wardrobe department.

Anita Womack has ordered a Green Room tile for her role as Tuptim in "The King And I," which reminds us that actors in earlier plans can now take advantage of the new spaces recently made available. Tiles are $10 each or three for $25, and the proceeds are used exclusively for backstage improvements.

Barbara and Jack Easterling report that about 300 delegates attended the Southwst Theatre Conference at Midland. They saw productions of "Never Too Late," and "The American Dream," by the Midland Community Theatre and "Noah," by Texas Tech. There were discussion groups on theatre management, children's theatre, technical subjects and many other topics of interest to amateur drama groups. The principal dinner speaker was Douglas Campbell of the Tyrone Guthrie Theatre, Minneapolis.

IDEAS, INSPIRATION

Accompanying the Easterlings was George Black who says the 1,200-mile round trip was well worth the effort in terms of trading ideas, making new friends and gaining fresh inspiration for our own theatre. Delegates came from as far as Albuquerque, Laredo, Tulsa, Fayetteville and New Orleans.

Betty Bandy, now Mrs. Paul Watson, had the feminine lead in "carousel" at the Routunda Theatre of the First Methodist Church in Dallas where she now lives.

While on a flying trip to New York recently, Judy Evans chatted with Pat and Richard Clark. Richard had six roles in summer stock this past season. Bob Beard was visiting the Clarks at the time and all wanted to be remembered to their friends in Monroe.

We are happy to report that the Little Theatre of Monroe is among the select circle to secure a definite release on "How To Succeed In Business Without Really Trying," for February presentation. Having played to packed houses for four years on Broadway, it is bound to attract heavy attendance from our members.

This brings us to the point that the remaining unsold memberships before our 3,000 limit is reached will not take care of more than half the number who customarily join for the musical or buy extra memberships at that time. Until Nov. 15, therefore, Little Theatre will give preference to members of this season and last season in parceling out the remainder. Thereafter we will take applications in order of receipt until we close the books at 3,000.

BELLOW BOUNCES BACK

His first play, "The Last Analysis," split the critics last season and racked up only a brief run. Since then he has been polishing his skill on one-acters, and a threesome are to be produced off-Broadway this season by Lyn Austin. Their titles: "The Wrecker," "The Wen" and "The Orange Souffle."

"GREATEST STORY Every Told" starring Max Von Sydow, Charlton Heston, John Wayne and a hosts of outstanding actors, opens a seven-day engagement at the Rialto Theatre in West Monroe Wednesday. Features will be at 2 and 8 p.m.

Alaska Site Plant Growth Experiments

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

A plant growth experiment will be undertaken on the Kenai Peninsula in Alaska to raise crops under completely controlled environmental conditions and help ease food shortages in world areas where growing food is difficult.

The Kenai City Development Inc., supported by the U. S. government, will build a 42,000-square - foot greenhouse in Soldatna, 70 miles south of Anchorage. Cucumbers, lettuce, tomatoes and other salad crops will be raised.

Alaska is dependent upon expensive air or sea transport for much of its food needs in winter. Spoilage is not uncommon.

COMPLETION NEAR

Five connected steel, aluminum and fiber glass greenhouses designed by Ickes-Braun of Chicago are expected to be completed in December.

Zonal heating will hold the inside temperature to 60 degrees even when the outside temperature drops to -25. Artesian wells will provide water. Crops will be fed through an automatic water additive system. Humidity and air circulation will be electronically governed.

Mimi Hines In Difficult Followup Role

EDITOR'S NOTE — Barbra Streisand may be a hard act to follow, but Mimi Hines isn't worried. Come Dec. 27 she'll take over the star's role in "Funny Girl," raring to go with her "crazy four-octave range" and her own interpretation.

By WILLIAM GLOVER
Associated Press Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Mimi Hines worried? Not so you could notice it.

Miss Hines, a merry chipmunk who sings "this crazy four-octave range," is about to step into an exceptionally torrid Broadway hot spot as Barbra Streisand's successor in "Funny Girl."

Taking over any star's assignment entails some hazard. And when a show is intensely identified with a unique personality, such as Barbra, the risk rises. Add the risks of a Broadway debut, and the tension potential soars further.

"Barbra is a wonderful performer," says Miss Hines, with deliberation, "but there's a great deal more to this show than any one person."

ADVANCE REQUEST

Before being tapped for the takeover, Miss Hines' admiration for the musical "was so insane that I asked for a chance to do it when the summer stock rights are released in three or four years."

She wanted the part because her stage work until now has been limited to gamboling in straw-hat circuit revivals of such items as "Hit the Deck," "Anything Goes" and "The Pajama Game."

Miss Hines, as any television addict or nightclubber knows, is most solidly established in those branches of show business as an expert ad-libber, impetuous mimic and comic partner of Phil Ford, her husband.

"Her enthusiasm is hard to restrain, so I just let her run," says Ford.

"Maybe I ought to have a valve in my chin," she retorts.

The entertainment partnership they formed in 1952 while appearing at the Last Chance Saloon in Anchorage, Alaska, will continue when the shift starts at "Funny Girl" on Dec. 27. In this fictionalized account of the career of Fanny Brice, Ford has been cast as the hoofer who helped her up the ladder.

Away From Home

Richard Enwright

Land Of Mr. Mosby

Campfires burned low, and shadows danced on the low limbs of the trees above. Sleepy pickets stood a weary guard, and the tent flaps of a Union volunteer infantry regiment were closed against the first cold winds of winter. Two officers huddled over a map in the headquarters tent. Down in the Valley, they knew, was the gray cavalier, Jeb Stuart. Secure in the miles which separated them from the wild gray troopers, the Union officers gulped a last cup of coffee and departed for their tents. In the quiet of the night, a cricket chirped, followed by a whippoorwill. Then there were other insect and bird noises, and the late autumn air seemed filled with the sounds of a midsummer night. Suddenly, the stillness was interrupted by yells, shots, and hoofbeats. Tents went down under the thunder of a hudred horses as frantic blueclad soldiers struggled to free themselves from the tangle of canvas, blanket, and rope. Sabers flashed, pistols roared, and soon it was all over. Amazed survivors were hustled southward, and a tall, lean, gray officer, high on his horse, smiled and gestured to his men.

"Boy, I'll bet you Yanks sure as heck didn't look for us up this far, did you? We're Mosby's men, and that's John Mosby!" a laughing Virginian answered.

Fifty miles behind the Federal lines and a hundred plus years ago, up and down the Valley ranged Mosby's men, and the beautiful mountains, quiet glades, and sparkling creeks were theirs. On a hundred crisp, clear nights, in the bright fields of autumn afternoons, through the passes of the Massanutten Mountains, by Luray nad near Lexington — wherever he was needed, whenever he could strike a blow for the Old Dominion, there was Mosby — John Singleton Mosby, ranger, lawyer, statesman, and Virginian.

The story of the war in the Shenandoah Valley is a story often told, and Sheridan is a word not generally accepted in mixed company among the older valley folk. Today the valley is quiet, and battles are fought only on football fields and between the debating teams of Washington and Lee and the University of Virginia. True, there are gray clad troops at V.M.I., but they no longer serve the Confederacy. Station wagons and shiny convertibles range the mountain trails where once the gray horsemen roamed.

There is little poverty now. Instead of goober peas roasted in a tin can over a hasty fire, there is white linen, shining silver, Smithfield ham, beaten biscuit, and apple preserves. No bugles call now, but the trumpets blow in the society orchestra at the Sigma Chi Sweetheart Ball, and outside on the terrace, one sees the dark, timeless mountains. In the light of a burnished full moon, the valley is spread below — a fascinating patch quilt as far as the eye can see.

U. S. 60 winds past Clifton Forge, over Summit, and down through a steep gorge at Denmark. It descends to the valley floor and curves into Lexington. One spends a reverent hour at Lee Chapel on the beautiful Washington and Lee campus, and across the street is the Dutch Inn.

Up the valley, U. S. 11 is a wide scenic highway through Fairfield, almost to Spottswood. It passes Mint Springs and turns into Staunton where in the great Virginia tradition, there are more gray - clad young men of the Staunton Military Corps of Cadets. Woodrow Wilson's home lives quietly on a tree - lined street. On U. S. 250, there are twelve colorful miles, then Waynesboro, and a left turn onto the Blue Ridge Parkway, into the Shenandoah Battlefield Park. All the way to Front Royal, the unforgettable road winds, and at Hawskbills, one is over four thousand thrilling feet atop the Blue Ridge. In the fall, turning leaves paint the mountain sides, and it's as if a million Rembrandts and Sargents had visited the valley. There is a blue haze which seems to hang low on the land, and lights far below seem as the watchfires of the hundred circling camps.

The harvests, springs, and sunlit summers of ten decades have passed. Through the dark green gorges, by crystal racing creeks, and near the abandoned mine, the sun sets, and sill dawn breaks in the changeless magic Shenandoah. The Massanuttens and Appalachians march by in orderly files almost as the armies of a hundred years ago. One thinks of the smiling grayclad officer, the amazed and captured Union troops, and knows that this is the valley, Mr. Mosby's country.

Nursing Home Is Accredited

Georgia Street Nursing Home, Monroe, has been accredited as an intensive nursing care facility, it was announced by Harris B. Jones, acting executive director of The National Council for the Accreditation of Nursing Homes.

The facility, headed by Harold G. Smith, administrator, has been awarded this distinction on the basis of a recently completed survey by a field representative of The Council.

Johnson Deals Blow To Wheat Shipment Hopes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has dealt a blow to congressional hopes for a quick end to the requirement that half of all wheat sold to Communist countries must be transported on U.S. ships.

In a letter to 11 members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who had urged immediate lifting of the requirement, Johnson said it "is under constant review within the administration" but gave no hint action is likely at any time soon.

The President also said he did "not know of any outstanding Soviet offer to buy wheat from the United States."

His move throws a damper on prospects that some of this nation's record wheat harvest could be sold to the Russians, who had their second straight poor harvest.

At least one high administration official is reported to have assured congressmen from wheat states, who feel the restriction is blocking sales to Communist countries, that the 50 per cent requirement would be lifted shortly after congressional adjournment.

Guide To Good Reading

Book Collection Now At 105,402

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

On November first the book collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library reached the total of 105,402 books. This puts us well over the minimum standard of one book per capita. It is a wonderful feeling, when helping a patron find material, to go to the shelves and find a number of books on the subject waiting for you. During the month of October a total of 44,632 books were borrowed from the Ouachita Parish Public Library system. Two thousand, two hundred seventy people asked for and received individual help in locating the material which they needed. The Ouachita Parish Public Library is used extensively and if you are not taking advantage of the opportunity to use it, we invite you to do so.

Each week many new books are added to the book collection of the Library. This week, as usual, they deal with a variety of subjects. There is a new book of international intrigue called "Maracaibo Mission" written by Francis Van Wyck Mason. A most interesting book is "James Smithson and the Smithsonian Story" written by Leonard Carmichael. This is the story of the man who left his fortune to the U.S. Government to be used in establishing one of the greatest museums in the world.

Two excellent new Bible commentaries deal with the Books of First and Second Chronicles. They should be most useful to Bible students. Another book in this same series deals with the Book of Proverbs. Books on the history of costume are always in demand. A new book on this subject is "The History of American Dress" by Alexander Wyckoff. Many people in this parish raise horses and are interested in knowing more about them. A very fine new book is "The Horse In America" written by Robert West Howard. It tells about the first horses in America and about many of the present day breeds. Another hobby in which there is great interest is in the field of antique cars. A book which is certain to be popular is "Cars in Pictures" written by David Hebb.

One of the loveliest and most interesting new books in our collection is "The First Ladies Cookbook." This is a beautiful book and the illustrations are lovely. It tells about the favorite recipes of all of the Presidents of the U.S. There is a picture of each President and his wife from George Washington to President Johnson with pictures of their favorite delicacies and directions for preparing them. Another beautiful new book is "The New York Times Book of Interior Design and Decoration" written by George O'Brien. If you are planning a trip to Washington, be sure to see a new book called "A Guide To the Architecture of Washington, D.C." prepared by Hugh Jacobsen. This would be a most convenient book to take on a trip to the capitol city.

Probably the most colorful literary figure of the jazz age in America was F. Scott Fitzgerald. A new volume of "Letters to His Daughter" will be eagerly read by the many people who have enjoyed his novels. Books of archaeology and those dealing with ancient civilizations always find a ready audience among our patrons. A new book of this type is "Deities and Dolphins" written by Nelson Glueck. This is an account of the Nabateans, an ancient people who lived in the Jordan valley. Another beautiful book is "The Horizon Book of Ancient Greece." This book was published by the Horizon Magazine. It is a large book and is beautifully illustrated. Many readers will be interested in the new volume of the autobiography of President Eisenhower. This book is called "Waging Peace" and deals with his years in the White House.

For the many devoted users of the genealogy section, there are two new books. One is "An Alphabetical Dictionary of Coats of Arms Belonging to Families in Great Britain and Ireland" by John W. Papworth. This is considered one of the best books in its field. Another is a reprint of "Pike County Mississippi, 1798-1876" by Luke Conerly. The reprint is not very well done, but the book does contain some valuable information.

Remember the Main Library is open this afternoon from 2:00 to 5:00 for the convenience of our patrons.

Castro's Open Door Policy Is Not Wide Open

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro's new "open-door" policy is not wide open.

While asserting that anyone who wants to go can do so, the government has definitely closed the door — at least for a time — on two groups.

One of those is composed of males in or near the age for compulsory military service — 16 to 27.

The official line is that they have an obligation to their country that must be completed. In addition, the regime spokesmen say it does not want them to run the rusk of being drafted in the United States and being used, as they put it, as "cannon fodder" in Viet Nam.

The other group is composed of technicians or other trained persons whose departure would upset production or services. Just who is included in that classification is unknown.

Arkansas Extends Win Streak To 20

Southwestern Downs Determined Tribe 14-10

LAFAYETTE — Angered by a Northeast field goal that put the underdog ahead, the University of Southwestern charged for a fourth period touchdown and claimed a 14 - 10 Gulf States Conference win over the Indians here Saturday night.

Both teams managed second period scores.

The Bulldogs, now 5-2 overall and 2-1 in the league, scored

Northeast, 1-7 in the year and 0-4 in the loop, tallied on a 53 yard pass from quarterback Steve Mansur to Lynn Mitchell who caught the ball at the Bulldog 26 and raced untouched into the endzone.

The two teams spent the first quarter adjusting to the muddy field and neither managed to score although Northeast had the worst of the field position.

Southwestern got the ball on the Indian 33 yard line after Mansur was thrown for a loss at his own one yard line, and the Tribe had to punt on third down. Then the Canines began a march that would carry over to the second period, ending in the first score of the night. Price marched 14 yards, Weber got six and then tossed a five yard pass to Landry that carried to the Northeast one yard line during the drive. Weber sneaked over the middle for the first TD of the night. In all, the 33 yard drive required only nine plays with Landry adding the PAT.

The Bulldogs took the kickoff and marched from their own 43 to the Northeast 33 where Gerald Landry kicked his first field goal attempt. The 50 yard try was first called good and then the ruling was rescinded much to the dismay of the Bulldog partisans. The kick ended the half.

The third quarter was much the same as the first, neither team scored and Northeast, for the most part, was kept bottled up in its end of the field. The Bulldogs moved in to give Landry two more shots at field goals, but both a 48 yard attempt with 12:04 left and a 45 yard attempt with 4:35 to play failed by considerable margin.

After a short Bulldog punt to the USL 27, and six Northeast plays, the Tribe's Lacaze got a chance at a field goal with 10:20 left in the game. The goal was good and put Northeast ahead 10-7.

After the field goal, the Bulldogs began their gain winning scoring march covering 69 yards in eight plays.

Immediately following the final Bulldog score, the Indians got another chance at victory. The Tribe took the ball from its own 27 to the 35 on Allen Bozeman's passing but was forced to punt. USL's Price was stopped for no gain and fumbled on the first play from scrimmage with Northeast's Charles Rohner recovering at the Bulldogs' 25. Then Bozeman threw three incomplete before hitting Ronnie Fountain with a pass good for two yards but the threat came to an end.

The Indians got their hands on the ball only once more and were unable to move.

Landry, Price and Bill Bayard carried the brunt of the USL rushing attack. Bayard got 30 on seven carries; Landry got 35 and 14 attempts and Price carried nine times for 33 yards.

Mansur carried 14 times and gained 41 for the Tribe with Bozeman and Mitchell each carrying for 28 and 22 yards respectively while Bailey got 30 markers on 12 rushers.

Mansur tossed 11 passes, completing for 76 yards with Bozeman hitting on five of 15 for 41 stripes. Mitchell hauled in four for 82 yards. Weber hit on four of nine passes for the Bulldogs and amassed 43 yards.

Cowboys Top Demons With Wallet's Play

NATCHITOCHES, La. (AP) — McNeese State, behind the devastating running of fullback Marlin Walet, spoiled Northwestern Louisiana's homecoming here Saturday 29-21.

Northwestern held a 21-7 lead in the third quarter, but watched the bulge dwindle as the McNeese 11 swept to a late third period score and added two markers in the fourth quarter for the victory.

Walet, who compiled 161 yards on 32 carries, scored twice for the Cowboys-once on an eight-yard smash and again on a one-yard slant.

The Demons hold a 1-2 conference mark and are 4-3 overall for the season. McNeese, 3-0 in the GSC, has a 4-3 overall record.

But Northwestern, displaying a spirited offense, scored twice in the second quarter to take a 14-7 halftime lead. Demon scores came on a 37-yard pass from quarterback Donald Guidry to flanker Al Dodd and on a one-yard plunge by fullback Bobby Parker.

The Demons scored in the third period when Guidry again hit Dodd with a long pass-this time for 73 yards.

McNeese roared back behind Walet's power running, with Walet socring twice and Guillory once to dump the Demons.

South Carolina Defeats Virginia

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — South Carolina harassed Virginia with timely pass interceptions and a crunching ground attack Saturday and broke a two-game losing streak with a 17-7 victory in an Atlantic Coast Conference game.

The Gamecocks completed only three passes but one of them made the go-ahead touchdown in the second period.

Ashby Sparks NSC To Upset

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Substitute quarterback Page Ashby came off the bench to spark North Carolina State to two quick second period touchdowns and a 21-0 Atlantic Coast Conference upset victory over Duke Saturday.

Favored Duke was never in the game as Ashby and halfback Shelby Manfield riddled the Blue Devil defense and State's unbending line did the rest.

Tigers Hand State 4th Straight Loss

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Quarterback Alex Bowden picked Mississippi State to pieces with his pinpoint passes Saturday and drove Auburn to a 25-18 Southeastern Conference football victory over the Maroons.

ly entrenched the Tigers in first place. Auburn has lost to three non-conference foes.

Once again, Auburn coach Ralph Jordan had to call on his reserve quarterback to ignite the Tiger offense.

Auburn scored the winning touchdown midway in the fourth quarter on a 73-yard drive with Bowden passing four yards to end Scotty Long for the six-pointer.

It was Bowden's second touchdown pass of the afternoon. His first was a nine-yarder to wingback Jim Bouchillon.

Auburn scored first on a 44 yard field goal by Don Lewis. Mississippi State evened the count just before halftime on a 39-yard field goal by James Neill.

Dan Bland, Mississipi State halfback, returned the second half kickoff 73 yards to the Auburn 17. Two plays later, quarterback Ashby Cook hurled Mississippi State to a 9-3 lead by hitting Harlan Reed in the end zone on a 15-yard pass.

Aroused by the quick score, the Tigers roared back and marched 80 yards in 11 plays with a Bowden to Bouchillon pass the payoff.

The Tigers were helped by a 14-yard pass interference call. Key plays in the drive were three passes, a 17-yarder to end Freddie Hyatt, a 13-yarder to Tom Bryan and a 14-yarder to Carl Hardy.

Not satisfied with a slender one-point lead, Auburn came back with a 70-yard scoring drive, culminated by a one-yard touch down slant by Bryan.

Mississippi State tried valiantly to recoup, and scored on a 53-yard field goal by Neill, narrowing the count to 16-12.

But the fired-up Tigers were not to be denied and put the winning six-pointer on the score board midway in the fourth.

Mississippi State's last-gasp attempt to get back in the game came with about six minutes left. Cook passed 45 yards to fullback Hoyle Granger, the ball winding up on the Auburn 19. Three plays later, Cook found end Dave Nugent in the end zone for six points.

The fry for two points failed.

Ohio State In Comeback Win Over Indiana

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Fullback Will Sander bolted into the end zone with a fourth quarter touchdown, his second of the game, in giving Ohio State a comeback 17-10 Big Ten victory Saturday over an aroused Indiana team.

The Buckeyes, battling to stay alive in the conference race before 83,863 fans, drove 63 yards in 12 plays to post the clinching score with 5:29 remaining.

Sander busted over from the two to culminate the drive, sparled by quarterback Don Unverferth's three pass completions.

The triumph was the fourth against a lone setback for the Buckeyes, while Indiana fell to a 1-4 mark in the league.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)— Bobby Burnett supplied the power Saturday as the Arkansas Razorbacks, the nation's No. 2 team, extended its undefeated streak to 20 games by overwhelming outmanned Rice 31-0.

Burnett scored two touchdowns, set up another, and saw his running play a major role in a drive that led to a 37-yard field goal by Ronny South.

13th in a row in Southwest Conference play, a record that exceeded a streak of 12 by Texas in 1963-64.

Arkansas scored the first two times it had the ball and boosted its halftime lead to 17-0 when Burnett scored after Bobby Roper intercepted a Rice pass and raced 49 yards to the Owl nine in the second quarter.

Arkansas drove 64 yards for an early touchdown in the fourth period and closed with a 10-yard touchdown by Jim Lindsey on the first play after another pass interception with six minutes remaining.

The Porker defense permitted Rice to pass the Arkansas 33 only once, and then only on a fumble recovery to the Razorback 12 early in the second period. On the next play, Arkansas regained the ball at the 11 on a fumble recovery.

Burnett netted 116 yards in 28 carries, running his eight-game season total to 713 yards for 176 plays. His touchdowns were good for five and three yards.

Two plays later Rice fumbled and Joe Black recovered at the Porker 49. An 11-yard run by Burnett moved to the Owl 22 but three plays netted only two yards and South kicked his 37-yard field goal.

Arkansas needed only two plays to score after Roper's sideline run, Burnett driving to the four on the first effort and into the end zone on the second.

A 20-yard pass from Brittenum to Bobby Crockett was the key play in the 66-yard fourth period Porker surge, with Crockett falling out of bounds at the Rice six. Burnett moved to the three and then powered over left guard for his second touchdown.

Jaguars Beat Wiley 77-0

MARSHALL, Tex. (AP) — Willie Johnson passed for five touchdowns and ran for two Saturday as Southern University smashed Wiley 77-0 to spoil the latter's homecoming.

Four minutes before the end of the game there was a gang fight on the field with the Southern bench emptying to get into it.

No Wiley players went on the field but the 11 who were already there mixed it with the Southern players and headgears were swinging.

Tech Follows Laird, Upsets Southeastern

HAMMOND, La. (AP) — The strong passing arm of quarterback Billy Laird pushed Louisiana Tech to a 16-14 upset victory over Southeastern Louisiana Saturday night.

The loss was doubly painful for the Southeastern Lions — it was their homecoming and they had been tied for the lead in the Gulf States Conference with McNeese State, which won over Northwestern Louisiana to take sole possession of the GSC top spot.

Tech went ahead 10-6 in the third quarter when Campbell kicked a 20-yard field goal. The final Tech marker came on an 11-yard pass from Laird to flankerback Jim Jones. The conversion try failed.

PINEVILLE, La. (AP)—Louisiana College scored two touchdowns in the opening half and coasted to a 13-0 victory over Florence State, Ala., here Saturday night.

The victory gave Louisiana College a 2-5 record, while Florence is 3-5.

The Wildcats scored their first marker in the opening stanza when Bob Gravolet capped off a 20-yard drive, going over from the 10. The try for the conversion failed.

The LC score was set up by a bad snap from center on a fourth down punting situation from Florence. The Wildcats took over on the Florence 20.

Jerry Hollifield raced 11 yards for the second LC score in the second period. This time George Fields booted the conversion.

Dayton Pridgen set up the score when he returned a Florence punt 25 yards to the Florence 37. Eleven plays later, Hollifield broke loose for the touchdown.

Tommy was the leading rusher for the night, collecting 73 yards in 18 carries.

Rains, Birddogs, Game Control

With Paul Martin

The rains came!

Forest and fields blossomed into sharp display of autumn color. Not in flower, but with the work of nature's artist. Frost's paint brush accomplished under grime of dust that hidden until gentle rain washed away the veil, showing blended and contrasting colors for the pleasure of those who enjoy our outdoors.

Returning sunshine spotlights the forest hues soon lost as the prankish painter's art strips the branches bare.

Rains late in the week shoves aside six weeks of drouth. Hunters welcomed it. Some lakes may be stimulated to fishing with refreshing new water.

No group welcomed weather's turn more than the North Louisiana Pointer and Setter Club which holds its first annual Fall Trials near here next Saturday and Sunday.

Pointer, Setter Trials

LITTLE HYTONE LADY, a Joe B. Zuber's three year old setter, is among entries for the fall trials of the North Louisiana Pointer and Setter Club here next Saturday and Sunday. (Staff Photo by Hershel Womack Jr.)

Larry Hudson, Monroe, club president, Bob Taylor, Monroe, vice president, and Joe B. Zuber, West Monroe, secretary-treasurer, have been busy promoting the trials for an organization that has been in existence hardly more than two months.

There will be some good talent to watch. In addition to dogs expected from Arkansas and Texas, several area Pointers and Setters are due.

Members of the young club will have definite contenders of their own. Taylor's Setter puppy was first in its class at Shreveport's Ark-La-Tex Trials last week. Zuber's Setter puppy was third, and Hudson's three-year-old Pointer, Mojo, took third in the riding shooter division.

Four events are scheduled for the two-day trials, walking puppy at 8 a.m. Saturday followed by the walking shooting dog trials, and the riding puppy derby beginning at 8 a.m. Sunday with the riding open stake immediately after. Setters and Pointers will work together without division of sex or registered and grade dogs.

Registrations will be accepted until 8 o'clock Thursday evening when drawings will be made at the Hudson home, 413 Loop Road, Monroe. Earlie registering —$5 per dog in the walking classes and $7.50 per dog in the riding divisions — can be made by contacting Hudson at phone 322-8852 or Zuber at 396-2271.

Not less than 40 dogs seem certain to compete from the Ark-La-Tex area. The sponsors will furnish horses for the handlers.

Spectators will be welcome to the trials, Hudson said, and lunch will be available at the grounds north of Perryville and U.S. Hghway 165. Direction signs will be erected from the intersection of 165 and Sterlington road to the fields.

Give Biologists A Chance

In 1952 the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission was created by constitutional amendment to conduct the business of wildlife management for the state.

Commission opposition got another amendment vote just five years ago this month in an effort to abolish the commission, but took a sound beating.

Dedicated wildlife biologists who work at their profession every day of the year steer the program that has, with the help of sportsmen, returned big game to areas of the state that hardly 20 years ago never expected to have deer, bear, or turkey hunting seasons again.

The commission leased properties from big land owners and purchased other tracts to establish game management areas that are producing abundant game.

Biologists say the areas need to yield their crop at any-deer controlled hunts. It's their business to know what an area can safely carry and when the harvest should be taken, doe included.

An example of "management" is Bussey Lake near Bastrop. The wildlife biologists have had a free hand at Bussey and it has been the hottest fishing spot in north Louisiana with good yields of large fish.

Deer are now giving nearly every parish a hunting season, something confined to a few delta parishes only a few years ago. The advances speak of management success. It deserved praise, not abuse.

Police jurors, state representatives and senators are being pressured to regulate their parishes contrary to wildlife desires. There are no any-deer hunts planned anywhere in the state outside the management areas.

With any-deer controlled hunts in Chicago Mills, Georgia - Pacific, Russell Sage or any other management areas, they'll still produce as many and finer deer than the areas surrounding those which do not permit any-deer hunts. This is game management, it needs a chance to work.

One man, a good sportsman but still only a layman compared to the biologists, who is opposing the any-deer proposals is a cattleman. He does not save all the cows and calves he produces. He knows what his ranges can carry for the well being of his stock. We know he culls his cows, gets rid of all the calves he can't use. He's practicing game management at the domestic level. If he didn't his range couldn't support his stock. Yet he tells the wildlife commission game management is wrong.

The wildlife commission Thursday turned down requests to abandon the planned any-deer hunts. That doesn't mean the fight is won. It's nearly three weeks before the gun season opens on deer. Pressures will be brought to bear before then.

It's time the voters who like what the biologists are doing tell their police jurors so. Possibly they're getting only one side, that of the opposition. Satisfied sportsmen have had no reason to run crying to their jurors.

No one has shown us the biologists are wrong. We'll go along with the men who can't afford to be wrong. It's the job they're trained to do.

Those 'Little People'

By now the "little people" know friend Sam Hanna is a newspaper publisher at Ferriday, but we still want to hear from you.

Clarence Holmes and J. R. Ronnell, Winnsboro, caught 21 bass averaging three pounds each at King's Dump the past week.

C. McPherson came out of Black Bayou here in mid-week with six fine bass, two were five and six - pounders.

"Skeeter" Rogers, West Monroe, is among those who has taken a buck while bowhunting. Dr. Armand McHenry, we are told, will be in charge of "eats" for the aforementioned birddog trials. Squirrel hunters Arla Hollis and Billy Joe West, Ferriday, got their limits in Concordia parish.

Ferriday fishing successes saw white perch limits for C. C. Vanya at Willow Lake and Bass limits were reported by Mrs. T. L. McKeithen at Lake Concordia, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Thompson at Concordia, and Mrs. George Lee at Lake St. John.

Mrs. Sam Foutz took a mixture of 20 fish from River Chute below Lake Providence last weekend, returned Tuesday to mix 16 more where bass, white perch and cat have been reported doing good.

'Bama Tops Mistake - Prone Tigers

By STUART HILL
World Sports Writer

BATON ROUGE — A mistake - prone LSU squad fell out of the Southeastern Conference title picture altogether and Alabama remained in focus here Saturday afternoon as the Tide made the most of chances offered and rolled to 31 - 7 victory over the Tigers.

A regional television audience and an estimated 58,000 fans watched the Tigers play like waiters trying to give the game away. It was a job the Bengals completed in only one half of play.

LSU is now 5 - 3 on the season and almost out of any post - season playing date consideration. Alabama, beaten only by Georgia, is 6-1-1 for the year and is 5-11 in the sec. The Tgiers are 1-3 in the league.

	Ala.	LSU
First downs	16	14
Rushing yardage	207	72
Passing yardage	150	203
Passes	9-18	15-35
Passes intercepted by	3	0
Punts	7-40	8-40
Fumbles lost	3	2
Yards penalized	14	42

The Crimson Tide scored after two drives and got the rest of its points following fumble recoveries or pass interceptions.

The Bengals, aside from being bottled up and making mistakes, did manage to score in the fourth on a 53 yard pass from quarterback Pat Screen to halfback Joe Labruzzo. Doug Moreau, who had a miserable day receiving, kicked the PAT.

Alabama got it's first score on a 45 yard pass from Steve Sloan to Dennis Homan with 5:45 left in the first period. The Tide drove 75 yards in 12 plays and sent Steven Bowman in for the score from the Tiger two with 14:23 left in the second.

Sloan, making a bid for post season honors, hit kicker David Ray with 2:24 left in the half for the third Bama tally and Ray kicked a 41 yard field goal with only 43 seconds left in the period. Ray accounted for three of the Tide's PAT's and Steven Davis booted another when Ray was shaken up on a touchdown play.

Sloan failed to throw a pass in the second half but still managed to set a school record and pick up 150 yards through the air.

Screen, filling in for the injured sophomore sensation, Nelson Stokley, attempted 35 and completed 15 for 203 yards and had three intercepted. However, Screen had less trouble hitting his receivers as his receivers did catching the ball.

The Tigers offered fans little reason to cheer in the first half as they were foiled in every attempt to move on offense. The Bengals were unable to mobilize on their first series of downs after the powerful 'Bama boys marched to the LSU 35 following the opening kickoff.

Joe Labruzzo fumbled on the Tide 25 the seond time the Bengals got a chance and put a damper on a proposed 51 yard Tiger scoring march. LaSalle's Billy Masters threw a yardage-gaining block for Labruzzo on the illfated run. Dickie Thompson recovered for 'Bama and the Tidge began a 75 yard point-getting match that carried over to the second period.

After Bowman had sneaked in for the second 'Bama score, LSU began a drive that was to come to an abrupt end when Tim Bates snagged a Pat Screen pass at the Tide 26 and returned to the 46 with 7:57 left in the half.

'Bama went on to score again after the interception on Sloan's six yard pass to Ray.

An onside kick gave LSU the ball on its own 39 but after Screen had run twice and picked up a first down and tossed one pass incomplete, he fumbled at the 46 and 'Bama's Creed Gilmer leaped on the football to set up Ray's 41 yard field goal that came with :43 left in the half.

The first 'Bama score of the opening half came after the Tide set up shop on its own 43 following a Buster Brown punt. After four plays Sloan lobbed the 45 yard scoring strike to Kelly who had outmaneuvered LSU's Jerry Joseph.

Alabama had a total of 249 yards after the first half. Sloan, who completed nine of 16 passing attempts in the opening half, amassed 150 of the halftime yardage on passing alone. Also during the opening two periods, he broke an Alabama record for the most passes thrown without an interception. Before the half ended he had completed 62 passes without an interception.

Bowman rushed for 50 of his total yardage in the first half and Kelly picked up 30 yards as the Crimson Tide marched to an impressive first half lead over the mistake - plagued Tigers.

With Screen guiding the attack, the Tigers opened the second half attempting to pass their way to victory, or at least prevent a humiliating defeat. The New Orleans senior attempted most of his passes from a shotgun formation during the third period.

It was after a failure to get the passing attack going in the third that Bowman dashed 36 yards after taking a pitchout from Sloan to up the score to 31 following Ray's kick with 5:24 left in the third.

LSU got its first break of the game as idle mentor Paul Bryant was attempting to let his subs get some experience. After LSU was forced to punt when passes failed again, Kenny Stabler, sophomore quarterback, fumbled and Mike Robichaux recovered at the LSU 44.

Screen picked up on a 12 yard gain and went back to the passing game, which again failed and the Tigers had to punt to the Tide with :50 left in the third period.

By the time the Tigers scored in the fourth, the game was well out of reach but then the Bengals got another break when a Stabler pitchout went wild and Sammy Grezaffi leaped on it for LSU at the Bama 30 yard line.

Screen passed to Moreau and then ran the necessary yardage for a first down at the 20. He then tossed two consecutive passes to Moreau, who dropped his third and fourth receptions.

Screen threw to Moreau again on the following play and Jackie Sherrill intercepted in the end zone to give 'Bama the ball on its own 20 and stop any threat with a little over eight minutes to play.

After the Tigers forced Alabama into a punting situation and were unable to go on the next series themselves, another big break fell their way.

John Mosley fumbled a Brown punt and the Tigers got possession at the 'Bama 23 on the basis of Billy Master's recovery.

A few plays later, Tim Bates intercepted a Screen pass on the Alabama 21 to again stop any possible hope of ending the drive with an LSU score. The interception came with 4:44 remaining and then 'Bama proceeded to try to run out the clock.

The two teams exchanged punts before the Tide was able to complete the task.

However, Screen connected with a 48 yard pass to Moreau that carried to the 'Bama 14 with :21 showing on the clock. Screen threw four passes, the last complete for seven yards as the game ended.

Texas Trims Baylor To End Streak, 35-14

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas staggered pass-minded Baylor with four touchdown tosses in the first half and whipped the Bears 35-14, ending a three-gam e Southwest Conference losing streak for the Longhorns.

Three touchdown passes were to end Pete Lammons, who had not scored this season although he is Texas' leading receiver.

The victory pushed the Longhorns' season record to 5-3 and dropped the Bears to 3-4. The four touchdown passes tied a school mark set in 1946, and Lammons three receptions established a record for a player in one game.

Baylor, trailing 35-0 at halftime, went to the air twice in the last half for its scores. The Longhorns were sluggish after piling up the big lead, fumbling the ball five times in the second half.

Texas first surprised the Bears when quarterback Marvin Kew, lofted five-yard pass to Lammons for the score. The drive started on Baylor's 14 — after linebacker Fred Edwards intercepted a pass and ran it back 38 yards. David Conway converted as he did after all five tallies.

Later in the first quarter, Kristynik climaxed a 40-yard drive with a 12-yard flip to Lammon. Five plays later, Kristynik drilled a 54-yard pass into Les Derrick's arms as the wingback sprinted down the sidelines for the score.

The Longhorns tacked on two more touchdowns in the second quarter, moving 75 yards in 2 plays for the fourth score. Quarterback Greg Lott pushed in from the one for the score on fourth down. A fumble recovery by end Bill Sullivan started the drive.

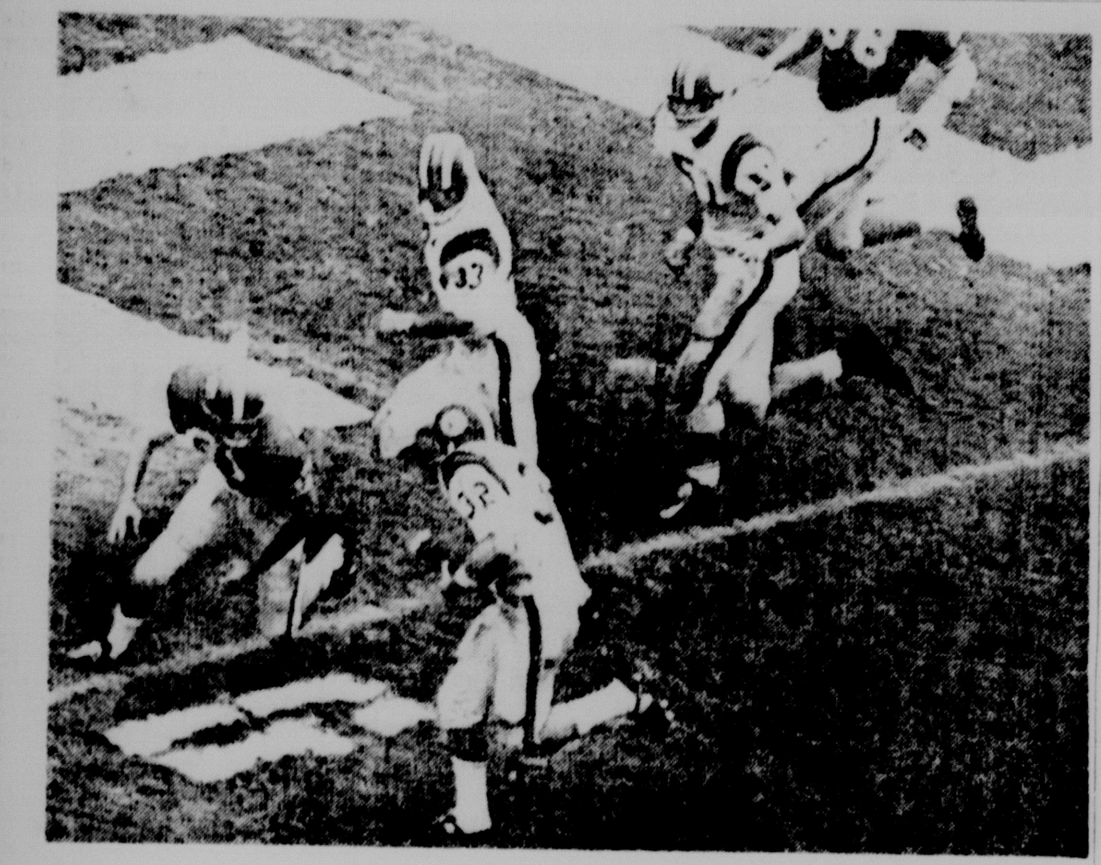
Florida Rallies To Hand Georgia 2nd SEC Loss



ALAN POE, (32), Florida back, took a pitchout from quarterback Steve Spurrier and scored around left end in the last seconds of the second quarter Saturday. Georgia back Doug McFall (37) was unable to stop Poe. Other Florida players are: Jack Harper (33) and Bill Carr (51). (AP Wirephoto)

Triumph Keeps Gators Hopes Alive

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Florida struck with lightning-like fury in the final minutes on two Steve Spurrier passes for a 14-10 comeback vcitory over Georgia Saturday.

The triumph kept alive Florida's flickering hopes for the Southeastern Conference football crown and a bowl bid, and cast a pall on the aspirations of the Bulldogs. Both teams now have 3-2 league records.

Georgia had the Gators on the ropes until Spurrier tossed a 46-yard pass to Charles Casey and then hit Jack Harper with a 32-yard scoring toss for the winning touchdown.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Statistics of the Georgia-Florida football game:

Punts	10-34	7-39
Fumbles lost	1	3
Yards penalized	27	34

The spectacular, two-play explosion with four minutes left wiped out the 10-7 lead the Bulldogs had built on a 25-yard field goal by Bob Etter and Kirby Moore's eight-yard touchdown pass to Pat Hodgson.

Georgia had kept Spurrier in check until the rangy junior cut loose with his winning tosses. Spurrier had hit on only 6 of 19 throws for 58 yards until his long clutch throws. Harper grabbed the winning pass from two Georgia defenders and fell across the goal, touching off a celebration among the Floridians in the record crowd of 61,527 at the Gator Bowl.

Alan Poe's hard running kept the Gators in contention in the early stages. Poe opened the scoring with a six-yard sprint in the second quarter, but Georgia shot in front in the early minutes of the fourth quarter when Moore's touchdown pass capped a 13-play, 64-yard drive.

Florida was reeling after that Georgia score, and the Gators chances appeared hopeless when Allen Trammell fumbled a Georgia punt on the Gators' 37.

But Florida forced Georgia to punt again, and then struck for the winning touchdown.

Georgia threatened in the first half when the Bulldogs' deepest penetration was to Florida's 47.

But a Florida fumble paved the way to the Georgia field goal, and then the Bulldogs caught fire for their only long drive of the game.

Charlie Fulton Carries Vols By Georgia Tech

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Spectacular passing and running by sophomore quarterback Charlie Fulton carried unbeaten Tennessee to a 21-7 football victory over Georgia Tech Saturday.

An overflow crowd of 52,174, largest ever to see an athletic contest in Tennessee, saw the Vols explode for three third-quarter touchdowns in 7½ minutes.

Tech scored its lone touchdown in the fourth period, when tailback Giles Smith, subbing for the injured Lenny Snow, tore through left tackle and sped 33 yards into the end zone. The run came after Tech had recovered a Fulton fumble. Bunky Henry converted.

Fulton, easily winning the battle of the sophomore quarterbacks with Tech's Kim King, ran for 133 yards and completed 8 of 13 passes for 101 yards.

Tech obviously missed Snow, the Jackets' leading ground gainer, but Tennessee's stubborn defense rose to great heights when the occasion required as it did often in the first half.

The victory gave Tennessee a record of four victories and two ties, and propelled the Vols high on the list of prospective post-season bowl teams. Scouts from three bowls saw the game.

The loss halted Tech's five-game winning streak and left favored Yellow Jackets with a 5-2-1 mark.

After beating off a half-dozen scoring threats in the first half, Tennessee scored first early in the third period when Harold Stancell intercepted a King pass on the Tech 36 and raced in for a touchdown. David Leake made good the first of three extra points.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Statistics of the Georgia Tech - Tennessee football game:

Punts	9-40	8-40
Fumbles lost	1	2
Yards penalized	27	59

King's pass was intended for Mike Fortier, but it bounced off his fingertips into Stancell's hands.

Moments later, Fulton cut through right tackle on a keeper and raced 57 yards—the longest run of the game—to the Tech 21 and set up Tennessee's second score. Fulton capped the 79-yard drive by passing three yards to halfback Hal Wantland for the touchdown.

Tennessee marched 66 yards for its final touchdown with fullback Stan Mitchell plunging from the two to cap the drive. A pass interference call on the Tech 15 helped.

Tennessee set its defenses to stop King's passes. The Tech sophomore connected on 15 of 38 tosses for 140 yards, but he never was able to get off the bomb which had wrecked Tech opponents in earlier games.

The first half was all Tech, as Tennessee fought off at least a half - dozen Jacket scoring chances. Two Tech drives were halted by intercepted passes, one in the end zone by Bobby Petrella. Two others fizzled when field goal attempts sailed wide. Another died on the Vol 10 when King fumbled and Mack Gentry recovered.

Tennessee made only one scoring gesture before the intermission, and it came in the last minute, but Tech's Bill Eastman intercepted a pass to kill the threat on the Tech 35.

Greenies Receive Scalping By Braves

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Stanford's Indians scalped Tulane 16-0 Saturday night in an intersectional football battle with Dave Lewis, a fullblooded Chukchansi, wielding a wicked tommyhawk for the Braves with his passing and running.

The Stanford team, only 37-men strong, struck quickly in the first half for its 16 points behind the agile Lewis while Tulane rolled over and played dead.

	Stanford	Tulane
First downs	25	7
Rushing yardage	280	25
Passing yardage	175	52
Passes	11-17	4-16
Passes intercepted by	1	0
Punts	7-29	10-39
Yards penalized	90	18

The only thing the hapless Greenies did before intermission to cheer the sparse crowd of 15,000 was blocking a Lewis punt. But it was for naught because neither quarterback Bobby Duhon or Dave East could move Tulane.

Stanford switched to ball-control tactics in the second half after rolling up 141 yards rushing and another 98 passing before intermission.

Lewis wound up with 129 yards passing on 8 of 11 throws and was the game's top rusher with 77 yards in 14 carries.

The Greenies started off like they were going places when Butch Coco took the opening kickoff and ran it back 46 yards to the Brave 48. But they could go nowhere from there and were forced to punt.

Terry DeSylvia kicked a 37-yard field goal midway in the first period to put Stanford in front 3-0 and then Lewis guided his squad to two second period touchdowns.

Stanford marched 62 yards in eight plays with Ray Handley going across from the 10 for the first touchdown. An eight-yard pass interference penalty and a 17-yard gain by John Read kept the drive alive.

With 15 seconds left in the second stanza, Lewis scampered over from the five for the second Stanford marker. He drove the Indians deep into Tulane territory with a 25-yard pass to John Mason and a 20-yar dstrike to Bob Conrad.

DeSylvia, who kicked the first extra point, had his second nullified by holding. When he tried again, from 15 yards further back, it was short.

Tulane managed only 52 yards in the air and 25 yards rushing —22 in the first half against the staunch Indian defense.

It marked Tulane's final home appearance of the year, and the last in New Orleans as a member of the Southeastern Conference. Tulane pulls out of the SEC in June to become an independent.

The Greenies, now 2-5, have road games left against Florida and traditional rival Louisiana State.

Stanford, bouncing back from a 41-8 drubbing by Washington a week ago, is now 5-2. The Braves return to the Coast Conference warfare against UCLA next week.

Gophers Bounce Back To Capture 27-22 Big 10 Win

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota bounced back from the near disaster of a blocked punt that led to a Northwestern safety and touchdown and stormed 80 yards on John Hankinson's passing in the closing minutes to score a 27-22 Big Ten football victory Saturday.

Hankinson completed seven straight passes for 84 yards in the sweep to the winning touchdown, which wiped out a 22-21 Northwestern lead.

He had a 25-yard touchdown pass nullified by an illegal procedure penalty before hitting Ken Last with a 22-yard toss on a third down and 21 situation that kept the Gophers alive.

That moved the ball to the Northwestern 16 and another Hankinson pass to Aaron Brown gave Minnesota possession on the Wildcat five.

Idaho Upset 14-7

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Weber State College clinched at least a tie for the Big Sky Conference championship by upsetting the University of Idaho 14-7 Saturday.

The Wildcats turned two Idaho fumbles into touchdowns. It was their last Big Sky Conference game, and they ended the season with a 3-1 record. Idaho, which has two more conference games, now has a 1-1 record and could tie for the crown.

Kentucky Shatters Commodores, 34-0

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tenth-ranked Kentucky, led by the running of fleet-footed Rodger Bird, enhanced its changes of a choice bowl bid by routing Vanderbilt 34-0 in a Southeastern Conference football game Saturday.

The Wildcats rewrote the script by turning from their potent passing attack to a dynamic ground game and made a shambles of Vandy's defense, which was tops in the SEC.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Statistics of the Kentucky-Vanderbilt football game:

	Kentucky	Vandy
First downs	17	7
Rushing yardage	228	79
Passing yardage	85	49
Passes	9-15	5-14
Passes intercepted by	3	0
Punts	8-39.4	9-38.8
Fumbles lost	1	2
Yards penalized	109	20

Bird set Kentucky career and season rushing and scoring records as he scored four of the touchdowns.

The second time it got the ball, Kentucky marched 55 yards in five plays with Bird firing through left tackle on a 32-yard touchdown sprint, his longest scoring run of the year. After Tom Becherer intercepted a Commodore pass and returned it to the Vandy 28, Kentucky scored again in the first quarter. Bird carried over from the one on the sixth play of the drive.

Quarterback Rick Norton, the total offense and passing leader in the SEC, kept the Vanderbilt defense pass-conscious with several well-timed completions. And Bird struck the big blows with his long runs off tackle.

On Kentucky's first series of downs in the second half, Bird ran 25 yards to Vandy's 30 and set a new Kentucky career rushing record. His game total of 132 yards gave him 1,611 yards for his three-year varsity career. The old record was 1,576 by Bill Leskovar in 1950.

Bird's fourth touchdown of the day, a two-yard plunge, ran his scoring total to 78 points and set a Kentucky single-season record.

Vanderbilt mustered only one drive, moving 56 yards to Kentucky's 24. There, Wildcat Kerry Curling intercepted a pass to kill the threat.

Both teams had superb punting, but Kentucky managed to control field position, and most of the game was played in Vandy territory.

Becherer scored Kentucky's fourth touchdown late in the third period when he scooped up a partially blocked punt at the 24 and went into the end zone standing up.

Bird closed out the scoring in the fourth when he crossed from the two after Terry Beadles had intercepted a Commodore pass and returned it 32 yards to the Vanderbilt eight.

Lions' Booster Club Schedules Regular Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Ouachita Parish High School Booster Club will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the school cafeteria, according to president Buddy Tolson.

He said a drawing for a club sponsored contest will also be conducted at the meeting and he urged all members to attend.

Coach Mark Boatright is scheduled to show films of Friday night's Ouachita-Byrd game.

Charley Hennigan has caught 272 passes in his first five seasons with the Houston Oilers.

'Huskers Topple Rival Kansas, 42-6

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Third-ranked and undefeated Nebraska overpowered Big Eight rival Kansas 42-6 Saturday after running up a 21-0 lead and coasting to its eighth football victory of the season.

For Kansas, shutout winners over Oklahoma State and Kansas State in their last two outings, the loss put their season mark at 2-6 and conference record at 2-3.

Halfback Ron Kirkland, back in prime condition after recovering from shoulder injuries, accounted for 146 yards on 1[illegible] carries in the first half.

Kansas was held to 144 rushing yards and 60 passing yards.

The lone Jayhawk touchdown was scored with 27 seconds remaining of the first half. Quarterback Bill Fenton led the 80-yard drive, highlighted by a 21-yard pass to halfback Sim Stokes, a 14-yard spring by fullback Dick Bacon, a 19-yard Fenton pass to Richard Abernathy and a two-yard scoring run by Fenton.

By that time, Nebraska had racked up three touchdowns on drives of 61 yards, 59 yards and 97 yards.

The Cornhuskers added three touchdowns in the third quarter, two of them in 86 seconds. Marches of 4 and 58 yards had produced touchdowns when defensive back Kaye Carstens intercepted a Fenton pass and returned 27 yards to the Kansas seven. Charlie Winters scored on the next play.

Harding Rallies To Edge Out Henderson 7-6

SEARCY, ARK. (Special) — Harding came from behind with an 84 yard drive late in the fourth period and kicked the extra point to beat Henderson State Teachers 7 - 6 here Saturday night.

Henderson scored its TD on the first play of the second period when tackle Tony Beltrani recovered a fumble in mid air on the Henderson 32 and ran 68 yards for the score.

The extra point was missed.

Harding had a fourth and six on the Henderson six when pass interference was called placing the pigskin on the three yard line.

Moute picked up 85 yards for Harding and Howard got 70.

The college problem is large as life

It's as large as the lives of the qualified high school graduates who may be unable to enter their chosen colleges because of lack of room.

But don't blame the colleges for turning these boys and girls away. There's a shortage of classrooms, facilities and teachers who educate these potential leaders.

We feel it because we need leaders to administer our national resources, manpower and human skills.

If our leadership declines, what happens to our proud level of jobs, opportunities and living standards?

Houston Upends Mississippi, 17-3

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Sophomore Warren McVea, who had been disappointing after predictions of a sensational year, caught touchdown passes good for 80 and 84 yards Saturday night to lead the Houston Cougars to a stunning 17 to 3 upset over the Mississippi Rebels.

McVea's blinding speed combined with an inspired, clawing and butting Cougar defense for Houston's first victory ever over Ole Miss, a 14-point favorite. Mississippi won the 12 previous meetings between the two schools.

One of the greatest high school players in Texas history, McVea had not really lived up to his press clippings until he broke open a 3-3 game in the third quarter.

Mississippi had punted to Dick Spratt on the Houston 10 and Spratt fielded the ball with Rebels charging at him only feet away. He was hit instantly, fumbled, and Dave Wells recovered.

Ole Miss couldn't go, however, and a 24-yard field goal attempt was wide to the left.

On the first play from the 20, quarterback Bo Burris dropped back behind beautiful blocking and fired a tremendous pass to the speeding McVea on the sideline at the Mississippi 35. McVea shot into the end zone.

In the fourth quarter when the Rebels were expecting Houston to merely kill time running, Burris faded back and arched another to McVea cutting over center and McVea outran everyone.

Houston drove 66 yards in eight plays the first time it got the ball and took a 3-0 lead on Ken Hebert's 29-yard field goal.

The big plays in the drive were Burris' 24-yard pass to Tom Beer on the Ole Miss 25 and Mickey Don Thompson's crunching run on the next down to the eight.

Mississippi couldn't put its offense together until the middle of the second quarter when Heidel threw a high, hard pass deep over center which Mike Dennis barely reached with his fingertips. Dennis raced on to the Houston 14 for a 66-yard gain. Dick Spratt hauled Dennis down from behind.

Spartans Bomb Way Past Iowa Hawkeyes

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Top-ranked Michigan State, led by halfback Clinton Jones' four touchdown runs, pounded to a 35-0 victory over Iowa and clinching a Big Ten football title tie Saturday.

The Spartans needed a pass bomb and an Iowa penalty for two second quarter touchdowns which launched their eighth straight over-all victory and extended their Big Ten record to 6-0.

Jones scampered 19, 6, 4 and 3 yards for his touchdowns which virtually locked up a Rose Bowl trip for the Spartans, who close Big Ten play next Saturday against Indiana.

Even should Michigan State wind up in a title tie, the Spartans presumably would get the Rose Bowl nod since their last Pasadena trip was by the 1955 MSU team.

Minnesota and Ohio State each hold a mathematical chance to tie for the title, and each has been to the Rose Bowl more recently.

Hapless Iowa, which dedicated the game to quarterback Gary Snoook, whose father died Wednesday, throttled Michigan State until Steve Juday hit end Gene Washington with a 44-yard pass on Iowa's 19 midway in the second quarter.

On the next play, Jones exploded around Iowa's right end for a touchdown and a 7-0 Spartan lead.

Late in the second quarter a play broke Iowa's back. Punter Larry McDowell drilled a 75-yard punt to Michigan State's four. But the Hawkeyes held on the play. Punting again, McDowell's kick was partially blocked and the Spartans took over on Iowa's 17.

Grambling Tops Arkansas Club, Follows Dyer

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (Special) —A slumbering giant a week ago, Grambling College drove with its accustomed skill and velocity here Saturday afternoon to defeat Arkansas AM&N, 21-9, behind the explosive running of All-American fullback Henry Dyer.

The Tigers fought back superbly as Dyer demonstrated why pro football scouts and Dell Sports Magazine rate him No. 2 among "college football's 11 Most Wanted Players."

Dyer scored two touchdowns and gained 220 yards in 25 attempts. He kept the crowd on its feet with his straight power and shifty slithers in the open field.

With Dyer in the driver's seat, the Tigers struck with a ground attack that not only was unabated, but obviously mounted with each succeeding play.

Cheered heartily by ardent admirers of "hard nose football," the Tigers powered into the endzone on drives of 62, 80 and 15 yards.

Dyer set off the initial wave of reverberation by diving one yard to cap the opening drive.

He scored again on the 80-yard swoop before cheer leaders could finish their post-touchdown "Rickety-rack, rickety-rack" yell.

Both touchdowns came in the second quarter.

The rest of the half consisted of lost opportunities on the part of Grambling and futile efforts by Arkansas.

Coach Van Johnson's stubborn crew spent most of their time re-adjusting the defense to meet Dyer's crushing maneuvers.

In all, it was a day of supreme jubilation for the Tigers who have only two SWAC games remaining. Grambling had a 5-2 record.

Able to make only sporadic gains through the line, Arkansas made most of its yardage through the air, but was tormented by fumbles and interceptions.

Grambling reflected a marked superiority in over-all statistics as the Tigers held a 15-9 first down margin and outgained the Lions 351 to 280 yards in total offense.

Bill Wolski Ties Record As Irish Bop Pitt, 69-13

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bill Wolski rambled for five touchdowns to tie a Notre Dame record for scoring in one game as the Fighting Irish crushed an outclassed Pitt football team 69-13 Saturday.

The 195-pound senior scored two touchdowns each in the first and second quarters and one in the third.

Wolski sat out most of the second half after the Irish rolled up a 42-6 third quarter lead. His performance tied the record set in 1923 by Red Maher against Kalamazoo.

The defeat before a homecoming crowd of 57,169 was the first administered to a Pitt team at home by Notre Dame in the 32-game series. It marked the third time this season an opponent had rolled up more than 50 points against the Panthers.

Notre Dame, the nation's fourth-ranked team, set the pattern in the opening minutes of the first quarter when the Irish scored on the first two plays from scrimmage.

Nick Eddy ripped off 26 yards to the Pitt 42 and on the next play Larry Conjar streaked in for the TD. Wolski scored his first touchdown in the first quarter from the Pitt seven, capping a 52-yard drive. Later in the quarter he smashed across from the four.

Wolski added two more touchdowns in the second quarter to give the Irish a 35-6 halftime lead. After his fourth TD, which tied an earlier performance by Larry Conjar against Southern California, Wolski threw the football into the end zone stands. Safety man Nick Rassas set up Wolski's fourth and fifth touchdowns with an interception and a 44-yard punt return.

Neville Launches Cage Play Soon

By JIM MATHIS
World Sports Writer

The Neville Tigers will open their 1965-66 varsity basketball schedule on Nov. 22 at Harrisonburg.

The Tigers will play a 22 game schedule and participate in three tournaments, including the Fifth Annual News-Star World Invitational on Dec. 9, 10, and 11.

In their first year in triple-A ranks last year, the Tigers reached the state cage playoffs where Baton Rouge High School stopped them in the quarter-finals.

The new edition of Neville cagers will try to improve upon a 28-5 record compiled by last year's team.

Hollis adds that speed will be a problem for the Tigers this year—a dilemma all but unknown to Tiger cage teams that have over the past three years amassed a record of 93 victories against just 15 losses.

Much of the Tigers' practice spent on defense, which will be a key factor in Neville's success on the hardwood this year.

Returning Tiger lettermen include Jay Eppinette, Charles Floyd, Lance Dreyer, and Chris Turner.

Mirella Freni Story

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

CRITICS are raving; the public is discovering — a new Mimi. Mirella Freni looks like the pretty, delicate heroine of Puccini's "La Boheme" and she certainly sounds like her — young, clear and sweet.

In January 1963, at La Scala Opera House in Milan, Miss

MIRELLA FRENI

Freni, tenor Gianni Raimondi and a new production mounted by conductor Herbert von Karajan and designer Franco Zeffirelli created the most operatic excitement since Joan Sutherland went mad in "Lucia di Lammermoor."

Angel released a "La Boheme" recording — Miss Freni, tenor Nicolai Gedda and conductor Thomas Schippers — in 1964, to further acclaim.

This year, on the third night of the season, Miss Freni and Raimondi made exciting Metropolitan Opera debuts as Mimi and Rodolfo. (Unfortunately they will not be heard on a Saturday afternoon radio broadcast from the Met.)

A color movie of their performances at La Scala soon will be shown in 1,050 theaters in some 300 American cities for two days only. In some cities, this will be Oct. 20 and 21, others Oct. 27 and 28 and others Nov. 3 and 4.

Miss Freni sings in "Boheme" five times at the Met and in "L'Elisir d'Amore" five times. She also does four "Bohemes" with the Chicago Lyric Opera and one New York concert and then goes back to Italy by December for La Scala rehearsals of "Faust."

Two days after her Met debut, Miss Freni, through an interpreter, said, "The Met is a high point of a career. For an Italian, the first great step is La Scala. After La Scala, of anything foreign—it is the Met."

Her acting as Mimi, as well as her singing, has been much praised. The 30-year-old soprano says she never studied acting. "It is just from the heart." She says von Karajan and Zeffirelli approved her interpretation of Mimi as fragile and graceful. She says Zeffirelli told her to remember that in the third and fourth acts Mimi is like a doll which is broken.

Von Karajan had never heard her when she arrived to do "Boheme" with him, Miss Freni says. "He trusted persons from the La Scala management who said they had a young singer who was gifted. But if in the first rehearsals, I hadn't been satisfactory to him, he would have thrown me out."

She and Raimondi have sung "Boheme" together 50 times at La Scala, "and we always had a sold - out house.

"We go vocally very well together," she says. "Our voices sound well united because we both have the same color of sound."

Met debut night, the soprano's entrance was greeted with applause which surprised her because she hadn't realized she was known in America. Fans in the hundreds asked for autographs afterward, which surprised her further. Angel Records then gave a party, which lasted until 2:30 a.m. and Miss Freni and her husband, still keyed up, played a two-handed card game until 4.

The soprano and her husband both were born in Modena, in northern Italy, and still live there. At age 11, he played piano during a student recital in which she, age 10, sang "Sempre Libera."

Their daughter, Micaela, age 9, is named for the role in which Miss Freni made her operatic debut, in Mantua, in 1955. The soprano says, "Her eyes are even bigger than her mother's. But in character she is like the father — serious.

"All the women of Modena know well how to cook," Miss Freni says, "and so do I. The spaghetti is good here but overcooked. Now I eat spaghetti only once a day instead of twice, but if you could have seen how much spaghetti I ate yesterday you would know I do not diet."

Miss Ferni has a new LP, "Operatic Arias," out on Angel. She also can be heard on three opera recordings besides "Boheme" as Oberto in London's "Alcina" starring Joan Sutherland, as Micaela in RCA's "Carmen" starring Leontyne Price and as Nannetta in the RCA recording with Geraint Evans as "Falstaff."

Art history — school boards — Piet Modrian — available in junior sizes — rambling thoughts yet relative in a most unrelated way!

Recently a plan was set forth before the parish and city school boards, proposing school children be brought to the Masur Museum of Art for morning lectures. The exciting program if adopted would serve a dual purpose, primarily educational, but the effects would undoubtably stimulate cultural interest for both the participating children and their parents in not only the museum but art in general. The talks would emphasize art appreciation and art history.

Perhaps no other educational topic suffers as does art history from too little exposure. The fault it would seem is worldwide.

History teaching, yes, this is taught with almost universal appeal. Art, too, both appreciation and performance, is included in most school curriculums. But the combination of art history—that discipline which fuses so many others — is taught only in a handful of schools in any one nation.

Yet one would be hard pressed to find a serious educator in any country who wouldn't allege that schooling in art history is essential to the cultural development of man.

And we might on the lighter side consider woman too . . . for example her knowledge of art history might be very influential when selecting the newest fashion craze . . . Modrian inspired dresses.

Now, 21 years after the Dutch artists death, Piet Modrian is enjoying a revival. But this time his art is hanging, not on gallery walls but on ready to wear racks throughout the United States.

Modrian is not only recognized as one of the world's great artists but as a writer of philosophy.

What is characteristic of Modrian belonged to his temperament and to the philosophy of life that went with it. Though he was much influenced by his great contemporaries, his development was organically consistent, and it is this consistency, combined with a passionate search for the plastic equivalent of a universal truth, that has made Modrian one of the dominant forces of the modern art movement.

Robes Taking Many Shapes, All Newly Soft

Softness is the mood for fall, and many and lovely are the ways to spell softness in robes for fall. Gone are the days of the big, fat dusters!

Now, displaying all the splendors of the Orient at home, the robe becomes a long, slim column, high fitting and narrow, or a short Indian rajah coat.

As a matter of fashion fact, ruffles and cotton quilt form the winning combination for at - home ease, in styles either short and shifty — sometimes with matching booties -- or long and flowing in the empire mood.

When meant as a cover-up for fall's sleepwear, the robe can be a peignoir with a cape effect over a soft, shifty gown. A classic robe covers the strict shape of the jumpsuit nicely.

Many new fabrics and textures appear in the robes for fall: crepes, filmy chiffons, satins, bonded jersey, polyester-filled cotton quilt, and also those favorites, warm brushed flannel and fleece.

New and offbeat color tones are another surprise this season; camel and white combinations, gray, beige, prints, plaids, and the pastels.

HAPPY FACE IS CHIC

The Happy Face is chic. The healthy, outward look of a face blushing with health has replaced the sulky, hoked up aura of the mystery of the waxen beauty. The New Naturalism, seemingly uncontrived but full of careful art, steals the scene in Make - up's ever - more - magical theatre of effects.

THE ENGAGEMENT of Miss Marilyn Ann Massey and Thomas Clifton Ritter is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Massey, 810 Downey Lane, Monroe. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Ritter, 1701 Park Avenue, Monroe. The wedding will take place on January 22 in St. John's Christian Church, Monroe.

MISS SHIRLEY ANNE SULLIVAN

Bonding Boon To Fashion

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bonding is a word you are going to hear more and more of. It has nothing to do with James Bond.

This is fabric-to-fabric bonding. And according to Alamac Knitting Mills, the process opens great vistas in the textile world for knits. It adds new body to the incoming shape of fashion, bringing more aesthetic qualities, a better hand (another term for the feel of the fabric), gives more drapability and increased shape retention.

Hats, Accessories Bring Total Beauty To Two Views Of Autumn

Whether the look is soft or strict, fall hats and accessories are prepared to make it complete.

Fall fashion does move in two ways — toward the softer, curvier silhouette and toward the "strict" architectural shaping that stems from the Courreges influence. But the unifying theme for both silhouettes is the total look, and that's where hats and accessories come in.

HATS ARE SOFT, STRICT

Hats take the soft way in draped turbans and bloused berets. Brims, wide or narrow, cast a pretty, soft shadow. The scarf hat — in the form of a scarf that can be tied any way the wearer prefers, or as a hat that gives the soft effect of a casually - tied scarf — continues strongly into fall.

For the strict silhouette, hats are tailored — jaunty fedoras, for instance. Hats that perch on the back of the head, with squared - off brims to frame the face, are another way to complete this look. Or, the strict silhouette might be softened a bit by a beret shape with a little cap brim.

Taking the total look down to the toes, shoes move softly toward fall with rounded toes, supple leathers, texture interests and feminine adorments such as buckles and bows. The open and airy effect appears in slingbacks and, for evening, sandals of all sorts, including the elegantly bared stripping style.

BOOTS SET OFF FASHION

Boots, very much a part of the strict look, set off everything from short skirts to long pants. Polished smooth leather, dressy suede, nappy brushed leather, rugged grained, patent and glove leathers are some of the textures seen.

The below-calf boot is a basic, the complete range of boot heights extends from ankle to knee.

Handbags play it soft in draped, pleated, gathered and shirred pouches envelopes and satchels. The tailored bag is a natural for the strict look, and may take shape as a tote, envelope, box or shoulder-strapper. Luggage - like detailing is a factor here.

Size for either look in handbags may be small and neat or extra - large, but even the smallest styles are engineered for increased capacity.

Contrast piping, printed linings, beading and embroidery strike the pretty note in gloves. Longer styles are appropriate for the feminine - mood fashions; the shortie comes into its own as a complement for tailored clothes. Texture interest — pigskin, ostrich, lizard, crocodile, either the real thing or fabulous fakes — helps to total up a strict look.

Dresses Priced To Size Newest Reducing Idea

NEW YORK — A dress manufacturer has come up with an idea that should either reduce the size of fat women's waistlines or shrink their bank accounts, The Insider's Newsletter reported today.

Manufacturer Abe Schrader proposes to help American women lose weight by increasing dress prices according to dress size. Under Schrader's plan, a size 10 would cost less than a size 12, and a size 12 less than a size 14, and so on up the line.

New Aid To Whiten Cotton

NEW YORK (UPI) — If your white cotton fabrics turn yellowish after washing, put them through a warm water rinse after adding one teaspoon of photographers' hypo for every gallon of water, chemists at American Cyanamid suggest.

Then follow with a warm, clear rinse. If they still look yellow, repeat the cycle, but this time use hydrogen peroxide instead of hypo.

For 41 Wonderful Years... Serving The Women of Monroe, West Monroe and North Louisiana!

...On Dit...

by Marillyn Taylor

Our recent long dry spell not only pleased the cotton pickers, but brought on one of our most vivid displays of autumn foliage. 'Twas a real treat to be out driving early this week, viewing green-gold oaks, bright maples, red dogwood branches, and flaming tallow trees, all brilliant against deep pine green. Many times a quick freeze and-or hard rains prevent such a sight. Indian summer, when we have it, is a delight indeed.

It was a week for small, intimate parties, both for hail and farewell. Welcoming a newcomer is the best of reasons for entertaining. VERN JACKSON was hostess at this type of party Wednesday morning, honoring NAOMI (Mrs. William KELLY. Naomi, who moved to Monroe recently from Franklinton, was originally from Newellton. Vern invited about a dozen friends for a visit with the newcomer at her home on Stubbs Avenue. A bouquet of vivid orange chrysanthemums centered the refreshment table. Coffee was served with party sandwiches and confections.

Here from Los Angeles, California, for her first visit to Louisiana. ANN (Mrs. B. J.) BRADNER, guest of the J. C. BROWNS, JR., on Bon Aire Drive. Ann and Charlene met last fall when they were members of the same party on a tour of Europe.

On Tuesday afternoon, Charlene was hostess at a small coffee party honoring her visitor. The party was held at home, where entrance and living room were decorated with pots of yellow chrysanthemums. In the dining room, the table was centered with an epergne filled with pink chrysanthemums and pink gladioli. A choice of coffee or tea was offered by ELNA TRIMBLE, HELEN NORRIS, and NELL FAULK, who alternated at the silver service. Trays of confections were passed by SUSAN BROWN and TERRY BROWN.

Charlene and Ann left town early Wednesday to drive to Hodges Gardens, and on to New Orleans. After showing our Crescent City to the visitor, they returned to Monroe late Friday. Plans call for a visit to Vicksburg and perhaps Natchez today.

Another interesting visitor in town was VIRGINIA (Mrs. Richard) THOMAS, former Monroyan now living in Paris, who was here for a week with her mother, MRS. JEFF SPENCE. Husband Richard, who did not make the trip, is assigned to the European office of Hearst Publications in Paris.

NELL POWELL entertained at luncheon complimentary to this visitor, her cousin, on Wednesday at her home on Pargoud boulevard. A green and yellow theme was noted in table appointments, with the use of green placemats, yellow napkins, and a centerpiece of yellow chrysanthemums and greenery. The menu served to ten guests included crabmeat casserole, sweet and sour beans, spiced apple rings, hot rolls with peach preserves, and pineapple parfait.

Now making their home in Monroe are CAROL and S. J. SHLOSMAN, who were married on September 20. The recent bride was complimented at a party last Saturday with BOBBIE GOLDSMITH hostess. Eight friends gathered for sherry at the Goldsmith home on Sherwood drive; then proceeded to the Paragon for luncheon. A bridal arrangement of white daisy-mums decorated the table in the Gold room.

Several farewell parties this week have honored the LARRY SHIPMANS, who left Friday for their new home in Chicago. Larry, Ruth, and their children LARRY, MARTHA, and LILLY, have lived here several years and will be greatly missed.

Wednesday night Ruth was surprised with a dinner party given by members of the choir of First Presbyterian church, a group in which she has been most active. The party was held in the home of HELEN LEDBETTER, with BETTY GEISLER in charge of food. Helen decorated the reception area with masses of yellow and rust-colored chrysanthemums. A large bouquet centered the dining table, and individual tables were ornamented with smaller arrangements. The menu prepared for the twenty-six who attended included barbecued ham, cheese grits, marinated beans, and congealed salads. Various choir members brought assorted homemade cakes.

Libby Shipman was named guest of honor at a supper party Thursday evening, when BECKY BINGHAM was hostess at her home on Oakwood drive. Believing herself invited to supper alone, Libby arrived to be greeted with shouts of "Surprise!" Her gifts from her hostess were a pink chrysanthemum corsage and a charm bracelet, to which each guest added a charm. Pink roses centered the table. A real Southern menu of fried chicken, candied yams, green beans, and Bing cherry salad was served, with chocolate pie for dessert. Those attending were SARA MADISON, LINDE HILLEY, BUF MILLER, and PRISSY SHELL.

A novel idea picked up on their European tour last summer has been utilized by the JAMES KELLYS in a series of small dinner parties recently. At the third of these last Saturday night, the air was just nippy enough to require an open fire on the bayou patio and in the playhouse. The meal was served on the patio where individual tables each held a fondue pot filled with hot coals. Each guest cooked his own selection of steak pieces. Salad and accompaniments were served from a buffet table covered with a pumpkin-colored cloth and centered with an arrangement of autumn foliage. Elethia served dessert later before the open fire in the playhouse.

Home again after a delightful trip East are the J. S. DREWS. They were in season for the lovely foliage to be seen in the Great Smokies. Stops were made in Lynchburg, Raleigh and Atlanta during the two weeks trip.

Alumnae of Randolph Macon Woman's college at Lynchburg, Va., kicked off the college's fund-raising drive with a seventy-fifth anniversary dinner at Bayou DeSiard country club last evening. DR. WILLIAM F. QUILLIAN, JR., college president, was speaker for the event. Members of the local planning committee are NAN SALISBURY, ANNA CLAIRE SEYMOUR, MARY WILTON WADE, and SARAH SHAFTO. About forty friends of the college, including alumnae and prospective students, attended the dinner.

Another special guest in town for the dinner was MARY (Mrs. Virgil) WOOD OF Tulsa, Okla., national vice - chairman of the anniversary campaign. Mary was the houseguest of the AL HUEYS in their home on Island Drive. She and her hostess were former classmates at Randolph Macon.

A chartered bus made the trip to Jackson last Saturday for the Ole Miss-LSU game. The group left here early, arriving at the stadium in time for a tailgate picnic before kickoff. En route home, they stopped in Vicksburg for dinner at the Old Southern Tea Room. Those in the party were the H. G. McDONALDS, MERTON ABINGTONS, G. L. MORGANS, GEORGE WEAKS, ARTHUR GRANTS, CLAUDE EARNESTS, AL HUEYS, VICTOR DAVISES, SHELBY HILLS, CECIL JARRELLS, NEIL BUIES, GRAYSON GUTHRIES, THOMAS LEIGHS, GEORGE SNELLINGS, JR., LOUISE and ED SEYMOUR, DIT CUTLER, MARY and GORDON CUMMINGS, MARIE and HENRY BERNSTEIN, Jr.

An annual and always lovely event is the tea given by Ft. Miro chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, honoring new members. This year's affair is planned for this coming Saturday, November 13, from three to five in the home of JUNE McHENRY, 1810 Riverside Drive. BETTY MOORE is chairman of the tea.

An outstanding member of American Society of Landscape Architects, Mrs. James R. Henderson of Atlanta, Ga., will be speaker at tomorrow's closed meeting of Monroe Garden club, 2 p.m. at Bayou DeSiard country club. Her topic will be "Making Your Landscape a Beautyscape". JANE EARNEST is chairman, with CAROL McDONALD co-chairman.

Today's poem, by Thomas Moore, is entitled "The Time I've Lost in Wooing":

The time I've lost in wooing,
In watching and pursuing
The light that lies
In women's eyes,
Has been my heart's undoing.
Though Wisdom oft has sought me,
I scorn'd the lore she brought me,
My only books
Were women's looks,
And folly's all they've taught me.
And are those follies going?
And is my proud heart growing
Too cold or too wise
For brilliant eyes
Again to set it glowing?
No, vain, alas, th'endeavor
From bonds so sweet to sever;
Poor wisdom's chance
Against a glance
Is now as weak as ever.

Washing Hint

NEW YORK (UPI) — When washing sheer curtains, put all the tie-backs together in a mesh bag or a pillowcase, laundry experts suggest. This way they won't get lost in the wash water or the dryer. Also: pin them together on the line to save hunting for each pair when it is time to hang the curtains again.

Harding College Women Hear Guest Speaker

Bastrop members will host the next meeting on December 7 at Morehouse Country Club in Bastrop, at 7:30 p.m.

Eye Appeal

Restrained, refined fall fabrics make some of their most interesting appearances in suits. Novelty yarns and weave-on-weave provide eye appeal for the flatter - surfaced suitings.

Double - faced fabrics give texture and body without weight.

Suits appear in tattersall, houndstooth or diamond checks, often broken by weave or color, often misted. Foulards, paisleys and calico types are done in soft light wools or other "suitable" fabrics.

Vitamin Aid In Surgery

Three University of Texas physicians recommend that all patients be given vitamin C before surgery.

Blood levels of this vitamin declined sharply the day after abdominal and vaginal surgery in 95 women patients, they found, and this indicates that the body uses vitamin C to combat the shock of surgery.

New 'Granny' Dresses Go To Great Lengths

By JOAN SWEENEY

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A fashion conscious miss hardly dares act her age these days. First came the "little girl look." Now the "granny look" is sweeping the teen - age set.

Granny dresses are what the name implies: ankle - length dresses, usually with an empire waist, trimmed with lace and ruffled sleeves and executed in provincial prints and even homespun. However, there are many variations on this basic theme.

In Southern California, where the "grannies" were born, they are worn everywhere — at Disneyland, at teen-age night clubs, at the beach and even in school.

And now Granny manufacturers, amazed by the overnight popularity of the dresses, report the fad apparently has spread across the nation.

Granny wearers give various answers when asked to explain

A buyer for a large department store chain thought the Grannies were the natural outgrowth of the Maude look.

There are various versions of how many granny dresses originated, but the most popular one attributes them to an incident on a dance party program on a Los Angeles television station — "Ninth Street West" on KHJ-TV.

SILVER CLEANER

To clean silver, try fine-pored, very soft sponges instead of cloths. They penetrate hard to reach crevices and rinse quickly to be used for removal of excess polish.

18th Century Rides Again

Without too much fan-fare at present, English and American Colonial 18th Century furniture styles are making an elegant, sophisticated and fashionable return.

Obscured in the past decade by country cousins — French, Italian and lately Spanish provincial styles — and edged out of the spotlight by Early American on the one hand and modern styles on the other, the furniture designs of the 18th Century masters will never really be forgotten.

The revival of 18th Century furniture offers a full choice ranging from the eras before Chippendale to English Regency, a span of about a century.

Several features give these collections a new, fresh look. First is the mellow brown tone of the mahogany veneers and solids, used quite generally in all the new groups.

Secondly, groups of furniture for living, dining and bedroom have been assembled from prototype pieces of various eras of the period.

Thus, the styles of Chippendale, Sheraton and Hepplewhite mingle harmoniously with earlier Century styles like Queen Anne, William and Mary and George I. Some, new collections reproduce the works of American designers, while others draw inspiration from British museums.

PEEL POLISH

Let spilled nail polish solidify on waxed wood or composition tiled floors before attempting to remove it. When the polish is barely solid and pliable, it can be peeled off. Smears are left by wiping up polish too soon or by using solvent on completely hardened polish.

REPLACE WICK

When replacing the wick in a cigarette lighter, rub one end with soap to make it easy to push through the wick holder. Once the wick is in place, clip off the soaped end.

EASY SPOT REMOVER

To remove a spot on the rug, try foamy shaving cream. It's ready for instant use and is often drier and more effective than foam whipped up from liquid or powdered detergents.

TAPE HINT

To remove cellophane tape from walls without pulling bits of wallpaper or paint off with the tape, press a warm iron against the tape.

Frozen Room Furniture Can Be Dull

A piece of furniture that fits a certain spot exactly can become an immovable object. If you are shopping for an entire room's furnishings, keep in mind that you will want to shift them around for different effects later on. Frozen furniture arrangements can become dull and boring.

Certain elements of any decorating scheme, however, are more permanent in arrangement and require as much attention from a prospective purchaser as does furniture. These are the coverings for the floor, walls and ceiling.

One, long-standing philosophy on decorating the stationary objects is that they should all be neutral in color and design to accommodate the furnishings. More recently homeowners have begun to regard walls and floors, especially, as integral parts of the decorating scheme. Even if one wall is of a different color than the others, careful planning can still provide opportunities for switching the furniture about.

Spanish Poetry Is Topic At Review Club Meeting

Spanish poetry and Frederico Garcia Lorca were the subjects of study Monday, November 1 when the Review Club met in the home of Mrs. Noland Harvey Jr., on Country Club Road.

Mrs. James Altick presented a background resume of Spanish poetry beginning with the early Castilian lyrics and proceeding through the development of the poetry to the present. Mrs. DeWitt Henry spoke on the contemporary poet, Lorca. She pointed out his special Spanish qualities, his remarkable use of color and imagery and his sensitivity to Spanish folklore.

Mrs. C. P. Gray Jr., president, conducted the business meeting and welcomed a new member, Mrs. Charles Wilkins. Mrs. Sam Smith, treasurer, read a letter of gratitude from the United Givers fund thanking the club for its contribution. A report, "Moral Crisis on our Newsstands," was given by the Community Affairs chairman, Mrs. Claude Smith.

Members were invited by the hostess to have refreshments from a tea table centered with an arrangement of fall berries and candles in an epergne. Those present included Mrs. Altick, Mrs. Henry, Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Sam Smith, Mrs. Claude Smith, Mrs. Wilkins, Mrs. Lestar Martin, Mrs. Thomas Dansby, Mrs. Craig Morgan, Mrs. Armand E. Breard, Mrs. E. P. Cudd, Mrs. J. C. Loftin, Mrs. W. T. Davis, Mrs. George T. Walker, Mrs. W. M. Inabnet, Mrs. Herschel Gentry and Mrs. Fred Heunefeld.

BONE ELEGANT

There is a Bone Elegant look of lingerie. The body stockings with their more definite body support radiating from within the briefest, most delectable shells of lingerie.

Furs For Autumn '65 Are Trim, Slim, Casual

Slim shaped coats and jackets lead the way, along with casual styling for furs this fall.

Fall and Winter, 1965 will see a new look in the pale natural colors so favored by designers. The beautiful mutations are highly styled for a more youthful and slimming silhouette.

Fashion advisors of the Emba Mink Breeders Association, producers of more than 50 natural colors of the luxurious fur, point to a number of significant style trends for Fall. Narrow coats lead the fashion parade, with natural shoulders, high-up shaping, skinny sleeves and soft detailing. A trend toward more strongly - defined contours is forecast now, by some designers who show body-fitted coats of mink with skirts flaring from the hips.

Many of the jackets shown for fall are short-ending above the hip, with doublebreasted or jeweled-button closings. Pale shades dominate here too, but a certain casual elegant look is achieved by adding silk pants or culottes. Vertical styled pelts have caught on, especially with short jackets.

In general, coats for the coming season are styled along slim, soft lines, topped with small colors or with blurred motion at the neckline, achieved with ties or wing-shaped colors. Many have shaped fronts and flare slightly toward the hem; and most designers favor a slim back or those with controlled fullness. Sleeves are narrow and belts are placed above, below or at the natural waistline. Of special interest are coats showing the Paris influence with side closings, such as one in Morning Light, natural blue-beige mink, with a banded ring color set well away from the neck.

The cape influence is gaining in prominence among designers. Capes in street coat length and cape coats were shown as fashionable fall coverups. A cape of Lunaraine, natural demi-buff mink has a tie at the neck and should arouse interest with those women seeking the newest look in fur shades. Lunaraine looks amazingly like wild mink, has the added superiority of being American ranch bred mink.

And the ever-popular stoles and wraps take on a new look for the colder weather. Many are designed to stay snugly on the shoulders, leaving arms free. An unusual style is a jacket-wrap in Arcturus, lavender-beige mink, which by means of a hidden closing, unzips to become a stole. Still another wrap is in the favorite Autumn Haze, natural brown mink, which has pelts slanting into a deep chevron designed in back, ending in a pointed hem.

For evening' wear, Jasmine, pure white mink goes to the theatre, discotheques or small intimate dinner parties in a wide variety of styles. For sheer elegance, though, a floor length opera coat in Rovalia, natural pale rose mink. Rovalia, a new mutation has a pale rose cast and has been referred to as "pink mink".

To sum-up the styles for Fall, 1965 — one might say that softness in both style and shade is most dominant, with a look that is trimmer and slimmer than ever before.

Fur trims are here again. Fur bands and borders — particularly those of sable take honors.

Who Says We Talk Too Much?

Careful measurements show that it's only for a total of 10 to 11 minutes daily, on the average, with men ranking about equally with women, an anthropologist reports.

"The standard spoken sentence takes only 2½ seconds," explains Dr. Ray L. Birdwhistell of Temple University Medical Center. We do far more communicating with body movements, with our eyes and eyebrows, facial expressions, hands and shoulders, and also with our silences that sometimes can say a very great deal, he adds.

Little White Wool Dress To Replace Basic Black

The fashion world is featuring a great switchover. The switchover to a whole speedy new breed of ski clothes, to the little lamb of a white wool dress, to the marvelously lacy lingerie, to Sunday nights as the big new moment of the week, to jewelry of mythology, to sumptuous ball gowns as beautiful as night poems.

Where glamor is, there is festivity. There are luxe gowns for holiday nights in feathers, fur, chiffon, sequins, velvet, jewels and satin. And just the right clothes for adding new zest to a Sunday evening — to make Sunday night Monopoly the raciest game in years.

Quick to meet the pulse of any hour, any weather, is the little white dress of supple naked wool. A great switchover from basic black — brilliant and attention - rousing; an indispensable to take resorting, to have on hand for brunch or cocktails, Sundays and every day of a northern November.

Mink from morning on and the great sports treat mink, chinchilla, and sable in fresh, new daytime dimensions.

MRS. BILLY RAY NEWTON

Vows Unite Couple By Candlelight

Miss Sharon Ann Matheny, daughter of Mrs. A. A. Kyle, Delhi and C. M. Matheny of Jena, became the bride of Billy Ray Newton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Newton of Delhi, in a double ring ceremony on October 30 at the First Baptist Church in Delhi.

Rev. Connie E. Ward performed the vows at 7 p.m. before an arch entwined with ivy flanked by baskets of white and pink gladioli with greenery, accented with gold, and pink candles.

The bride, escorted by her step - father, A. A. Kyle, wore a white three piece knit suit, trimmed in navy, with a small white veiled hat and white accessories. She carried a yellow-throated white orchid in a bouquet with lily of the valley and satin streamers.

Serving as maid of honor was Miss Pat Newton, sister of the groom, who wore a pink wool suit and carried a bouquet of pink and white feathered carnations tied with pink ribbons. Her headdress was a pink circlet with a short pink illusion veil.

Ken Newton attended his brother as best man and ushers were Donald Tweedle and Clinton Matheny, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Kyle chose for her daughter's wedding an aqua and white suit with black accessories and a corsage of cymbidium orchids. The groom's mother wore a three piece fall suit with matching accessories and a cymbidium orchid corsage.

Fellowship hall of the church was scene of the reception which followed the ceremony. The maid of honor's bouquet was used for the centerpiece on the bride's table at which Miss Sheree Elmore served the tiered wedding cake and Miss Linda Dale Cupples presided at the punch bowl. The guest book was in charge of Miss Shrrley Stephens.

After a wedding trip to New Orleans the couple is at home in Tallulah where Mr. Newton is employed. The bride attended Delhi high school and Mr. Newton, a graduate of Delhi high school, attended Northeast Louisiana State College.

Sleeves Are Keynote Of Bridal Fashions

The smaller slimmer look is the big news in fall bridal fashions. The entire silhouette indicates the return to the simple line with an accent on the sleeves.

The Goya sleeve, reminiscent of costumes in paintings by Francisco Goya, is still a favorite among fall brides. The length of the sleeve continues to vary between just above the elbow or to the wrist, depending upon the personal taste of the bride.

Extremely popular this season is the detachable train, which the bride can remove at the wedding reception for ease in dancing and going from table to table to greet guests.

ACCENTING SIMPLICITY

The train is snapped on the gown in the back at the waistline; a longer version is hooked in the back at the top of the gown.

Simplicity of shape may be complemented by fabrics with a "tailored" feeling — silk ottoman or silk and worsted, for example — or enhanced by touches of softness. A bridal gown in a coatdress shape might take a sheer cage in the form of a floor-length veil, or a slim shaft of a gown may be softened by a "headdress" that becomes a cascading cape of lace. Back fullness and pretty bows add other soft notes.

The simplicity of the gown offers an excellent background for the bride's jewelry. A diamond pin or a pair of diamond clips set high on the neckline or at the waistband complement the straight silhouette of the gown.

IT'S TRADITIONAL

The traditional diamond engagement ring is the only other jewelry worn by the bride on her wedding day. The engagement ring will be switched from the bride's left hand to her right hand before the ceremony, leaving the left hand free to receive the wedding band.

After the ceremony, the diamond engagement ring is placed back on the left hand in front of the wedding band. This is a custom handed down from Colonial days when the engagement ring was called the "keeper ring" — guardian of marriage.

Consumer Boss Aims To Fight Sloppy Shopping

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — A University of California professor thinks the American housewife is a "sloppy shopper" and yet he is one of the best friends she has.

Dr. Richard H. Holton has until next June to find out if the consumer is getting a fair deal from merchants and manufacturers.

That is the deadline President Johnson set when he appointed Holton chairman of the National Consumers Advisory Council.

"The main question is the truth of packaging," Holton, an assistant secretary of commerce from 1963 until January, 1965, said.

"Is the price as advertised, is the label misleading, is the quality beyond reproach?" he asked.

He thinks labeling laws are ready for overhauling.

"Some laws are only pesky to industry and serve no purpose to protect the public," he claimed.

Holton cited a law which forbids fur dealers to use the word "fur" for anything that is not fur. Thus they can not use the label "artificial fur."

Holton said Americans are "sloppy shoppers" mainly because they are well off and have no interest in saving a few cents and because they can't tell one brand from another.

"How many people can tell if additives in gas improve the performance of a car," he asked.

"Most consumers may be happy, but there are some clearly defined minority groups who need help," he explained.

He said elderly people often live on incomes that do not increase. They can only improve their lot by careful shopping. He also mentioned young married couples who are buying many items for the first time.

Holton hopes that the majority of American shoppers will be influenced by literature he plans to distribute relating past mistakes made by consumers.

GRANNIES ARE BIG

MRS. VICTOR RONNIE SMITH

Your Problems

Parents Should Not Serve As Referees

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl 13 who has a 7 - year - old sister. Laura is spoiled rotten. I have orders not to lay a hand on her because I am older and bigger. But she can kick and punch me whenever she feels like it pretty often.

Laura has learned a stunt to get me into trouble. When she is mad at me she begins to bawl — real loud, so the people in the next block can hear. My dad runs in yelling, "What did you do to Laura?" When I say "Nothing," Laura says, "That's a lie. She hit me." Then I get punished.

I have to do eight household jobs and all Laura has to do is drag a dust rag over a couple of tables. When I complain Mom says, "She's just a little girl," but when I don't want to take her to the movies on Saturday afternoon (I go with my friends), Mom says, "Take her. She's a young lady."

It will be four years and eight months until I can get out of this house and go to college, if I last that long. Tell me what to do until then. — IN MISERY

Dear In: Little sisters and brothers can be a joy or a pain in the neck, depending on how their parents raise them.

Big kids should not hit little ones and little kids should not hit big ones, either. Older children should do more work but they should also have extra privileges.

It is wrong to saddle a 13 - year - old girl with a 7 - year - old sister on a Saturday afternoon. It is also wrong to reward a child for tattling on a brother or sister. The best system is for parents to insist that kids work out their problems independently and refuse to act as referees.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the mother who is heartbroken because her son is marrying a woman seven years older than he is.

My son was 16 when he fell for a woman who was 26. They went together three years and I cried myself to sleep every night. He kept telling me Jeanette was a wonderful person and he loved her three children as if they were his own. Well, I refused to even meet her.

My son married Jeanette when he was 19 (she was 29). Today, five years later, they are the happiest people I know. She is better to me than my own daughters. Jeanette telephones me every few days and says, "Mother, is there anything you need? What can I do for you?" My own daughters call only when they want me to sit with their kids.

So please tell that mother to cheer up. Her son's older wife may be the best one in the bunch. Mine is. —HAD TO BE SHOWN

Dear Shown: Your son and Jeanette have beaten the odds and my hat is off to them.

Dear Ann Landers: Our youngster is a victim of hemophilia. Because of his condition he is often covered with bruises and he appears to have black eyes.

Strangers come over and say, "What happened to the child? Was he in an accident?" We don't feel like discussing his condition with strangers. Furthermore we don't want the boy to feel he's abnormal. Yet we must say something. Advise us please. — W. P.

Dear W. P.: It's always difficult to cope with thoughtless people but your first concern should be for the boy. Tell the inquirers the boy has a blood condition. Chop it there. Explain to the child that when people ask questions they are showing interest in him and they don't really mean to be rude.

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Delhi Couple

An arch entwined with greenery flanked by baskets of gladioli and candles formed a setting in the First Baptist Church of Delhi for the wedding of Miss Betty Lee King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie M. King to Victor Ronnie Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Smith, all of Delhi, on Saturday, October 30.

Rev. Connie E. Ward performed the double ring ceremony at 2 p.m. following a prenuptial concert by Mrs. Barbara Ann Cutler, organist, who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. James Hogue.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a white satin A-line dress in street length, with long sleeves of Chantilly lace and a yoke studded with seed pearls. Her short veil of Chantilly lace was attached to a circlet of seed pearls. Her bouquet comprised a purple orchid, encircled with lilies of the valley, atop a white ivory Bible, a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Jodie Stout.

Miss JoAnn Bellows of Delhi, was maid of honor and wore a blue crepe A-line dress fashioned on similar lines to that of the bride. Her headdress was a blue crushed rose with blue veil of illusion and she carried a bouquet of yellow daisies.

Serving as best man was Nichy Smith of Monroe, brother of the groom, and ushers were Johnny Cheribini and Colin Ringle, both of Delhi.

For the occasion Mrs. King, mother of the bride, wore a three piece green wool suit with black accessories and a corsage of red rosebuds. The groom's mother wore a blue knit three piece ensemble with black accessories and a red rosebud corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in Fellowship Hall of the Church. An arrangement of white Marconi daisies and fern formed the central decor for the bride's table which was covered with a white linen cutwork cloth. The tiered wedding cake, embossed with pink roses, was served by Miss Susan Cutler of Delhi. Alternating at the punch bowl were Miss Annette Teer of Delhi and Mrs. Kathleen Smith of Monroe. Presiding at the guest book was Miss Tish Fuller of Dubach, and presenting rice bags to guests were Miss Teresa Dodd, Farmerville, niece of the bride and Miss Debbie Smith, Delhi, sister of the groom.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Ark., the bride was wearing a brown wool suit with small brown mink hat and black accessories. Her corsage was the orchid from her bouquet. The couple will be at home at 1205½ Ferguson Street in Winnsboro. Both are graduates of Delhi high school and Mrs. Smith is attending Louisiana Tech.

TRY A BEAUTY PARLOR

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — The headmaster of McCallie School, Dr. Spencer J. McCallie, sent this letter to students: "The McCallie School does not look with favor on the present tendency of too many boys having effeminate locks. . .

"Side burns should not be longer than to be even with the corners of the eyes; sides of the head light to medium; hair on top of head no longer than three inches, and not down over the forehead.

"If a boy . . . needs a beauty parlor rather than a barber shop, it could well be that he is making a mistake in coming here."

New Variations For Sandwich Lunch Ideas

You've probably run the gamut of peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, egg salad, tuna fish, cold cuts and cheese, and all the other old standbys, for lunch.

It's time for a little imagination!

Make sandwiches ahead of time as often as you can so you'll really be able to dream up interesting combinations. Stored in plastic bags, and placed in refrigerator or freezer, they'll stay as fresh as the day you made them. Thawing times out nicely between breakfast and lunch.

Some variations on several old themes are: chopped chicken, walnuts and olives; chopped corned beef, minced onion and pickle; Swiss-cheese slices, deviled ham and sweet pickle; hard-cooked eggs, mayonnaise, chopped crisp bacon and chives; peanut butter mixed with chopped dates and figs, lemon juice; and to help take care of last night's leftovers, try meat loaf (or any cold roast) with cucumbers vinaigrette.

CANNED GRAVY

Canned mushroom gravy is fine to serve with broiled flank steak. Remember that the flank steak must be broiled briefly and sliced diagonally or it will be tough.

WAX SHADE

Before a dingy parchment lamp shade is discarded, see if brown shoe polish wax can't give it a new light wood shade. Apply the wax very sparingly with cotton, but rub it in.

A REVIVAL of chic styling features two unexpected textures of suede and calf uppers all tied up with a ribbon bow. A heavy heel adds romantic sparkle to a pump gladly restored to the fashion world.

MY DESIRE is the name given this shoe in a most flattering blending of smooth suede and lustre calf trim. A chic starset bow blossoms into a glimmering motif that surrounds this pump in delicate curved lines.

Winter Whites Dazzle In Season's Footwear

Colors this season crackle through all the brave young shoe shapes, give them added snap and flair. Newest are the winter whites, ranging from immaculate chalked tones, the platinums and gardenias, to the somewhat beiged or pinked ivories.

These new whites are dazzling up the night looks, sometimes alone, as in a serene young buckled satin, and sometimes sharpened with black. When the two are used with great imagination they turn up in prints, in rhythmic swirls or the sharp crack of geometrics.

A half step away are the neutrals, the clear, whitened sand tones, the warm silvers and martinis, the raw silks, rich butternuts and almonds, the tawny honey tans. This influential family is specially valuable for pointing up the depth of the navies, the matte blacks, the dark browns.

The browns are around in rich, strong brews, from whipcord to old brass and khaki, from butternut to sepia and deep loam brown. Texture is abundant here, as in sueded baby turtle in a gentle filly brown, a wet sequin serpent, an extravagantly textured ostrich in winter's deep black walnut.

The blues are this season's beauty queens, vibrant, exciting, touchingly beautiful. Turquoises are good and the fragile whitened blues. So are the near purples, the blues of the "wine dark sea". Sailor blues, royals, cavern blues, all the maritime colorings are here, and the nighttime darks, the blue evenings, trophies and starlights.

Reds have a place too, when they're bright, zany, stinging shades. These look best in textured and grainy leathers or the plushy, deep - piled new suedes.

Texture and color combinations are very much to the fashion point this season. The combination might be off - beat, as ostrich tied with satin or it might be a natural, as pebble patterned calfskin spatted with suede.

Whatever the pairings, or if texture is used alone, it is all-important to the season's scheme of things. So are color combinations, and the new printed leathers. A zingy idea combines wet sand suede and a scattering of small flowers in wild shades of orange and red. Paisley is in too, in leathers and fabrics. So are op art ideas and romantic art nouveau patterns.

Fashion Blossoms This Fall

Fashion wears a feminine freshness this fall, as many styles take shape in an all-girl mood. Appropriately, femininity also blossoms with fresh, fragrant flowers for day and evening fashions.

The new season's corsages are simple, to complement rich colors and fabrics, and to blend effectively with the merry new mixtures of color and pattern. Flowers can enhance fashions, any time.

For daytime suits and dresses, FTD floral experts suggest a bold puff of petals —a single, large chrysanthemum centered in a ring of autumn leaves, or a round bubble of carnations.

For evening, the florist might fashion a delicate necklace of miniature roses for a jewel neckline, or a garland of blossoms to frame an off - the - face hairdo.

Leather On Scene For Every Occasion

Whatever the fashion — coat, dress, jacket, suit or type of separate — it's in leather for fall. Supple and lightweight, leather fashions range in texture from smooth and grained to suede, lustre and embossed.

Colors cover many moods, in pretty winter pastels, clear dramatic tones, no - color neutrals and deep, bold shades.

For the suede or smooth leather coat, silhouettes offer variety. They are full for free-wheeling fluidity. Or they are slim but cut with striding-room, as in fitted doublebreasted models and coats with gentley A - lined skirts.

Leather suits in formal, informal and just-fun styles can see action around the autumnal clock. Theatre suits are softly touched with fur, jeweling or passementerie.

For casual occasion, leather pullover or blouson suits take matching skirts or pants. Smartly tailored suits mate jackets of waist, hip or tunic length with slim or gored leather skirts.

Lean or loose, new knee-clearing leather dresses show such fashion touches as seam welting, novel neckline treatments and fresh color combinations — gray with brown, green with pink. Many are two-piece, either dress with jacket or top with skirt.

The multi - purpose leather jacket, classically tailored or showing softly feminine detailing, may be paired with skirts dresses, pants. Lined with shearling or fur coats and jackets of leather provide warmth when temperatures tumble.

Leather separates offer variety and excitement. There's a wide assortment of leather pants, blouses, stoles, jumpers, tunics and skirts, both long and short.

Pleated, paneled or wrapped, the leather skirt is well-paired with heavy sweaters, tailored shirts and lively blouses. Leather pants, meticulously tailored, team with tops.

RAGE IN FUR

The mastery of mink and the chic of Broadtail fill the fur scene. The touch of fur here and there in hat, in dickie, in coat collar in leopard is the rage.

COZY WINTER

For a cozier winter, try installing an electrically heated towel rack in the bathroom. It dries towels in minutes and can also be used to toast dry ones nice and warm.

MIRROR BATH

In washing hand mirrors, take care that no water seeps in under the glass. Just rub over the mirror with a sudsy cloth; wipe with a clean, wet cloth; and polish until dry.

Thanksgiving Decor Used At Miro Book Club

Seasonal Thanksgiving decor prevailed throughout the home of Mrs. Paul J. Jewman, 505 Glenmar, when she was hostess for the November 1 meeting of the Miro Book Club.

A short business session was conducted by Mrs. W. M. Greenwell, president.

Mrs. J. W. Musselwhite, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Horace V. Fluker, who reviewed the book, "Life of Margaret Chase Smith," by Frank Graham Jr. which tells a detailed story of the life of Mrs. Smith, a wonman of courage and a United States Senator from Maine.

At conclusion of the afternoon a dessert course was served to Mrs. Armand V. Breard, Mrs. Horace V. Fluker, Mrs. W. M. Greenwell, Mrs. J. H. McCormick, Mrs. D. M. Moore, Mrs. B. L. Mulhearn, Mrs. J. W. Musselwhite, Mrs. A. L. Peters, Mrs. J. T. Pugh, Mrs. C. R. Tidwell, Mrs. R. L. Wood and Mrs. French L. Smith.

PREVENT ICING

To keep glass from icing over when the windows are washed on cold days, add a half cup of alcohol to each quart of warm wash water.

TOMATO TREAT

Delightful for a buffet party: scooped-out whole small tomatoes filled with eggplant relish.

TEXTURE TREND GROWS

Hosiery, in all sorts of patterns and textures for all sorts of fashions and occasions, moves into fall as big news getting bigger. It's a "total look" in itself, as patterned stockings or tights matched to tops are spotlighted in fashion.

"Real looking" jewelry, often with an heirloom effect, adds glowing color to the soft look.

Plump Ones Don't Exercise

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Chubby youngsters take in less calories than their slimmer counterparts, according to a University of California study.

She noted obese girls had an average intake of 1,600 calories per day, while slimmer girls averaged 2,100. For boys, the total was 2,400 for heavy youngsters, and 3,000 for lean ones.

She also learned that among girls, there is more obesity in the low economic groups — those living in census tracts with mean annual income less than $5,000 per household.

Fall Planting Season Here

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

November is the month when the planting season begins. Most shrubs and trees planted in the fall and early winter will become well established before spring growth begins. For you, Mrs. new home owner, who are planning a new landscape, the following are some points to remember:

Allow ample space between plants, and house and walks for plants to grow naturally. Don't plant them too close to your house. Purchase at one time only those plants you can adequately care for at planting time and then maintain for the first year.

Group trees and shrubs of the same variety for harmony and unity. Too great a variety of textures, forms and colors in one area gives a spotty appearance.

SOIL PREPARATION

Proper soil preparation is a necessity as Neil Odenwald, our L. S. U. horticulturist, says, "don't" purchase a ten-dollar plant and put in a "two bit" hole. Plant trees where shade is needed to provide shade in a reasonable length of time. Some of the trees you may want to include in your landscape are:

Tulip tree or yellow poplar. This is a very large upright grower, a very fine nature tree. This tree gives color in the fall. Ginkgo, is a slow grower, medium sized tree, excellent for fall color and one of the most beautiful trees in the fall. Oak - several varieties from which to choose and all are relatively slow growers but very reliable. Mimosa - very fast grower, but is somewhat short lived. Chinese tallow, small, fast grower, with low branches, and excellent for fall color.

If you, Mrs. Gardener, have trees that are shedding leaves, don't burn the leaves. Put them in a compost pile. Humus will be valuable for flower beds in the spring. If you can't build a compost, pile them in an inconspicuous corner and throw a few handfuls of complete fertilizer and water them every few weeks.

SWEATERS FOR MEN

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, are shopping for men's sweaters be prepared for a fashion change. The bulky look is on the wane and the trim, tailored look in double - knits and flat - knits is "in" this fall. Simplicity is the keyword in tailored knitwear.

CHILD'S STUDY HABITS

If you, Mrs. Parent, want to help your children make the most of their educational opportunities, here are some tips. Help them establish a regular habit of studying. Find the best time for doing home assignments and then provide a quiet place for study. Take time to listen to what the child's school experiences have been and what his newer interests are. Discuss enough of the study activity to be sure the child understands and gets his work ready for the next school day.

Develop family patterns of reading and looking up things in the dictionary, encyclopedia, or other reference books. Plan and build a useful home library, when possible, and take advantage of the public libraries.

Encourage the youth to do his best. Don't expect the impossible of the children. Parents who provide reassurance and appreciation for home study get more effective results than those who nag the youngsters to excell. Mrs. Parent let the educational experience be a matter of applied learning and not just feed - back or grade attainment.

SEWING

Figures show that some 60 million women sew and that 40 million who sew creatively use up to 1000 million patterns yearly. The young ones are sewing, too. One magazine estimated that 5½ million teenagers make 22½ million garments a year.

Miss and Mrs. sew for several reasons. Perhaps for many of us it's purely economics. Many, many more garments for the clothing dollar. For some it is a hobby and yet others who are just creative by nature must create something to be happy.

SILVERFISH

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, have trouble with silverfish, they can be controlled by spraying their hideouts or paths with six per cent DDT, or a three per cent chlordane water base spray. You may use a 10 per cent DDT spray in the attic. Silverfish attack books, wallpaper, starched clothes and linens.

A THOUGHT

Garden Center Notes

Designs For Fall

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Fall Designs, by the Monroe non - Federated Garden Club, La Petite Maison, was the feature for the Fifth District Garden Center's program last Wednesday. Mrs. C. A. Petrus is the president of the club. Five members brought colorful, long-lasting arrangements containing fruits, dried plant material, and porcelainized material.

Mrs. Coy Casey made two designs. Her first was a natural straw basket with a rich green candle anchored into the center in styrafoam. Porcelainized foliage and deep bronze flowers formed a circular design around the candle. To give an authentic touch a tall lamp chimney was placed over the candle. This is a useful design in many ways, not only for a touch of color, but, as a light for the kitchen or den table.

For her second design, Mrs. Casey used porcelainized flowers to create a large, cone shaped design in a soft green ceramic compote. The spiked forms were snapdragons in several colors. Other daisy type forms of many types of blooms were used as a filler. Large water lilies formed the basic "target" form at the lower part of the design. These different basic forms are necessary in creating a well balanced design, especially a massed design. In using the porcelainized flowers, it is necessary to arrange them exactly as you would the fresh flowers.

'HORN OF PLENTY'

Mrs. Jack E. Murphy used a basket woven "Horn of Plenty" container for many types of artificial fruits and vegetables artistically arranged as though they were flowing from the basket. Foliage in green and red tones filled in between the fruits as a filler. Spike foliage formed the line at the tip of the design giving a graceful finish to the arrangement. A light tan mat was placed beneath the design as a base. This design received considerable praise from the viewers who came by the center. Fruit designs are lovely the year round, but certainly we associate them with the fall season.

Mrs. Robert Kennedy used the color sheme of tan and olive green in her arrangement of tan lipstick pods, green foliage and clusters of green grapes.

The focal interest was a large brown artichoke. All materials blended and created a lot of interest as an unusual selection of color combination. The container was a lovely brass compote.

Interesting and unique materials were used by Mrs. M. L. Coleman Jr. for her arrangement. Sea oats created the fan-shaped silhouette in a brass footed container. For focal interest three unusual feather peonies, in graded sizes, were placed within the line. These were orange with the green feather foliage attached. Dried iris foliage with the tips curled into loops formed contrasting texture as a background for the peonies. This elegant design would be lovely in the modern setting for color decor.

Mrs. Herbert Breard Jr. chose to make the natural fall design using all dried materials for the asymmetrical triangle. Pussy willow, dock, eucalyptus, and roadside thistles formed the line into which she placed colorful straw flowers in colors of gold into bronze. A wooden bowl served as a container. A footed cork and wooden mat was placed beneath the design as a finishing touch. For accessories, harmoniously blending in color, two ceramic ducks were placed near the design, for a setting on the T.V. or the low coffee table.

DIRECTIONS

If you are interested in drying a natural artichoke and did not see Mrs. Swift's program on Thursday, here are the directions. Mrs. Swift demonstrated this and gave the full details. Soak a fresh artichoke in warm water until the petals are easy to work with. This will take several minutes of soaking. Then remove from water and gently open up the petals to resemble a large open blossom. Place this in the oven with stem up on a tray. Now (without lighting the oven) just leave the artichoke in the oven for about 72 hours. The pilot light will furnish enough heat to dry the artichoke. In case you need to use the oven just remove the head until after it's use. When cool replace the artichoke and resume the drying process. Celosia will dry the same way. Place the celosia on aluminum foil that has been slightly crushed. This will catch the messy seeds that fall and will serve as a tray to hold the blooms. This is a quick method of drying the celosia heads (cockscomb).

Remember date — Wednesday, Conservation Conference to be held in Farmerville at the American Legion Hall. Many informative speakers will be featured on the program, lecture films on water conservation that is so important to each of us. State parks and recreation, "Beauty From Our Natural Resources," theme for state conservation. State chairman on Birds, Mrs. Paul Bourg, will have interesting display. Mrs. Frank Gladney will show a fabulous tape on Caroline Dorman's "Flowers Native to the Deep South." Mrs. J. L. Yawn, Louisiana Garden Club Federation president, will be a featured speaker, as well as Mrs. Harold M. Hogan, state conservation chairman. Lunch will be served at noon. Reservations for this should be made as quickly as possible with Mrs. Jettie Barnum, 5th district conservation chairman, Jonesboro, La. The registration fee of $1.00, plus lunch, $1.75, will include the entire day's events. Tour of the Lake homes is on the entertaining list. Make this a club project and take advantage of this important event.

Dr. J. Wright will be here next Wednesday for his usual wonderful program for the Garden Center.

Wild Asters Widespread

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

In all the excitement about chrysanthemums and dahlias every autumn, we seem to have forgotten all about the late fall asters. Of course, gardens are full of Michaelmas Daisies that bloom mostly in September and early October, but we need the bright violets and "blues" of the late asters to go with the golds and oranges of chrysanthemums.

English gardens are full of the wild asters from the United States. As long ago as 1633, John Tradescant, the son of the famous Tradescant who created in his home in London the first natural history museum, came to Virginia and took home with him the beautiful wild Tradescant aster which most English gardens grow today.

Other naturalists sent back to England many of our asters, and, today, more of the wild asters of North America are grown in English gardens than anywhere else in the world. To us, they are weeds, and we just look at them along the roadsides and let it go at that.

RESPOND WELL

When these "weeds" are brought into the garden, they respond to cultivation amazingly by growing to larger proportions and blooming more freely than in the wilds where they have to starve in poor soil.

It is not likely that wild asters will ever become extinct because Nature seems to be profligate in this family, providing enormous quantities of seeds and scattering them to the winds each winter. So you need not be hesitant, when you see asters in the fields and woods to dig part of a clump and plant it in your garden. The latest kinds are in bloom right now. They are easy to transplant and will establish themselves with ease when you bring them home and plant them.

BIGGEST, SHOWIEST

The biggest and showiest wild aster has deep bright violet flowers (which we call "blue"), sometimes two inches across. This one almost stops traffic along country roads at this time of the year, so it is easy to find. The species is Aster grandiflorus in the botany books.

In somewhat shadier places, you may find several kinds of asters that have almost heart shaped leaves at the bottom of the stem. These will want some shade in the garden, too. They have flowers that are small but numerous in all shades of light, milky blue to white. The foliage of these kinds is so beautiful that they are good looking when planted in amongst ferns in light shade.

In very hot, dry, and seemingly impossible places, you may find some smaller plants with tiny, rough foliage and brilliant little flowers in flattish heads. These are the plants for your hottest areas where there is little moisture. They look neat all summer and will brighten up their spot every October.

Even wet places have wild asters in them in October. Some of these are apt to be quite large and showy. So you see that there are wild asters for every kind of place imaginable.

Christmas Home Lighting Contest Plans Reported

Residents throughout the city will be eligible to participate in the annual Christmas Home Lighting Contest sponsored by the News-Star—World Publishing Corporation and the City of Monroe.

Available this year will be $1,350 in cash prizes for decorator competition winners.

Competition between contestestants will be confined within the competitive districts outlined on the accompanying map, instead of the former citywide arrangement with competition based on the amount of money spent decorating.

Top winners in 12 king-sized districts will earn first prizes of $100 and one grand prize sweepstake winner will recieve an additional $150. The city's best Yuletide decorator, therefore, stands to gain $250—that is, $100 for excelling in his district, plus $150 for earning the top citywide prize.

The new "zone approach" is expected to stimulate a wider range of participation, as well as allowing participants to get a look at their competition more easily.

Full details of the contest will be forthcoming in the Morning World and News-Star.

Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard has urged citizens to participate in the competition this year. Size of the prizes, he said, has been boosted substantially because of the enthusiasm and wide participation noted during the 1964 Christmas lighting contest.

"It is our hope that everyone will take part in the contest this year and help to make this an outstanding Christmas for Monroe," he said. "How much or how little is spent in decorating one's home for the season is not important. What does count is the spirit one receives from the activity, and the part he plays in making his community more attractive and a Christmas showcase that all north Louisiana can envy."

Overall purpose of the annual contest is to make Monroe the best lighted city in Louisiana.

GOP Learns Lesson On How To Win Votes, Rather Than Party Victories

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans for Progress said Saturday night the GOP got a lesson on how to win votes, rather than party victories, in last Tuesday's elections.

The organization, headed by Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, follows a moderate line in political philosophy. It has opposed a party takeover by conservatives and right-wing elements.

The Taft group said in a statement that conservatives failed in their objectives in the New York mayor race and elsewhere, in what amounted to "a repudiation of the far right in American politics and as a force in the Republican party."

GOP Rep. John V. Lindsay, who was elected mayor, played down the party label as a candidate on a Republican-Liberal fusion ticket.

The conservative drive, headed by candidate William F. Buckley Jr. of the Conservative party, was directed against Lindsay's refusal to support 1964 GOP presidential nominee Barry Goldwater.

Goldwater himself has been silent about the election results and the Conservative Free Society Association he heads as honorary chairman has made no comment.

Republicans for Progress said that while there were "hopeful, affirmative signs" for the party in the Tuesday voting, the results didn't represent a victory but did offer guideposts for the future.

"To be sure, Congressman Lindsay's remarkable victory is and will be interpreted as a Republican forward step in the wake of the 1964 electoral disaster," Republicans for Progress said.

"But candor dictates that this be recognized as a victory of a republican rather than a victory for the party as such. This kind of victory cannot be cast in that mold until the party as a whole becomes identified with constructive approaches.

"The lesson of the victories in New York, Philadelphia, Louisville, Akron and the rest is that when our candidates set out to solve the problems before the people—when they put forward programs to solve these problems—then and then only can we claim and win electoral support."

The Taft group said that GOP State Sen. Wayne S. Dumont who failed by a landslide margin to unseat Democratic Gov. Richard J. Hughes in New Jersey "decided to play down his own strong record of support for responsible programs. . . (and) turned to ideological questions."

Dumont contended a Rutgers University professor should have been fired for saying he would welcome a Viet Cong victory in Viet Nam. Hughes deplored the remarks but said the professor had a right to make them.

Americans for Democratic Action—ADA— credited President Johnson and Goldwater with what it called the legislative success of the congressional session that ended last month.

THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks moved higher for the 11th straight week, closing at 355.6 from 355.0 a week earlier. Led by livestock, the commodity index advanced this week to 171.6 from 170.5 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Stock Mart Takes 'Breathing Spell'

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market last week took another breathing spell in its long climb toward one historic high after another.

The market averages were not in agreement as to whether the market rose or fell. Statistics showed that a few score more issues advanced than declined, but this is not always a conclusive indicator.

One of the "biggest" stocks on the New York Stock Exchange, based on the market value of its shares, took a sharp loss. This was General Motors, which dipped 3⅞ to 106¼. Money-wise, this would offset gains by quite a few stocks with smaller capitalizations.

Selling in GM developed after directors failed to propose a stock split, as some investors had hoped. The giant automaker declared a fat dividend of $2.25 a share, but this did not overcome the disappointment.

The movements on average were minor this week.

The closely watched Dow Jones industrial average declined 1.36 to 959.46. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose .6 to 355.6, its 11th straight weekly rise.

Both these averages rose to historic closing peaks on Thursday. The Dow industrials made a high of 96.185, the AP average 355.8.

Cut to four days of trading week by the election day holiday, the week had a turnover of 29,567,240 shares compared with 36,007,866 the prior week.

The market was dampened on Monday by reports that President Johnson was opposed to an aluminum price boost which began to develop over the weekend and that he favored releasing aluminum from the government stock pile.

Bond prices sagged during the past week in all markets under the indirect impact of U.S. Treasury financing.

U.S. Treasury bond prices staged a general decline, pushing yields of most long-term issues to their highest levels in more than five years.

On the New York Stock Exchange bond volume for the week totaled a par value of $53.73 million compared to $64.78 million in the previous week.

Business Worries About Price Rift

NEW YORK (AP) — The possibility of a confrontation between the government and the Aluminum industry over a price increase worried business circles during the week.

The move became general on Friday when Aluminum Co. of America, the biggest U.S. producer, joined in the over-all increase. Another big producer, Aluminium Ltd, followed. Reynolds and Kaiser then went along on fabricated products.

President Johnson was reported upset over the price action, but he remained silent although he initiated action to sell aluminum from the government stockpile.

He quickly called a Cabinet-level meeting which was reported to have considered an increase in sales from the government's stockpile of 1,897,000 tons of aluminum, of which 450,000 tons are considered a necessary reserve for use in a non-nuclear war.

It was generally agreed that if the government dumped a large quantity of aluminum on the market, it would have effect of nullifying the price increase because of the heavy supply.

Representatives of Olin, Reynolds, Kaiser and Aluminum Co. of America were called to a meeting by the General Services Administration, which has control of the stockpile. No decision was announced after the session.

Initially, apprehension over the situation resulted in a drop in the price of aluminum shares on the New York Stock Exchange.

If there should be a confrontation, as occurred between the late President John F. Kennedy and the steel industry over a price increase in 1962, it was felt that the harmonious relationship that has existed between President Johnson and business would be harmed.

Such an occurrence, some brokers said, might unsettle the stock market, which has been climbing to new highs.

Elsewhere on the metals front, platinum soared to new price peaks as the Soviet Union, the world's largest producer, withdrew from the market.

Market Shows Gains For Week

CHICAGO (AP) — Nearly all commodities in the grain futures market finished with moderate to broad net gains on the Board of Trade last week, with wheat still leading the advance and driving through a succession of season high prices.

New crop wheat moved up more than 4 cents a bushel, old crop months 2 cents or more. On each of the five trading days, three or more of the contracts posted season highs and carried the advance since the harvest-time lows last summer to more than 20 cents a bushel in spots.

The Pastor's Corner

Some Conditions Of Discipleship

By REV. JOHN O. STEWART
Pastor First Christian Church

One rainy Sunday afternoon, two children had difficulty entertaining themselves until they stumbled on the idea of acting out their Sunday School lessons of the morning. The little boy agreed he would be Noah and his sister could be Mrs. Noah. They found an old cardboard box which they decided would be an ideal "ark" so they started to fill it with their animals.

The bathtub seemed the logical place for their "flood." They turned off the electric light — the "sun" disappeared. Then they turned on the shower and the floods descended. After some time they turned off the shower, the rains ceased and the ark floated on the waters. They pushed the wall switch and the sun reappeared. They pulled the plug of the bathtub and the floods descended until the ark once more rested on dry ground.

ANOTHER PART

There was another part to the story, however. Noah and his wife had offered a sacrifice to God. The children decided the kitchen stove would be the place for them to burn their sacrifice. Reaching into the ark the little boy found one of his sister's animals and said, "Let's burn this — it would make a good gift for God." "Oh, no," said his sister in alarm, "I couldn't part with that." Then reaching in the ark she found one of her brother's animals and said, "Here, let's give this to God instead." Her brother was unwilling to agreed to that.

They pondered for some time and then the little girl had a happy thought. Scampering off to the attic she returned in a few minutes with a little toy lamb. It had only three legs, its head was smashed, it had no tail, and it was so dirty no one could have guessed its original color. "Here," she cried, "let's give this to God. We will never want it again." Her brother agreed, so they made their sacrifice. The little broken lamb they did not want was given to God.

We laugh at children who would do a thing like that, and yet how often we give to God only the things we do not want for ourselves.

Jesus would certainly teach us that to be a disciple of His, is to place the kingdom of God first in our lives. A disciple is a learner or follower. Merely calling ourselves "disciples" though, does not necessarily mean that we are His disciples. In the 14th chapter of Luke, He gives some very difficult conditions of discipleship, when He says, "If any man cometh unto me, and hateth not his own father, and mother, and wife and children, and brethren, and sisters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple. Whosoever doth not bear his own cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple." (Luke 14:-26-27).

Let us therefore consider these requirements which Jesus has given for discipleship.

POINT OF MESSAGE

(1) "If any man cometh unto me and hateth not his own father and mother . . . and children, he cannot be my disciple." Could these be the words of Jesus? What is He talking about?

Certainly in the light of other passages of Scripture, this cannot be interpreted literally. The one who took little children up in his arms and blessed them was hardly likely to curse them in the next breath. Christ bids us love our neighbor as ourselves. And who is so near a neighbor as father, mother, child or wife?

It seems to me then, that Jesus is saying something like this: "If you intend to be my disciple, then you must place me and my work foremost in your life. You must love me so much more than any human being that it will be as hatred in comparison."

Our first requisite of discipleship, then, is this — we must place Christ above our own family and loved ones. The danger is not that we will love human beings too much, but the danger is that we may love the Divine Lord too little.

Someone has said it is as when, on a winter's day, a beam of sunlight falls upon the mass of glowing coal in the grate. When the sunlight falls, the bright redness is turned into absolute blackness. Just as the glowing coal appears black beneath the far more intense light of the sun, so Christ asks that the light of our love for Him should be so intense as to render our earthly love as hatred in comparison.

"Seek ye first His kingdom" (Matt. 6:33) was not spoken concerning this particular thing, but it might well have been spoken about giving Christ precedance over haman beings as well as over the material things of life. Whenever this temptation comes, as it often does, remember these stern words of Jesus: "If any man cometh unto me and hateth not his own father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren and sisters . . . he cannot be my disciple."

REV. JOHN O. STEWART

MATTERS MOST

(2). But there is another part of this verse which we need to consider. Jesus not only says that we must place Him above our own family and loved ones; He calls us to love Him more than our own lives. "If any man cometh unto me . . . and hateth not his own life, he cannot be my disciple."

I'm sure that Paul had caught the meaning of this when he said, "For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain." (Phil. 1:21) Paul, in his enthusiaism for Christ and his Gospel, had lost all concern for his own life. It was Christ that mattered most to him.

Alice Covell has caught the meaning of Christ's statement that we must hate our own lives to be his disciples. In December, 1943, eleven missionaries who had been held captive on the Island of Panay were murdered by the Japanese. Word came to Alice in America that her parents were among the eleven. "I must go to Japan as a missionary and take up the work my father and mother laid down," she concluded.

Jacob DeShazer, one of Doolittle's flyers, spent years in a Japanese prison camp where he was flogged and starved. DeShazer certainly did not love the brutal treatment given him by the Japanese captors. But listen to him. "I'm going to a missionary school for trainng, and then I'm going to return to Japan and spend the rest of my life there teaching the importance of love among men."

But why should we love Christ more than we do our own lives? The answer is simple—because He loved us more than He loved His own life. "Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friends." (Jn. 15:14)

Again then, shall we listen to the requirement of Jesus," "If any man cometh unto me — and hateth not his own life, he cannot be my disciple."

THIRD REQUIREMENT

(3). The third requisite of discipleship as given by Jesus in this passage of Scripture is this: We must bear our own crosses. "Whosoever doth not bear his own cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple." Notice the emphasise that each must bear "his own cross."

To every man then, there is some personal self-denial, some thwarting of his own inclination, some crossing of his own will, some giving up of what he wished to keep, without which he cannot be Christ's disciple. It is true that Christ does not define what a man's cross is. He leaves each one to discover it for himself. The thing He does not leave in doubt is this — that, for you, for me, somewhere or other, there is the cross and unless that cross be taken up, we cannot be His disciples.

Of course, like Simon of Cyrene, we are compelled to bear some crosses, whether we like it or not. When sickness comes to us or we get a "Thorn in the flesh" as did Paul, we can do nothing but bear that cross. When death strikes a member of our immediate family, here is a cross that must be borne.

But Christ, on this occasion, is not talking to us about that kind of cross. He's talking about the voluntary crosses — those self-denials and sacrifices which we make of our own free will. His challenge rings out today to all who will hear and then obey, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross daily, and follow me." Are you willing to do this?

CONCLUSION

Christ has laid down these requirements of discipleship. We must place Him above our own family and loved ones; we must love Him more than we do our own lives; we must bear our own crosses. Are we living up to these rquirements?

Whether we actually become disciples of Christ or not is a personal decision. When we stand before the judgment bar of God, as we shall all do according to Romans 14:10, there will be no "passing the buck" for our actions and decisions while on earth. Each of us will give an account for his own deeds and choices.

Major C. S. Jarvis in "Happy Yesterdays," tells of an oriental thief who climbed to the window of a rich merchant with intent to break in and steal. However, the window frame came off in his hand, and he fell and broke his leg. The thief brought a damage suit against the merchant, claiming compensation, because the window had been badly fitted. The merchant, questioned by the judge, pointed out that the fault lay with the carpenter who had fixed the window. The carpenter, in turn, blamed the stone mason who had fitted the window badly in the first place. The mason was arrested. He said the fault was not his. When he was fitting the window, a pretty girl passed by wearing a beautiful dress. She distracted his attention, and therefore the window was not securely fastened to the wall. The pretty girl was then brought into court. She blamed the dyer of the dress rather than her own beauty. After all, the stone mason had said it was the dress that caught his eye. The judge thereupon called up the man who dyed the dress. The dyer could think of no better excuse than that he had not thought his dye would cause such an effect. Not being able to blame anyone else, he was ordered hanged to the door of his own shop. The executioner reported, however, that the doorway was too low to hang the dyer, as he was a tall man. Said the judge sternly: "Go then and find a shorter dyer and hang him there!"

Such is the foolishness of trying to avoid being responsible for our own acts. We can play no such tricks with the judgments of God. No man gets to heaven on his wife's religion. Christ calls you to follow His way of life. "Choose you this day whom you will serve!"

To every man there openeth
A way, and ways, and a way,
And the high soul climbs the high way,
And the low soul gropes the low;
And in between, on the misty flats,
The rest drift to and fro.
But to every man there openeth
A high way and a low,
And every man decideth
The way his soul shall go.

Special guest speaker will be Crozet J. Duplantier, consultant, The President's Committee on Mental Retardation, Washington, D. C.

In addition, Donald Broussard, president of the Louisiana Association for Retarded Children, will discuss the parents' interest in professional services.

Persons interested in attending the program may write the Rev. Parshall, in care of the Institution, for a registration form.

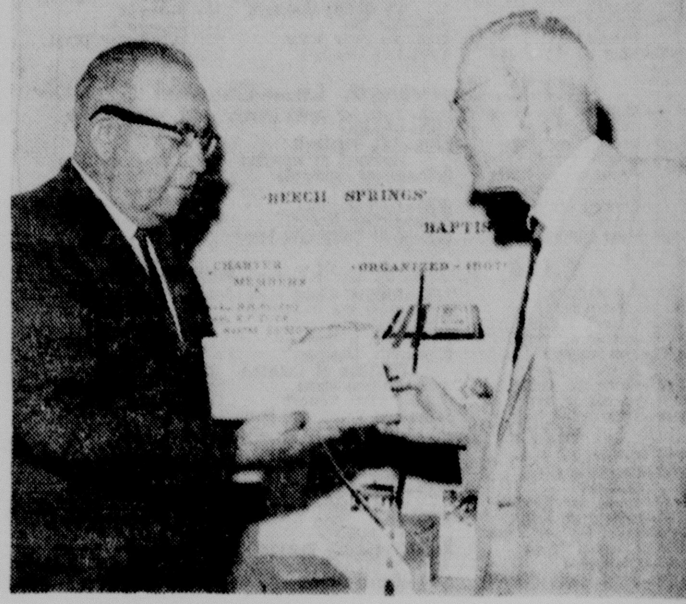
LITTLE DERINDA Masters, who attends McDonald Memorial Baptist Church at Jonesboro, stands beside the replica of the parsonage of the historic Half Moon Bluff Baptist Church on display at the annual meeting of Jackson Parish Baptist Association.



W. FRED MERCER, (right), Sweetwater Baptist Church layman, finds the Old Harp sacred songbook, published in 1889 and owned by Rev. L. K. Hartsfield, pastor of Beech Springs Baptist Church, interesting. The old hymnal was among historical items on display at the annual meeting of the Jackson Parish Baptist Association.

Historical Note Boosts Meeting

JONESBORO (Special) — The Jackson Parish Baptist Association decided to do something different in an effort to boost attendance at its annual meeting, and it worked.

Each church in the association was asked to make a display of archives and items of historical interest for the annual meeting at Ebenezer Baptist Church. A number of churches responded with interesting exhibits and several items were borrowed from the Louisiana Baptist Convention for display.

HISTORICAL THEME

An historical theme, "Our Magnificent Heritage," was followed during the 42nd annual meeting of the Jackson parish group. The Rev. A. N. Murray of St. Joseph, who was pastor of the Jonesboro First Baptist Church when the association was organized, was a guest speaker at the opening session. Some 250 persons, a capacity crowd, enjoyed this recollection of memories connected with the association's beginning.

The host church, Ebenezer, was organized in 1849. On display were the original minutes written in 1850 when the congregation decided on the church's name. A Bible, printed in the early 1700's and the property of Rev. J. D. Wagnon of the Hodge Baptist Church, attracted a great deal of interest.

OLD SONGBOOK

An Old Harp sacred songbook, printed in 1889 and owned by Rev. L. K. Hartsfield of Beech Springs Baptist Church, was on display as well as the replica of the Half Moon Bluff Church, first for Baptists in Louisiana.

Copies of old minutes and many photographs, "pictures from the past," caught the eyes of many. Seven of the 22 churches in the association were formed before the turn of the century. These are Ebenezer, Salem, Siloam, Springhill, Jonesboro First, Center Point and Midway.

The motion picture, "Magnificent Heritage," highlighted the final session of the two-day meeting.

Because of the interest sparked by emphasizing the significance of the association's history, the largest attendance in recent years was recorded at all sessions.

EVANGELIST LEO UPTON of Tulsa is preaching at a series of revival services now in progress at the First United Pentecostal Church, 702 Montgomery Ave., West Monroe. The Rev. E. W. Caughron, pastor, said the evangelist "is bringing the plan of salvation to all who hear him." Spiritual music and singing also are featured. Services are held nightly at 7:30, and prayer meetings every morning at 9.

REV. A. T. MITCHELL, former pastor of Ridge Avenue Baptist Church, West Monroe, will be guest speaker at 11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. services today at Trinity Baptist Church, 214 Reagan St., West Monroe, it was announced by the pastor, the Rev. James B. White.

Dr. Earl Millen Will Speak At First Methodist

An associate professor of social science at Northeast State College here, Dr. Earl Millen, will speak on "A Look at the United Nations," at the 5:30 p.m. vesper hour today at the First Methodist Church of Monroe.

The program is being sponsored by the Commission on Christian Social Concerns of the First Methodist Church. Following the speech, there will be a question and answer period. On the 20th anniversary of the United Nations, its purpose and accomplishments will be dealt with in the discussion.

Dr. Millen is in his second year with Northeast State. He received an A.B. degree and doctorate in political science from Washington University. Before coming to Northeast State he taught at Texas A. and M., Winona State College, Northeast Missouri State College, and Washington University.

GUEST PREACHER

Clarence Powell, director of cottage life at the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home in Monroe, will be pulpit guest today at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. at the Emmanuel Baptist Church in Monroe, according to the Rev. Fred Doolittle, pastor.

Payroll Bandits Killed During 15-Hour Batlle

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI)—Three Argentine payroll bandits were killed in a hail of police bullets Saturday after waging a 15-hour machinegun battle from their stronghold in an apartment house. Three police officers also died.

Police brought the battle to an end by storming the second floor apartment in which the gunmen had barricaded themselves while firemen outside blasted its windows with high-pressure water hoses.

Police Chief Ventura Rodriguez announced about 30 minutes later the assault was successful and that all three gunmen had been killed.

Three policemen, including Police Commissioner, Santana Washington Cabris, died in the battle and two others were injured.

Pigs -- Good News

BASINGSTOKE, England (AP)—There's good news for piggeries plagued with anemia.

Lord Florey, 1945 Nobel Prize winner connected with the Fleming Penicillin Development, opened a $2.8 million chemical plant here for production of an iron compound to correct the deficiency ailment. It has affected an estimated eight million British pigs due to over-intensive rearing practices, and Florey said: "The anemic pig does not put on weight and can eventually die in convulsions."

Calm Prevails In Dominican During Session

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI)—An aura of calm will pervade the Dominican capital for the next few days while opposing political factions map new strategy in a war of nerves and scattered violence, informed sources predicted Saturday.

The trend toward an informal cease fire began developing earlier this week with the reappearance of two major newspapers here.

Further impetus was given to the movement by the postponement of a general strike Thursday.

Tension may increase again with a scheduled student demonstration next week. Leftist elements in the University of Santo Domingo announced they planned to march on the National Palace. The march was designed to protest the government's negative attitude towards a provisional council formed at the university.

Some observers felt this would be followed by other efforts to create turmoil in the capital because of the Organization of American States (OAS) conference in Rio de Janeiro Nov. 17. These predictions were still in the rumor stage, however.

Meanwhile, scattered incidents of violence continued to sprinkle the capital. The latest of these came Friday night when rocks, gunfire and a bomb explosion rattled a neighborhood near Duarte Bridge, gateway to the city.

Pentagon May Receive Gifts For Servicemen

WASHINGTON (AP) — An upsurge of popular reaction to recent anti-Viet Nam war demonstrations is threatening to drown the Pentagon in a sea of cookies, fruit cake, books and other things for U.S. servicemen in the war zone.

The generosity is welcomed by the Pentagon which views it as an expression of support for U.S. policies.

But the unsolicited offers from individuals, organizations, schools, business firms and other groups is creating a logistics problem — how to move the stuff, and what to do with it once it arrives in Viet Nam.

Defense officials have been worrying with the problem for days.

They don't want to offend the givers. And yet they would like to channel the generosity in some other direction.

One proposal, endorsed by the U.S. command in Viet Nam, would have communities in the United States adopt some unit in Viet Nam.

Leaders of the community would contact members of the unit, find out what the men really wanted, and attempt to supply their wants. It would be a kind of "buddy system."

The offers to do something for the boys began pouring into the Pentagon about two weeks ago.

Officials said the citizens who wrote in, telegraphed and telephoned obviously were reacting against draft card burners and others demonstrating openly against U.S. involvement.

Literally tons of cookies, hundreds of cases of beer, thousands of books and other items have been offered.

"This could become a tremendous logistics problem," one official said.

"It's primarily a matter of transportation — not only to Viet Nam but distributing the stuff once it gets there."

Officials stressed that in-country movement of supplies in South Viet Nam is not easy because road travel is perilous and the country's one railroad line has been cut.

Thus, supplies generally move within the country by air. There is not much space for mass gifts.

Some congressmen have suggested to the Pentagon that Air National Guardsmen and air reservists might be brought on active duty for awhile to fly some of the gift offerings to Southeast Asia. This is not likely to happen.

De Gaulle Plans To Give Power To His Premier

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles De Gaulle is planning to turn over more power to his premier, Georges Pompidou, so he can concentrate his energy on diplomatic "grand designs" such as a revamping of NATP, informed sources said Saturday.

The sources said De Gaulle is so confident of scoring a crushing victory in the Dec. 5 presidential elections he already is planning to reduce his handling of routine matters and broaden the responsibilities of Pompidou.

They said it was virtually certain Pompidou would again head the new cabinet after De Gaulle's re-election. But the 26-man body might be slightly reshuffled, they said.

The president has been gradually transferring some power to Pompidou over the past three years. Now De Gaulle, who will be 75 Nov. 22, considers he can shift even more day-to-day business onto the broad shoulders of his 54-year old premier, according to informants.

They said the president plans to concentrate on the main foreign policy and defense issues facing France, such as overcoming American opposition to his demand for a thorough revamping of NATO.

Authroized at an election held this summer, the bonds will finance construction of a new school at Fiske Union, and a new physical educational — band building at Oak Grove High School, plus improvements to the current gymnasium and to the football field.

The board also voted to advertise the present physical education and band building for sale by bid at the November meeting, with the stipulation that the building must be removed from the present site.

Princess Interested In Nuclear Center

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Shielded by security guards from sight of a nearby labor union picket line, Britain's lively Princess Margaret got into a wave-skimming boat Saturday, crossed San Francisco Bay and showed how royalty can have nuclear-age interests.

Aides said the princess, dressed in a bright red suit and needlepoint fez, had trouble tearing herself away from a nuclear medical treatment center at the University of California's Berkeley campus.

The trip from San Francisco to Oakland and the university was made in a wave-skimming hovercraft operated by a company involved in a labor dispute with transport workers.

Although police withdrew the picket line 40 feet from the terminal, a Transport Workers Union spokesman, William F. Rossi, said, "In my view, the princess was crossing a picket line."

But a British consulate spokesman said the trip was made on the judgment that the picketing was not part of any strike action.

Princess Margaret, who never saw the pickets, told Oakland's Mayor and Mrs. John Houlihan after completing the crossing: "It was like a deflated bug, like something out of Jules Vern."

Dr. Edwin M. McMillan, a Nobel laureate and director of the university laboratory, guided the tour for the princess, her husband, and other members of the royal party.

She saw a sanctum shielded by 10 inches of lead, in which nuclear beams are focused on chancers and on ailing pituitary glands.

After they emerged from the cyclotron, Dr. McMillan showed the princess a model of a bevatron, a cousin to the cyclotron which is used in high-energy physics research.

As she turned to leave, Jerry Goldstein, 22, student body president, handed the princess two packages wrapped in the school's colors, blue and gold.

"Thank you very much," said the princess with a smile. "I'm sure the children will be delighted."

Earlier, the royal party visited the Bancroft Library, which houses of famed collection of lore on the western United States and northern Latin America.

Hunter Dupree, a director of the library, showed the Snowdons a small bronze plaque, "Drake's Plate of Brass," said to have been left on the northern California shore by famed British explorer, Sir Francis Drake, on June 17, 1579.

The plaque claims possession of California for Queen Elizabeth I and England, calling it Nova Albion, Latin for New England.

As Dr. Dupree unfolded the story of Drake and his sip, the "Golden Hind," and told how the plaque was found in 1936 in nearby Marin County, the princess declared: "How very romantic."

She and Lord Snowdon questioned Dr. Dupree about the plaque's history.

Lord Snowdon is a professional photographer.

Dr. Dupree gave Princess Margaret a souvenir copy of a book, "Rose or Rose Thorn? — Three Women of Spanish California," by Susanna Bryant Dakin.

Before the princess' arrival, Dupree confessed he was worried that the princess, whose given name is Margaret Rose, might be offended by the "thorn" in the title.

"But it seems a little late to worry about that now," Dupree said. The princess didn't seem to mind.

Lord Snowdon was presented a keepsake volume on California history, "A Journey to California — 1841." It describes the wagon train trip to California by an early settler, John Bidwell.

The royal pair drew thousands of students and faculty members to the walks and lawns of the hilly, tree-shaded campus. As the royal Rolls Royce moved down fraternity row, a group of youths hoisted a sign, "Welcome Princess." Some one else waved a tiny Canadian flag.

A crowd of 300 applauded and sent up cheers of "yea" at Oakland Airport as the princess and her husband boarded the plane for their private flight to Monterey.

Young Cubans Finish March To Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of young Cubans completed a 27-day march from Boston to the U.S. Capitol Saturday, bringing with them a petition signed by some 10,000 expressing concern over the plight of Cuba.

The petition was presented to an aide of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn.

The aide, David Martin, told the Cubans it will be passed on to President Johnson.

"We do not want American GI's to spill their blood" the petition read. "We do not ask for an American invasion of Cuba. We ask rather for the moral and material support of the Cuban freedom fighters, both inside and outside the country."

The petition drew a parallel between the people of Cuba and South Viet Nam.

"If the loss of Southeast Asia represents a menace to the security of the United States, a Communist Latin America could be a greater danger," it said.

The petition said that the signatures represent "the approval of the people of this country whom we met on the march to Washington."

Anti-Poverty Funds

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Officials said Saturday $13 million in anti-poverty program funds have been allocated for use in Louisiana in the 13 months the program has been in operation.

The Louisiana Office of Economic Opportunity said the $12,808,000 includes nearly $4 million use for Operation Head Start programs last summer, and over $2 million each for neighborhood Youth Corps projects and community action programs sponsored by local groups over the state.

Some $5,000 neighborhood Youth Corps jobs have been approved in the state. These include jobs currently involved in Hurricane Betsy recovery efforts.

Over 1,000 Louisiana youths have been accepted for Job Corps training assignments outside the state. There are no job corps installations in the state.

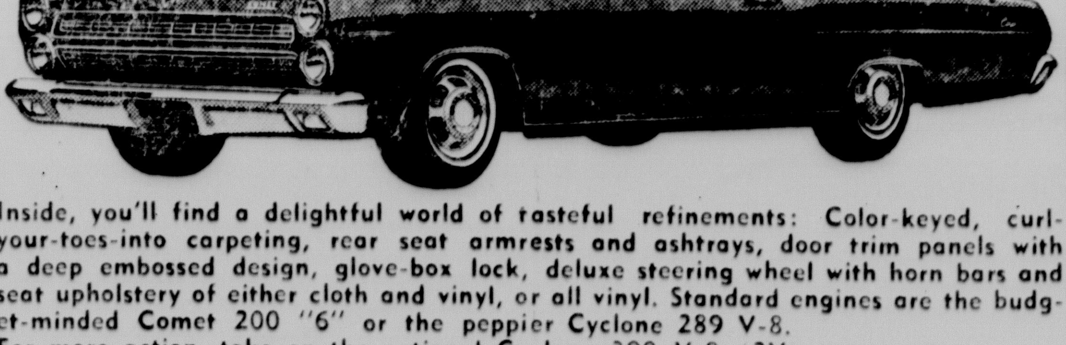
COMET BLAZES AHEAD FOR '66! COMET CAPRI!

Something new! Something exciting! Something called Comet Capri! First time out and destined to be a big pleaser among the young-at-heart of all ages. There's a 2-door hardtop and a 4-door sedan in the series. Each is a full 203" in overall length. Each features brightwork galore — wheel-cut moldings, rocker-panel moldings and door frames on the sedan.



Inside, you'll find a delightful world of tasteful refinements: Color-keyed, curl-your-toes-into carpeting, rear seat armrests and ashtrays, door trim panels with a deep embossed design, glove-box lock, deluxe steering wheel with horn bars and seat upholstery of either cloth and vinyl, or all vinyl. Standard engines are the budget-minded Comet 200 "6" or the peppier Cyclone 289 V-8.
For more action, take on the optional Cyclone 390 V-8 (2V).

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

The next time you're lining your kitchen drawers, try it my way.

I hemmed pieces of terry cloth, cut to fit each drawer. The terry cloth lining not only cuts down on clatter when utensils are put away, but it is a simple matter to throw the pieces into the washing machine when they are soiled.

Mrs. A. M. N.

Oh, ladies, this is a great idea. Try it! I did.

Furthermore, it dawned on me that one could also make little pillow-slip-type bags from old bath towels, and insert a piece of cardboard into each bag.

The open end need not be hemmed. Just turn it to the back of the drawer!

DEAR HELOISE:

Paint your name with fingernail polish on the bottom of your good pie plates before making something for a church supper or food bazaar.

When the woman who has gotten your pie plate or dish starts to wash it, she must wash the bottom and will see your name immediately. The cutest thing to do is to add your telephone number!

D.

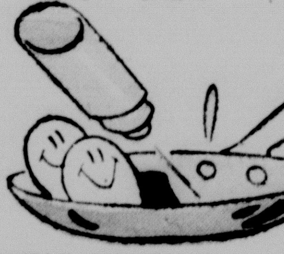
THOSE SALAD DAYS



DEAR HELOISE:

I keep all my vegetable oils in plastic squeeze bottles.

Here's the pitch: When I use just a little oil, I can squirt it into the skillet without getting too much. This is wonderful for pancakes, etc.

I keep some oil in a second bottle and add a little vinegar, celery salt, garlic salt and other seasonings, and use this bottle for salad dressing. When I am tossing the lettuce, the little squirt bottle distributes the dressing beautifully.

DEAR HELOISE:

Before painting a room, cover the doorknobs with foil. It will save cleaning the spatters off later.

The telephone usually rings while my hands have paint on them, so I put foil over the receiver of the telephone at the same time!

Heloise

[illegible]

DEAR HELOISE:

I glue small pieces of cellulose sponge to the backs of picture frames to prevent dust outlines on the walls.

The soft sponge, when put on the bottom corners of the picture frame, keeps the picture from tilting and prevents the bottom of the frame from marring the wall.

Mrs. Nap Richard

If you have a hint, problem or suggestion you'd like to share . . . write to Heloise in care of this newspaper.

TRY A THIMBLE

DEAR HELOISE:

I use a thimble on my finger to push thumb tacks, etc., in place. Sure prevents sore fingers.

Cora

DEAR HELOISE:

Have you ever noticed how the pens and pencils kept in a particular spot for family use always mysteriously disappear?

We solved this problem by drilling small holes in the metal lid of a coffee can. The holes are just big enough to hold the pencils and pens upright. It is easy to decorate the can, or let the children do it if they like.

Inside the can, we keep a couple of erasers and a small scratch tablet.

Mrs. H. Serretti

DEAR HELOISE:

When I mend moth holes or a snag in woolen material, I pull a thread from an inside seam and thread it through the eye of a needle. (Since it is almost impossible to get a woolen thread through the eye, I use a needle threader.)

I darn the hole as I would any sock, and you can scarcely notice the place where it was mended after it is pressed.

Mrs. Guy Robinson

DEAR HELOISE:

When on trips, I take my vacuum bottle into a restaurant to be filled with hot coffee.

I always had trouble getting the cork to stay in while the coffee was still hot, until a waitress told me to roll the cork in sugar before inserting it in the bottle! This really works. The cork stays in and the coffee stays hot.

Elsie Moore

DEAR HELOISE:

An empty waxed milk carton makes an excellent flare in case of car trouble. It will burn as long as 15 minutes.

It's good to carry a few empty ones in the back of your car for emergencies.

Marie Lee

DEAR HELOISE:

A plastic clothes hamper makes an ideal toy box for your youngsters.

It is not too expensive, and is neat, noiseless, has no sharp edges, and is ventilated so toys won't rust from dampness.

Mrs. A. F.

ICEBOX STAINS

DEAR HELOISE:

I remove the brown stains which form in the glass portions of my refrigerator by pouring full-strength peroxide on a soft cloth and rubbing over the stain.

E. S. O.

Did you know that baking soda will do the same thing?
